EAST IS TURNING TO CHICAGO FOR FACTORY SITES

Seek to Have Goods Near Market.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Manufacturers in New England and the east in growing numbers are inquiring about branch sites in Chicago. They express an urge to have their goods at the threshold of the great buying power of the midwest when recovery speeds up. So realty specialists in the industrial field report.

The indicated movement is the reverse of that a few years ago, when many western manufacturers opened Atlantic seaboard branches in order to compete for Pacific coast trade when the Panama canal and cheap water rates between coasts began to squeeze midcontinent industry.

Planning for Future Growth.

Large areas are in reserve for industrial expansion and there has been much planning for future growth of manufacturing. The Central Manufacturing district and the Clearing Industrial district demonstrate what can be accomplished in planned development of manufacturing districts.

Comparatively few Chicagoans probably are aware of it, but in some thirty years the Central district has built within the city a community of perhaps 120,000 people. This is larger than any city in Illinois outside of Chicago. It is like picking up Peoria, second city of the state, and some of its suburbs and dropping them here.

The Central Manufacturing district is a private industrial development enterprise. Its original tract is at the geographic center of Chicago, between 35th street and Pershing road, Morgan street and Ashland avenue, northward of the Union stockyards. It has other tracts to make up its 800 acres.

350 Millions Spent There.

It has financed land, buildings, and improvements to a total of 100 million dollars; independent industries have spent 100 millions; connected interests have spent 150 millions, a total of about 350 million dollars. The district has private streets and private utilities. Each of its factory sites has an individual switch track, running to the Chicago Junction railway, which connects with all railroads in Chicago.

In three decades the district has brought in more than 300 industries, which represent some 100 classifications. In normal times they employ about 30,000 persons. At an average of a family of four per employé the district is figured to be the chief support of about 120,000 persons.

A manufacturer coming into the district has modern buildings constructed to suit his industry. He can lease or buy. Many infant concerns have rented space in incubator warehouses, where they expand their floor space as business grows.

Use Package Car System.

In the original tract is a central package freight depot, from which goods go out in a rush by Chicago's highly developed package car system. A subway takes goods from factories as fast as shipping tags are put on and lands them at the station, where they are sorted into fast package cars which are switched to all railroads by the inner belt line. Sometimes products never see the street until they reach their destinations.

The Clearing Industrial district, which lies outside the city limits, opposite the Chicago airport, recently celebrated its 25th anniversary. In its acreage 111 industries operate. A gain of 16 was made during the depression. Last week a New Jersey factory opened a branch.

Industries Doubled in Nine Years.

It boasts that in nine years since 1925 it has doubled the number of industries in its boundaries. Last year power consumption of its plants was higher than ever before. The Clearing district is a land owning corporation, which builds, leases and sells plant and location. After it opened in 1909, its pioneer industry was the Corn Products Refining company, whose plant is the largest of its kind.

All factory buildings in the 3,000 acre Clearing district are filled. The Belt railway gives close connection with the 38 railways in Chicago.

The real estate specialists say that in the Calumet and other regions much good vacant factory site property is being bought up. Although there is little new building, there are many outside inquiries. Much obsolete factory property is vacant, but the experts declare the prospects are that soon there will be a shortage in modern cost reducing factory space.

Murder Trial Climax Expected Today.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

The state of Illinois late yesterday practically completed presentation of its murder case against Irving Weitzman, owner of a south side bakery chain, by producing documentary evidence in Judge Harry B. Miller's Criminal court that $317,000 insurance was collected after the shotgun slaying of Eli Daiches, wealthy advertising executive.

Weitzman is charged with having inspired the slaying, which was carried out in gangland fashion last March 3 as Daiches sat in his car at 53d street and the outer drive. Weitzman's motive was the collection of the insurance, the prosecution charges.

Company Setup Shown.

The state's evidence showed that Louis A. Weitzman was chairman of the board of the Thomas M. Bowers Advertising agency, now at 343 South Dearborn street, and that Daiches was president of the company. The defendant is a brother of Louis Weitzman, who now maintains headquarters in New York City.

The books of the Bowers agency, which were produced by David Bramen, the auditor, disclosed that of the $317,000 insurance money paid to the company, Louis Weitzman as chairman of the board withdrew $105,000 in April, 1934, a month after the murder.

The state charges $25,000 of this money went to Irving Weitzman to pay off the men he hired to murder Daiches.

Bolster Murphy's Story

The documentary proof of the insurance policies and the payments of the Bowers agency were offered by the state to corroborate the testimony given on Tuesday by Walter McManamon, alias Walter Murphy, who said he accepted a contract to kill Daiches after Irving Weitzman told him that the motive was to collect the insurance money because "he and his brother were nearly broke." Murphy testified that he sublet the murder job to Jerry Pilot, an alcohol peddler, later slain.

Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and Harold Levy fought vigorously against introduction of the documentary evidence. Throughout the day they kept up a stream of technical objections, claiming always that Irving Weitzman had no connection with the Bowers agency, and that his brother, Louis, was not a defendant or in any way involved in the alleged murder plot. The judge, however, admitted the evidence.

Expect Climax Today.

The defense attorneys and Prosecutors Emmet Moynihan and John Boyle said last evening as the defense was about to start introduction of its character witness testimony that the climax to the trial will come today when the undersized defendant takes the stand to deny Murphy's story.

The jury will have to decide whether to believe the murder plot story told by Murphy or the expected story of Weitzman that he is the victim of a blackmail plot on the part of the gunman, the fugitive Jack London, gambling house guard, and Arthur Emblen, who at the last minute refused to be a prosecution witness.

The insurance evidence supplied by executives from eight companies showed that 29 policies, ranging from $5,000 to $60,000, were in force on Daiches' life.

Personal Policies Changed.

He also had six personal policies for a total of $20,000. Most of the policies originally had Mrs. Belle Daiches, the widow, or Daiches' estate as beneficiaries. They were all later changed, however, to make the agency the beneficiary.

It was for a share of this money that Mrs. Daiches last year sued Louis Weitzman, his several associates in the advertising company, and the company itself.

On April 23, 1934, Judge Joseph Burke in Circuit court granted an injunction restraining the company from declaring dividends or otherwise paying Louis Weitzman more than $100,000 pending settlement of the suit.

Watch Trial Outcome.

It further enjoined the company from transferring out of Cook county the money collected from insurance policies on Daiches' life. The civil action has been held in abeyance pend-

Wife Trading Is Charged in Society Suit

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Outlines of a plan by which two wealthy and socially prominent Beverly Hills couples are said to have exchanged mates informally were etched in testimony here today.

A private detective testified to finding one of the rearranged couples together at 2:30 a. m. Another witness described a beach party during which the two husbands occupied adjoining rooms of a cabin, each with the wife of the other.

Cast of Characters.

Principals in the case are:

1. Walter Emerson, actor and writer, seeking divorce, naming Barton Sewell as co-respondent.

2. His wife, Mrs. Jane Scholtz Emerson, who admitted numerous trysts with Sewell, told of her love for him, and entered a cross-complaint, naming Sewell's wife as co-respondent.

3. Barton Sewell, handsome Beverly Hills sportsman.

4. Mrs. Leah Clampitt Sewell, who denied all Mrs. Emerson's assertions.

The case is being heard before Superior Judge Ben Lindsey, celebrated for his participation and writings on domestic problems. Both Judge Lindsey and Mrs. Emerson are former residents of Denver.

Detective Tells of Raid.

Lucien Wheeler, private detective, testified that on the night of Dec. 10 and the following morning he and Emerson "raided" the Emerson home in Beverly Hills.

"The lights went out at about 2:30 in the morning after we had waited several hours," the detective said. "Mr. Emerson admitted me through the front door."

Wheeler said Emerson led the way upstairs, unlocked a bedroom door, and kicked it open. Wheeler said a chair had been placed underneath the knob.

The detective declared Mrs. Emerson, clad in nightgown and negligee, and Sewell were in the room.

Tells of Crib Nearby.

"Where were they?" Emerson's attorney, Milton Cohen, asked.

"Mrs. Emerson was standing beside the baby's crib. The baby was awakened when its crib was jostled by the door. Mr. Sewell was in bed."

"How was Mr. Sewell dressed?" the attorney asked.

"I don't know," the detective replied. "All I could see was the upper part of his body, and it was unclothed."

Wheeler said Sewell looked at Emerson and said, "I thought we had an understanding about all this."

Mrs. Emerson followed the detective on the stand.

She said she had been indiscreet with Sewell twice in February, several times last month, and several times in December and November.

"How many times?" Cohen asked.

"I don't know," she replied. "I can't remember exactly."

Mrs. Emerson said she, her former husband, and Sewell had talked about the situation several times. She testified Emerson had told her, "Go ahead and live your life as you wish; I'll do the same."

Talks of Beach Party.

Cohen then led her through the testimony about the beach party last November. She said Emerson was sleepy and lay down on a bed at 10 o'clock.

"Mrs. Sewell went over and lay down beside him," Mrs. Emerson declared. "Mr. Sewell and I went to bed in an adjoining room. In the morning, the two men talked to each other through the open door."

Mrs. Emerson said she passed through the room occupied by her husband and Mrs. Sewell before they were awake.

GAMBLIN' MAN FROM WOOLLY WEST FINDS $350 THRILL HERE

Joseph Thelen will have something to tell the boys back in Reno, Nev., where he deals faro for the house.

He and his wife were ready to leave Chicago last night after visiting his cousin, Edwin Feigenbutz, 1537 Barry avenue, who is a brother of a former alderman, William H. Feigenbutz. The party, including Feigenbutz, his wife, and mother, were driving to the La Salle street depot, when several men in another automobile forced them to the curb in the 2300 block on Clybourn avenue.

Thelen was the only one from whom the bandits demanded money. When they threatened to shoot unless he surrendered his wallet, Mrs. Thelen handed over $350. Dissatisfied, the robbers kidnaped Thelen, but let him out when they found he only had 20 cents. Thelen admitted to police he had often flashed a roll of bills in a tour of the city's night life.

Oak Park Saves a Kitten Caught Between Buildings

Dexterous Oak Park firemen and policemen last night rescued a small gray kitten which had become wedged in a narrow space between two brick buildings at 44 and 46 West Lake street in the suburb. Residents of the two buildings heard the cat wailing for two days, and finally R. F. Cheney investigated and found it. The kitten was saved by hacking a hole through the ten inch brick wall of a store on the first floor. Fireman Paul Ware, who has the longest arms in the department, then reached in and pulled out the kitten.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A man cannot entice a maid away from his neighbor. It is not only wrong under the tenth commandment—thou shalt not covet—but under English law.

It cost Alexander Frederick Churchill Sim of Cookham Dean, Berkshire, $125 to find that out in civil court. It cost him $1,250 more for sending the neighbor, Herbert Mercer Stretch, a telegram alleging that Stretch borrowed money from the maid, Edith Saville, who is known as England's model maid.

Ordered to Pay $2,000 Costs.

On top of all that, Sim was ordered to pay the costs of the lawsuit, amounting to $2,000.

The case attracted heartfelt attention from most English men and women, who always have a hard time getting and keeping maids.

Stretch had accused Sim of virtually kidnaping Edith—"neighbors cry for her"—but the jury paid attention only to the charge of enticement.

A serious view was taken of Sim's telegram, since it was sent through the village postoffice, which is also the general store and thus likely to be a gossip mill. The jury upheld Stretch's statement that Edith merely paid a few small household bills, but that there was no borrowing.

Future Job Undecided.

Edith, who cried yesterday in court while her virtues were being extoled, departed today with Mr. and Mrs. Stretch. Her future job has not yet been decided.

"Her future is entirely up to her," said Stretch, who was much pleased with the verdict.

CHICAGO CANARY SINGS WAY TO CHAMPIONSHIP

Nero tilted back his small yellow head, filled his lungs, and trilled a sweet, throaty melody in the Congress hotel yesterday. With this song and his beautiful plumage Nero was selected the world champion singing canary after a two day contest with 850 other entries in the National Canary Breeders' Federation convention.

He is owned by Hans J. Gunderson of 1923 Lowell avenue, who was awarded $170 and a silver cup. Lord Mayo, entered by Dr. Isaac Saylin of Palm Springs, Cal., won second place. The third prize went to Duke Gladstone, the entry of Samuel Hampson of London, England.

Birds were entered from Germany, England, Canada, and America.

Ex-Clerk Links Dave Barry to Bank Swindle

Otto Van Derck, 23 years old, took the witness stand yesterday in Judge Michael Feinberg's Criminal court and in a hesitant manner told the jury how he stole about $55,000 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank, 111 West Jackson boulevard, when he was employed there as a clerk.

The black haired young man, who has the appearance of a youth just out of high school, has turned state's evidence against Dave [Long Count] Barry, who refereed the second Dempsey-Tunney fight, and Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul attorney, who were in the alleged plot to rob the bank through Van Derck in order to purchase another bank and an insurance company.

Ex-Clerk First Witness.

Van Derck went on the witness stand immediately after Assistant State's Attorney Vernon Thompson had outlined evidence of the alleged plot, which the state expects to prove through the testimony of the former bank clerk and Joseph Baiata, alleged leader in the scheme, who unexpectedly pleaded guilty Tuesday.

Van Derck, who gave his address as 5022 North Parkside avenue, said he went to work in the bank in June, 1933. In March of the following year, he said, an account was started in the bank for Dave Barry, Inc., a corporation formed to operate a tavern at 122 West Madison street in the name of the referee.

Within two weeks Van Derck said he met Barry and Baiata when he went to the tavern to inquire about two checks for $172, which were returned for insufficient funds. Van Derck used the first names of both Barry and Baiata in telling his story.

Meets "Dave and Joe."

"Dave and Joe told me they had just started over here [the tavern] and that was the reason they did not have a lot of money," testified the former bank clerk. "They asked me to hold out the checks because they were expecting some money soon from a brewery, which they said they would use to redeem the checks.

"Dave and Joe told me I could have supper at the tavern. You know I was going to night school, so I stayed for supper to save expenses. Baiata told me he was a big shot once and would be again."

The former bank clerk, who confessed the plot just in time to save the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company, a $13,000,000 corporation in Springfield, Ill., from falling into the hands of Baiata, a former convict, and his associates, was prompted constantly as he told his story. He seemed to be awed by the attention being paid to him by the judge, the jury, and the spectators who crowded the courtroom.

Hides Shortage from Examiners.

Van Derck said that when his shortage amounted to $1,155 the bank examiners walked into the bank five minutes before closing time and he was in danger of being caught.

"I covered up by charging the shortage to the account of the Post Office Employés Credit Union, which had a $50,000 balance," he said. "The examiners were in the bank for two weeks.

"I hurried over to Barry's tavern that night," continued Van Derck. "I told Joe and Dave it was all over now because the examiners were in the bank. I told them I would go to the penitentiary now.

"I asked for some money to take care of the shortage. Joe sent me

SEN. BYRD URGES DEFEAT FOR 5 BILLION 'WORKS'

Also Stands Against 'Security' Bills.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Senator Harry Flood Byrd [Dem., Va.] told his confreres in the senate today that nothing could do more toward bringing about recovery than the defeat of President Roosevelt's 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief bill.

Senator Byrd interrupted the senate debate on the McCarren prevailing wage amendment and demanded that the appropriation be reduced to 1 billion 800 million dollars, including the 880 million that is to be raised from unexpended balances in previous appropriations.

Although the Virginia Democrat, like Carter Glass, his colleague, has frequently criticized some of the manifestations of the New Deal, the administration leaders were taken by surprise when he declared he would vote against the gigantic works bill.

Against Security Bills, Too.

He also told them he would vote against any social security legislation at this session, and this was surprising, for the senator is a member of the finance committee, before which the social security bill is pending.

"The time has come for us to put our house in order," Senator Byrd said. "The defeat of this proposal to spend 5 billion dollars on unknown projects of no immediate necessity and of doubtful value will do much toward restoring confidence to those business men who are anxious to go forward. The defeat of this bill will be a direct assurance to the nation that the government is determined to maintain the credit of the United States above reproach.

"The defeat of this bill would mean a proclamation that the period of acute economic emergency in this country is over and that we are turning calmly from the treatment of the crisis to making our recovery sound and permanent.

Assurance Against Destruction.

"The defeat of this bill will be an assurance to business men that the administration will protect their property from destructive taxation. The defeat of this bill will signify that we now approach the time and the task of rebuilding new and firm values out of the destruction wrought by the economic storms."

Senator Byrd said the passage of the bill would commit the United States to furnish jobs for 3½ million men "until, as the President said, they are absorbed by the rising tide of employment in private industry." This, he declared, would be a continuous obligation, requiring the same appropriation every year, for there could be no rising tide of private employment so long as the government carried on such activities.

He said the time had come when emergency and experimental legislation should yield to sound principles of economy, the gradual but substantial reduction of public spending, the increasing of foreign markets, and the restoration of confidence.

Shows Rise of Debt.

In 1929, he said, the federal debt was 16 billion dollars, and when President Roosevelt assumed office it was not quite 21 billions. He then told how President Roosevelt, on March 10, 1933, had expressed apprehension about alarming additions to the deficit.

"And yet," the senator asserted, "if this bill passes our national debt will be in excess of 34 billion dollars, more than twice the amount we owed when the collapse of our mad inflation under Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover startled us like a clap of thunder. It is 9 billions more than the peak of the war debt."

Senator Byrd said the proposed 5 billion dollar appropriation would bring the total expenditure, in excess of income, to 18 billion dollars in less than six years. He said the appropriation was one-fifth of the total gross income of the nation in 1933, double the cash income of all the farmers in 1933, nearly five times the total net income of all corporations in 1932 and three times the total net taxable income of all individuals in 1932. He said it would represent a manufacturers' sales tax of 36 per cent.

Must End U. S. Fear.

"Under our profit and loss system," he continued, "recovery depends on the will to work and upon the investments of those who have capital. Such men and women must not fear the unreasonable and excessive increase of taxes. But they know that such an increase is inevitable if organized minorities combine to become organized majorities with the political power to raid the treasury.

"This is the grave danger that threatens our democracy in the proposal in other pending legislation to add to our present pensioners more than 3 million persons over 65; to guarantee by this bill a federal job for 3½ million more; to appropriate millions more for the relief of the indigent and dependent children, and to establish an increasing army of government employés to administer the bureaus that will distribute the government money.

Fear Political Influence.

"It is not fanciful to predict a day when those now being placed on the public rolls to receive cash benefits from the treasury may consolidate with existing pensioners and employés and form a body of political influence that will control the congress in more and more liberal appropriations to the members of such groups."

The remainder of the day's session was devoted to discussion of the McCarran prevailing wage amendment, which is receiving additional support each day and has the administration leadership worried. This amendment may reach a vote tomorrow, but Majority Leader Robinson said he saw no hope of a final vote on the bill before next week.

ROOSEVELT SET TO SAFEGUARD NATION'S GOLD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—If the Supreme court last Monday had ruled that the government must pay $1.693 for every $1 pledged on gold clause securities sold prior to June 5, 1933, the President would have addressed the people that night for two purposes:

1. To explain what steps would be taken to protect the treasury from the finding, and

2. To ask public support for the government's protective program.

Had this address, presumably by radio, been delivered it would have marked the most sensational and historic episode in the constitutional history of the United States since Andrew Jackson said of a Supreme court ruling: "John Marshall has made this decision; now let him enforce it."

For several weeks before the judgments in the gold cases were handed down the executive branch of the government, in secret consultation with a trusted few parliamentary leaders, was busy preparing means to safeguard public funds and the public credit against an adverse decision on treasury gold bonds and notes. The nature of these steps was carefully guarded, and, though one or two of them are obvious, exactly what they were remains a matter of conjecture.

But it is now no longer a matter of conjecture that they were to flow from a public speech by the President.

3 BOYS ROB IN SEVERAL CITIES, POLICE CHARGE

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Three youths who gave Bloomington, Ill., as their home were seized by the police here today as suspects in a series of crimes that began last night in Duquoin and continued on through Centralia, Vandalia, St. Elmo, and Effingham, ending here.

The boys gave their names as Robert Watts, Alfred Hobson and Darrel Leach, all 16 years old. Police said Watts and Hobson signed a confession that they stole an automobile belonging to Marion Pierce in Duquoin.

The three youths were arrested as local police sought the burglars who had broken into three filling stations here during the night. The boys were seen running from an automobile and caught as they hid in railway coaches at the Illinois Central station.

In the automobile were found three pay telephones and a candy vending machine. Police said the youths had driven from Duquoin to Centralia. There they stole license plates, thence to Vandalia, to St. Elmo, where a gasoline pump was broken open, and to Champaign by way of Effingham.

BACK TO GOLD, HOOVER'S PLAN FOR RECOVERY

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, commenting on the Supreme court's gold decisions, said today the United States should return to the gold standard "and restore confidence in our currency."

Mr. Hoover declared that all threat of further devaluation should now be removed and the dollar immediately be made convertible at the present 59 cents of gold, "payable in gold bullion."

"There is no need to wait on foreign nations before we reëstablish the gold standard and restore confidence in our currency. This would be bound to follow some time. They are far more afraid of our doing just this than they are of any American 'managed currency,' at which game they have us at a disadvantage."

PRESIDENT ASKS NRA EXTENSION FROM CONGRESS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Special.]—While a senate investigation of NRA was being sidetracked by administration leaders, President Roosevelt transmitted to congress today a special message asking the extension of the life of the institution in a somewhat modified form for two years.

For the first time, however, the administration omitted to furnish the text of the proposed legislation ready for congress to sign on the dotted line. The President indicated in his message that in this instance he is willing to allow congress to frame its own legislation.

Passes Buck to Congress.

As a result of the unpopularity of the NRA among many business men, of the critical attitude toward it manifested by organized labor, and of the Supreme court decision in the NRA oil case that congress had unconstitutionally delegated the lawmaking power to the President the subject has become a "hot potato" for the administration. If any fingers are burned in framing the new legislation they are not to be Mr. Roosevelt's. Beyond making a few generalized suggestions, the President leaves the responsibility entirely with congress.

Immediately after the reading of the message in the senate the finance committee reported the Nye-McCarran resolution to investigate the NRA with a recommendation that the finance committee conduct the inquiry in connection with the hearings on the NRA legislation. By this course the investigation is kept out of the hands of Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the commerce commission to which the authors of the resolution sought to send it. The difference is that Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, is and Dr. Copeland is not exactly an administration supporter.

No Funds for Investigation.

The judiciary subcommittee has been unable to procure funds for its projected investigation of the monopoly features of NRA from the audit and control committee of which Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], White House spokesman, is chairman. Committee members said they would try to proceed without money.

Senator Harrison said hearings on the proposed NRA legislation will begin next week. Chairman Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee said it would be several weeks before that body gets around to the NRA. The economic security and bonus legislation will precede it.

The President's message contained many confessions by implication of the imperfections of the NRA. He said some things done and left undone must be corrected. Codes must be clarified and coördinated with each other. Procedure must be simplified. Personnel must be improved.

For Violating Codes.

Submission of codes, the President said, should be voluntary, but if an industry fails to submit a code the government should have power to establish certain minimum standards of fair competition and labor relations. Child labor must be banned and minimum wages and maximum hours fixed. Organization of employés for collective bargaining must be fully protected.

Tacitly recognizing the soundness of the monopoly charges against the NRA, the President said that the "fundamental principles of the anti-trust laws should be more adequately applied." Monopolies and private price fixing "must not be allowed nor condoned." But certain natural resources, such as coal, oil and gas, require government supervision to eliminate waste, control output and prevent ruinous price cutting and inordinate profits. Discussing this detail at his press conference, the President indicated that he is still toying with the suggestion that such industries should be made public utilities.

Protection for Small Industry.

There has been much complaint that small business concerns have been driven to the wall by the code rules written by their big competitors who dominate the code authorities. The President says that fair competition must not be strangled by cooperation to prevent unfair competition.

"Small enterprises especially," he added, "should be given added protection against discrimination and oppression."

The popular reaction against NRA created by the threats to imprison business men was recognized by the President when he said that "the way to enforce laws, codes and regulations relating to industrial practices is not to seek to put people in jail." Swift injunction procedure against chiselers, the President thinks, would be more effective.

Despite its imperfections, NRA, in the opinion of the President, represents a long step forward. It helped to stem the depression and put 4 million men back at work, he asserted.

"The fundamental purposes and principles of the act are sound," said Mr. Roosevelt. "To abandon them is unthinkable. It would spell the return of industrial and labor chaos."

Dodge Controversial Issues.

Donald R. Richberg, New Deal coordinator and head of the NRA policy committee, made clear this afternoon that the Roosevelt administration is dodging all controversial NRA questions, such as price fixing and collective bargaining. He said that congress must decide whether price fixing was destructive or helpful.

Turning on the congressional critics of the NRA who have charged that the NRA through price fixing has fostered monopoly, Richberg charged them directly with responsibility for formulating NRA policy hereafter.

Similarly, the controversial questions of collective bargaining by employés and of maximum hours and minimum wages were dumped onto congress by Richberg. Radicals in congress have been urging a flat 30 hour week instead of the varying work weeks under the codes, while others have been seeking to make collective bargaining legally compulsory.

Minimum wages and maximum hours, a problem involving the thirty hour week bill, is also entirely up to congress and not up to the administration, Richberg said.

To have asked outright a continuance of the existing NRA would have precipitated a battle with the NRA critics in congress who were awaiting an administration NRA bill which they could assail.

Fish Launches Attack.

After the reading of the President's message in the house, Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.] gained the floor to attack the NRA recommendations. He shouted that the Blue Eagle had become a "soviet vulture."

"The administration is trying to make the people back home believe that there has been reëmployment under the NRA," said Fish, "when in reality there are two million more unemployed today than there were a year ago.

"The NRA has strangled the small business man and destroyed confidence. Business goes to sleep every night with a headache and gets up with a hangover.

"All through this message there is child labor sentiment, but this abolition, in my own great state and in a majority of the others has been brought about by state laws."

SEEK U. S. WRIT TO BAR PRINTING OF CITY BALLOT

A petition for an injunction to restrain the board of election commissioners from printing and distributing ballots for Chicago's Feb. 26 aldermanic election was filed in Federal court yesterday by Attorney George C. Adams, acting for himself and two other candidates for alderman, whose names have been taken off the ballot by the board. Adams said he would appear before Judge Charles E. Woodward this morning to seek an immediate hearing, claiming an emergency. He is joined in the action by William J. Baker and Mrs. Hattie Nepper, barred candidates in the 25th and 42d wards. Adams lives in the 3d ward. The petitioners ask that unless the election board agrees to restore names thus barred from the ballot it be restrained from completing the printing or distribution of the ballots.

DENEEN REVIEWS ROOSEVELT LIST OF BIG FAILURES

Predicts 1936 Campaign Will Be "Unusual."

BY PARKE BROWN.

Charles S. Deneen, former governor and former United States senator, told the weekly Republican Round Table at Henrici's restaurant yesterday that the campaign of 1936 would be an "unusual" one because of the acts of Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration.

"They condemned the Smoot-Hawley tarif," he said, "but by cutting 41 cents out of the dollar they have raised the tarif 41 per cent.

"They promised to reduce expenditures but they have raised the national debt 15 billion dollars and probably will raise it two or three billion more before the next campaign.

"And these vast expenditures have not helped in our national problems. There are 11 million out of employment and there are four million at work for which the government actually pays them.

Instability in Every Quarter.

"First we see instability on the budget. Second there is the instability of our money since nobody knows what is to be done and because the President has been authorized to cut another nine cents out of the dollar. Next we see instability for production and distribution; and, furthermore, there is instability in our relations with other countries.

"They have given the President the power to make bargains with other nations and nobody knows what will occur. We are following the example of Germany, Italy, Spain and other European countries and I doubt if we'll escape the consequences that have come to these other peoples."

Because of this prospect he urged that sane thought be given to the reorganization of the Republican party on a basis of high principles that may be held aloft year after year.

Certain of Party's Resilience.

Mr. Deneen was not pessimistic at the present low ebb of the G. O. P. He said that in 1892 many observers "wrote the obituary" of the party after the victory of Grover Cleveland, but he pointed to the "comeback" in 1896 with the election of William McKinley.

As did Otis F. Glenn, also a former senator, who spoke at the Round Table luncheon the previous week, Mr. Deneen refrained from discussing the tangled condition of the Republicans in Chicago and in the state as a whole.

A new turn to the state tangle was supplied yesterday when Thomas H. Houston, chairman of the managing committee created by the state central committee last November, declared that the meeting of the state committee at Decatur on Tuesday was illegal. At that meeting Chairman Justus L. Johnson seized again the reins taken from him last fall; but Houston said the Johnson meeting had no legal standing because the call had not been approved by the managing committee. Houston implied that he will go ahead with plans for a state committee meeting next Saturday.

Republican Leads Kelly Move.

The Lithuanian-American Chamber of Commerce made public an indorsement of Mayor Kelly which was particularly interesting because the resolution was fathered by Joseph J. Elias, who for years was an active Republican leader.

The resolution recited that "the Republican party as at present constituted has signally failed to show any constructive leadership" and that Mayor Kelly "has given the people of Chicago the best record up to date."

Open Drive to Bring Bonus Fight Onto Floor of House

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—A campaign to pull the bonus out of committee and thrust the issue on to the house floor will be started tomorrow.

Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], author of the bill for immediate payment of adjusted service certificates of veterans in greenbacks, announced today that a petition will be circulated tomorrow to take his measure out of the hands of the ways and means committee.

Under the new rules of the house this petition, which will be in order since 30 legislative days elapse tonight, will require 218 signatures to force the house to vote on whether the committee will be discharged from consideration of the bill.

Chairman Glad of It.

"Let them take it out," said Representative Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.], chairman of the committee. "I'd be glad to have it disposed of."

The Patman bill, in effect, would turn out more than 2 billion dollars' worth of greenbacks from the printing presses. The currency would be backed by the veterans' certificates.

With two score bonus measures already pending, a new bill was introduced today by Representative A. Platt Andrew [Rep., Mass.]. The Andrew bill would give veterans the option of obtaining for their adjusted compensation certificates a cash surrender value, consisting of their adjusted service pay plus compound interest for the 16 years since the war ended.

Objects to Army Increase.

General debate on the 378 million dollar war department appropriation bill was concluded before adjournment. Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] objected to an unique feature of the bill providing that the President may add 46,000 men to the enlisted force and 5,000 to the National Guard if he desires to increase the expenditure.

"If you want to make these increases why don't you appropriate for them under the constitution?" asked Taber.

"Is there a constitution?" inquired Minority Leader Bertrand Snell.

SECRETARY SWANSON OPPOSED TO DIRIGIBLE BUILDING BY NAVY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson today expressed himself opposed to further construction of navy dirigibles. The secretary said he had been subjected to considerable criticism because he had refused to recommend building of lighter than air ships, adding that pressure has lessened with the disaster to the Macon.

"If they compel us to construct them we will construct them," Swanson said. "They haven't up to this time."

The secretary explained he was referring to congress. He added that it was unlikely that congress would vote funds over his opposition.

The secretary said dirigibles might be useful for commercial purposes, but not for military purposes. He announced he had asked a special advisory board, headed by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to study the commercial possibilities of dirigibles.

Landlady Decries Thirst; John Shoots Her and Self

Because she upbraided him for drinking, John Reisling, 45 years old, a cement finisher, shot and wounded his landlady, Miss Madelina Otto, 45 years old, in her home at 309 East Elm street, Villa Park, yesterday and then shot himself. At the Elmhurst hospital, where they were taken, it was said both probably would recover, but Reisling's left arm would be amputated.

YOUNG MOTHER OF EIGHT HELD FOR BURGLARY

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—A mother of eight children will be arraigned tomorrow in Brooklyn on a charge of burglary. A broken heel and the woman's weight were the clues that led detectives to arrest her today.

The prisoner, Mrs. Camille Trapani, 36, who has a criminal record of ten arrests and four convictions, will appear in the police lineup in the morning.

According to police, Mrs. Trapani confessed she committed the burglary because her second husband, John, was not regularly employed, and she found it difficult, with home relief funds as the only income, to feed a family of boys and girls between 20 months and 19 years of age.

The police accused Mrs. Trapani of breaking into the home of Mrs. Antoinette Seccende and stealing a diamond ring and two gold watches valued at $200.

Detectives were told that a "fat" woman seen leaving the house had fallen and lost the heel of one of her shoes. Through a canvass of shoe repair shops the heel was traced to Mrs. Trapani.

WALES ALMOST GETS TUMBLED OFF DANCE FLOOR

BUDAPEST, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The Hungarian capital almost witnessed tonight one of the prince of Wales' traditional tumbles, but this time it was not off a horse. It was off a dance floor.

After his arrival tonight from Vienna the prince, accompanied by four ladies and gentlemen, visited a cabaret famous for its revolving dance floor. With great interest he watched native Hungarians doing the "czardas," the Hungarian national dance.

After a while the prince got up and started to dance. Unaccustomed to the revolving floor he failed to step fast enough. Only the presence of mind of the manager, who stopped the revolving floor, saved the prince from tumbling into the spectators.

LONG LAUNCHES NEW ATTACK ON JAMES A. FARLEY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Huey Long returned from a visit to New York today and made a new attack in the senate on Postmaster General James A. Farley, whom he is trying to get investigated.

The Louisiana Kingfish, who has been investigating the "holding companies" listed on the door of Farley's New York offices, charged today that the postmaster general accepted and sent his thanks for a $1,000 political contribution from a future federal district attorney, who in turn received the $1,000 from a man under indictment for using the mails to defraud. Long said the case was "squelched."

Huey also read a letter purporting to have been written by Thomas J. Pendergast, Kansas City political boss, in which Farley was asked to effect a settlement in an income tax case for John Lazia, Kansas City gangster who was later slain. Pendergast wrote that Lazia, "one of my chief lieutenants," would be in Washington to see Farley, who was asked to put forth his utmost efforts.

Long is still waiting for Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes to comply with a senate resolution demanding any evidence he may have relating to contracts on government work in which Farley's building supplies firm allegedly furnished materials.

Selection of Jury Started in $100,000 Alienation Suit

Selection of a jury to hear the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Olive Hankel, wife of Fred C. Hankel, orchestra leader, against Mrs. Gertrude Reich Walker, estranged wife of Wirt D. Walker, vice president of the Arcady Farms Milling company, was begun yesterday before Judge Albert Crampton of Moline, sitting in the Superior court here. Mrs. Walker sat beside her attorney, Matthew Steinberg. Mrs. Hankel, who has a separate maintenance suit pending against her husband, was not in court.

Dental Profession Hails VITALIUM

Among the many contributions to the Dental Field is a new dental alloy called VITALIUM. This alloy is used for cast partial dentures or removables, as well as full dentures.

It is said to be stronger than gold, and considerably lighter in weight. The users of VITALIUM claim that over 50,000 cases have been constructed within the past five years. Its success seems to be assured in view of the fact that it does not stain or corrode in the mouth under any circumstances. Its permanent lustre enables the natural tissue to reflect in it, thereby making this alloy less conspicuous than any other material. We wonder what's next?

'DR.' DE LISLE ON TRIAL; HE ADMITS HE'S VERSATILE

BY MARCIA WINN.

A modern medicine man who abandoned a career as crack marksman and tight rope walker to master the secrets of "healing" re-created his erstwhile circus atmosphere in the courtroom of Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland yesterday.

His name, which he says should be much better known, is "Dr." Robert A. [Rad] DeLisle, or Umatilla Bob or White Eagle-Beaver. His age is 72 years, and his appearance is grayly debonair. He is being tried on a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

Woman Investigator Testifies.

The healer went on the stand late in the afternoon, after Mrs. Charlotte Hermes, investigator for the state department of registration and education, testified that she had received his "cure all" massage treatments on Jan. 28 and Feb. 1 in his spiritualistic office at 20 East Jackson boulevard.

"I told him I had pains in my shoulder and neck," she said, "and without examining me, he said I had neuritis, but that he could stop it. He said it didn't matter, though, what a person was suffering from, that he could always cure him."

Old Pal of Sitting Bull.

A number of character witnesses, ranging from a burlesque dancer, now unemployed, to a well dressed lawyer, testified of their acquaintance with DeLisle's "work." Then the "doctor," self-styled pal of Sitting Bull, the Sioux chief, lowered himself confidently into the witness chair, his tattooed wrists dangling from his coat sleeves, his watery blue eyes flashing their magnetism toward the jurors.

"What is your business?" demanded his counsel, Maurice Marchello.

"My business is selling my self-diagnosis health chart, but I have lots of other callings," DeLisle said, fondling his gray goatee. "I'm a handwriting expert, a fingerprint expert, a psychologist, a chiropractor, an osteopath and a—er—chirogomist.

He Crouches on the Floor.

"Maybe you don't know what that is," he explained hastily. "It just means that I can read a hand like a book."

Asked where he had had experience in physical culture, he answered proudly, "right on my own body," and proceeded to go into Circus Sideshow No. 1, crouching on the floor to show how, at the age of 4, he had cured himself from "caries of the spine."

This having attracted some attention, he offered to strip and show his spine to the court, in just such manner as he later offered to read the palm, the handwriting, or the fingerprints [the latter to determine brain ability] of any one in the room.

He's an FPE and an MTD.

Questioned by Assistant State's Attorney William P. Kearney about his education, DeLisle asserted that he had attended five colleges, only three of which he could recall. Two of these "attendances" were by correspondence.

"And your degree, FPE, what does it mean?" queried Kearney.

"And MTD?"

"Mechanal-terafee doctor," he replied, evidently referring to mechanotherapy. "But I've got another," he added complacently, "CD, doctor of chiropractry."

"You haven't by any chance," came satirically from Kearney, "the degree of old Indian medicine man?"

"Objection!" shouted the defense, and the court was adjourned until 10 a. m. today.

SEAY RETURNING TO FACE $50,000 SWINDLE CHARGE

Earl Seay, 44 years old, who is alleged to have swindled Douglas Wray, retired paper manufacturer, of $50,000 in a stock selling scheme here, yesterday waived extradition from New York, where he has been held for several weeks. He was turned over to Chicago detectives and put on a train to be brought here.

The complaint on which Seay, who is also known as E. P. Worth, was arrested stated that he approached Wray on Dec. 12 with an offer to sell him 10,000 shares of Trinidad International Petroleum, an English company incorporated in Nevada, at $5 a share. It was also alleged that Seay declared the stock would soon go to $30 a share. On these promises Wray gave up listed stocks valued at $50,000.

Residents of Pasadena, Cal., Pittsburgh, St. Louis, and other cities have averted, since the arrest of Seay, that they were victimized in similar transactions.

DISCOVER FOSSIL OF HUMAN BEING 15 INCHES TALL

18 Inch High Cow Also Found in India.

VADNAGAR, Baroda, India, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Discovery of fossil remains, apparently those of a human being but 15 inches tall and a diminutive cow only three inches taller, led to the belief today that perhaps a race of pygmies once dwelt in India.

Should the find be authenticated, it was considered likely the discovery would have some effect on the current theories regarding the early dwelling place of the human race.

Investigators expressed the opinion that a new field had been opened for study of a long extinct race of small men, much more diminutive than the Obongo, Akka, and Batwa tribes of pygmies in central Africa. They measure between 4 and 5 feet.

Doubts Value of Find.

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The discovery in India of fossilized human beings 15 inches tall opens no scientific vistas so far as local anthropologists are concerned.

Dr. William Howells of the American Museum of Natural History regards the find as just another blind alley in science's trek back through the ages to find man's earliest ancestors.

"The earliest known humans were of full stature," he said today, "and there is no reason to suppose that men descended from pygmy ancestors."

Dr. Howells differed with Asiatic authorities who said the discovery might affect theories concerning the cradle of the human race.

"The fossils might be those of dwarfs of full sized people, not representatives of a pygmy race," he said. "The fossil of the 18 inch pygmy cow is absolutely mystifying."

SMALLEST EVER KNOWN.

Sir Grafton Elliot Smith, English anthropologist, said in London when informed of the Baroda finds that if all of the reports were true the pygmies would be the smallest race of people ever known. He said, however, that a long check would be necessary.

"I do not recall ever hearing of a man as tiny as this," he said. "The smallest people I know of are the Akkas of Central Africa, who still exist.

"Pygmy cows, however, are not uncommon. I have seen some preserved at Trinity college, Dublin. They were freak cows born a long time ago. Another reason why the reports from India must be checked is that the find may be that of a dwarf."

In the Iliad, the poet Homer used the word pygmy to describe a race of tiny folk dwelling in a far off southern land. Aristotle believed in their existence, and said they inhabited the marshlands of upper Egypt toward the source of the Nile.

Pliny mentioned the small men in both Asia and Africa, and Ctesias, a century after Herodotus wrote of the pygmies on the African desert, described a race of the small men in the heart of India and said they were black and ugly. They were only two "pygmai" in height, a pygmai being the distance between the normal elbows and knuckles.

INQUIRY STARTED WHEN 2 CHILDREN EAT GUM AND DIE

Health department officials joined with the police and coroner yesterday in investigating the death last Tuesday of Mary Fudala, 8 years old, 1714 West 21st place, presumably from the effects of poison. She and her brother, John, 6 years old, became violently ill a week ago after eating bubble chewing gum, their mother, Mrs. Katherine Fudala, told the police. John is still in the county hospital.

An investigation is also being made into the death of Virginia Pietrowiak, 3 years old, of the same address, who died at the contagious disease hospital on Feb. 3. Although the cause of her death was given as spinal meningitis, it was reported that she became ill after eating the gum.

Samples of the gum, which was sold in a neighborhood candy store, were seized by the authorities yesterday for a chemical analysis.

TELLS OF WALK INTO HUGE FISH; WINS LIAR PRIZE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Members of the Hackle club today awarded Harry Cox first prize as supreme liar of the north country for his story about walking into the mouth of a fish one foggy night on the shores of the English channel.

Cox won the annual Ananias contest without a dissenting vote when he described the fish's scales as 16 inches across. He said he was walking along the channel dragging a rowboat behind him when he made the misstep. The rowboat was found wedged between the fish's teeth later.

Second prize went to Milton Hopper, who told about the time he was fishing off an island in Batchawana bay and couldn't land a trout he had hooked. He snagged the line around a pine tree on the island and rowed to the mainland for help. When he came back the island was gone, but he followed up a trail of muddy water, and that was how the notorious Lake Superior shoal, upon which several ships have come to grief, got where it is.

AWAY, THICKET! HERE STANDS A MAN REVEALED

Carl L. Fiedler, 65 years old, is out in the open now as a candidate for commissioner of Chicago Heights. There is no more spinach in his campaign.

Whiskers which for 42 years had been Fiedler's pride felt the edge of a razor yesterday for the first time since he was 23. Emerging from the lather and hot towels of Barber William Champagne, Fiedler clasped his hands over his head in the manner of a victorious pugilist and spoke into a microphone to a crowd of cheering Chicago Heights folk who jammed the street in front of the barber shop at 1658 Chicago road.

"My friends," said he in a voice now unmuffled by underbrush, "My friends, I am vindicated."

Challenge and Answer.

Mr. Fiedler's sacrifice was in answer to the challenge of Frank De Bolt, whom Fiedler is seeking to displace as a commissioner in the coming election. Partisans of De Bolt were reported to have spread a rumor that Fiedler had been hiding behind his whiskers—that he feared to put his face on view.

To the surprise of his opponents and the gratification of his supporters, Fiedler offered to have his beard shorn if De Bolt would give $25 to charity. De Bolt countered with an offer to give $12.50 if he could see half of Fiedler's face.

The men met at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in the barber shop. Judges were August L. Zeller, police magistrate, acting for De Bolt, and Carl McGehee, Zeller's political opponent, who seconded Fiedler. As debate waxed about which half of Fiedler's face should be shaved, the judges decided to select an impartial arbiter. William Williams, publisher of the Chicago Heights Star, was chosen.

Down the Right Side.

A coin was tossed. It flashed up heads—the right side of Fiedler's face.

With his small shop crammed to capacity by village officials, newspaper reporters and photographers, and newsreel cameramen, Barber Champagne seized his clippers, stretched Fiedler back in a chair, and set to work.

The atmosphere was tense with excitement. An announcer broadcast a clip by clip account to the crowd outside. Policemen struggled to keep the press of spectators from smashing in the plate glass windows. Eager townsmen stood atop trucks to watch.

Clipping furiously, Champagne reduced the whiskery mass to a heavy fuzz. Then, snatching up his shining razor, he put the finishing touches to the job. Time: 12 minutes.

Odds Go to Even.

Fiedler leaped from the chair and strode to the microphone, half his face rosy and gleaming. He spoke. The crowd cheered. Betting odds on his candidacy switched from two to one to even money.

De Bolt handed over $12.50 for the charity donation, and then offered Fiedler a bottle of hair tonic to repair the damage.

Fiedler brushed it aside, ran his fingers lovingly through the luxuriant growth on the left side of his face, then resolutely marched back to the barber chair.

"Let her go," he cried. "Shave the works, all but a few tufts under the lower lip which I will use as a goatee."

Barber Champagne bent again to his duty and the job was done. Time: 9 minutes.

"Fooey," retorted De Bolt. "No one would know me then."

INJURY HURTS POOR WOMAN AS RICH AS RICH, COURT DECIDES

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black broke legal precedents today in deciding that a poor Italian housewife can suffer as much as a Park avenue society matron.

Moreover, he decided, the poor are entitled to as much consideration in the courts as "any sybarite or what may now be left of the former 400."

In so deciding he disagreed flatly with the Second Avenue Railroad corporation, which objected to paying Mrs. Cornelia Di Gerlando the $10,000 a jury awarded her for injuries on the ground that it was too much for one of Mrs. Di Gerlando's social standing.

Justice Black acknowledged that there were legal precedents for the corporation's stand, but he made it clear he was not impressed by such "illogical reasoning."

"Medical science has never demonstrated that persons of alleged inferior social position suffer any less from injuries than those of a putative or assumed social superiority.

"This 30 year old woman, living with her husband, had been employed in a dress shop. She sustained a compound fracture of both the larger and the smaller of two bones below the knee of the right leg, which necessitated two operations. Five months later the bones had not knit and, with a brace made necessary by the accident, she had to go to the hospital to give birth to a child.

"Afterward she was confined to her home for some months. At the end of three years from the accident there was still a shortening of one inch in the right leg. For years after the accident the shortening was three-quarters of an inch. There was evidence of permanent injury and deformity.

"The motion to set aside the verdict and for a new trial is denied."

Mrs. Gerlando sued for $25,000 and her husband, Charles, sued for $10,000. The jury awarded her $10,000, and her husband $1,000.

Mrs. Gerlando was standing on the rear platform of a street car and was thrown to the street when it collided with a truck.

HEART PATIENT HOLDING GAIN SINCE OPERATION

Cleveland, O., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Dr. R. H. Bishop, superintendent of Lakeside hospital, said today the patient who was successfully operated on for angina pectoris, is progressing satisfactorily.

The operation was performed on a human being for the first time in medical history by Dr. Claude S. Beck a week ago. Dr. Beck previously had experimented with animals.

The patient, unnamed, suffered from the ailment for two and one-half years and has been unable to work for two years, Dr. Bishop said.

"He is now propped up in bed and his condition is satisfactory in every respect," he said.

SURGERY CURES BAD DISPOSITION, DOCTOR ASSERTS

Plastic Specialist Tells Dentists of Work.

Deformities, even slight or largely fancied, have much to do with shaping a mans' or woman's disposition, and oral surgery to correct them is therefore justified even when not functionally required, Dr. Vilray P. Blair, noted plastic surgeon of St. Louis, told members of the Chicago Dental society yesterday. He addressed the oral surgery, radiology, and anesthesia division in one of several group meetings in the Stevens hotel, part of a four day midwinter meeting of the society.

"Just as important as the functional need for oral surgery is the psychic reaction of the patient who thinks he or she [and there are just as many men as women] has been slighted by nature or by an injury," said Dr. Blair. "He thinks he is handicaped and because of this reaction he is handicaped. There is no question of his need of help in order to improve his contact with the world.

Important in Business.

"It becomes increasingly important that persons be presentable. The working woman must buy silk stockings, and by the same token wishes the best face she can obtain. The average employer will employ a person with a presentable face sooner than he will employ one who lacks such a face but has a better brain.

"In others, they may be given employment but the consciousness of their deformity makes them introspective and hard to get along with. Here is a boy, 19 years old," he said, illustrating with a slide, "who was born without a nose and with no breathing space. He was sent to the hospital from across the continent by a fraternal society, and all his expenses were paid. But he was spoiled, self-centered, and difficult.

"We chiseled through from the front to the nasal pharynx and lined the cavity with a skin graft, more with a view to putting on an external nose than anything else. The minute he started breathing through his new nose and new cavity his health improved, and in the next few years his disposition changed entirely and he became a 19 year old instead of a 12 year old person, because he was no longer a freak."

He pointed out the need of doctors' and dentists' realizing what lies behind the deformed face and what a patient wishes in his mind.

Calls for Public's Education.

Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, the cancer authority of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, addressed the medical relations section of the society in the afternoon on the need for organization by dentists and physicians of the country to inform the public that they should be examined within two weeks after receiving "the first warning of cancer."

Cancer of the tongue is preventable and cancer of the jaws is curable if treated when the tumor has been observed but a few weeks, Dr. Bloodgood declared. He asserted the chief failure to cure cancer of the jaw, the chief reason for recurrence and the chief cause of death is failure to report to dentists the moment one feels any pain, or sees or feels anything abnormal in the mouth.

Puts Task to Professions.

The only protection against cancer is the knowledge of the individual, according to the doctor, and no knowledge is needed other than the need of reporting to physicians or dentists within the first two weeks after any trouble.

"There is no compromise," he declared. "If the medical and dental professions will take up this problem with public health departments this protection will be extended. Nobody else can do it."

USE PHONETIC SPELLING FOR GREEK CITIES

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Athens became Athinsi and Piraeus changed to Pireefs tonight when it was learned that the postoffice department has changed spellings of Greek cities to phonetic arrangements in its foreign mail bulletins.

The changes were made at the request of the Greek government, although the local consulate has not been advised of them.

Other changes in spelling include Thessaloniki for Salonica, Patrai for Patras, and Chania for Candia.

Find Secret Rooms in Vilna Church;'63 Revolt Recalled

VILNA, Poland, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Workmen repairing the Domican Fathers church today uncovered subterranean rooms reached from a secret staircase beneath the altar. The belief was expressed that insurrectionists of 1863 had used the secret shelter. Doors to other halls had been walled up and in them were found many coffins. It was believed victims of cholera in 1812 had been buried there.

ROBS DRIVER AND PASSENGER.

They Tried "Moist-Throat" Method!

"NEXT DAY OUR COUGHS WERE GONE!"

"Jackie and I coughed our heads off," says Mrs. F. Fernandes, Providence, R.I. "Doctor said 'Pertussin.' Next day our coughs were gone!"

WHEN you catch cold, sticky mucus clogs your throat's moisture glands. That's because the healthy secretions of these glands have thickened or dried. Your throat feels raw—tickly—you cough. To relieve coughing, you must "unclog" these glands and so moisten the throat. PERTUSSIN does just that. Sticky phlegm loosens. Relief—quick. Get a bottle now.

COAL OPERATORS ASSAIL PLAN FOR U. S. MINE RULE

Predict It Will Boost Cost to Consumer.

Government control of the coal mines, as proposed in the Guffy-Lewis bill now before congress would hit the pocketbook of taxpayers and prepare the way for federal dictatorship in all industries, according to speakers at a conference of coal operators and Chicago business men yesterday in the Union League club.

The meeting was called by the industrial development committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce preparatory to its announcing an opinion of the bill.

The bill provides for a 10 cent a ton tax on coal and it would open the door for "almost limitless" increases in coal prices, according to one operator.

Cost Increases All Along Line.

"Any increase in the cost of coal will increase the cost of every article which coal helps to produce," said another speaker, P. H. Holland, president of the Holland Coal company. "I can't see a single reason why any consumer would favor the bill. Nor can I see why any member of the coal industry should favor it."

The bill would create a national coal commission of five members with broad powers. Of this provision Mr. Holland said: "No five men in the country nor any fifty-five men have the brains to run the coal industry in detail, as this bill proposes."

"The bill was slammed in our faces on short notice," he declared. "I don't believe any one here fully understands it yet. The government ought to wait until the expected extension of NRA expires before trying to push such a bill through."

View of Kentucky Operator.

Kenneth McGuire of Louisville, Ky., a western Kentucky coal operator, warned that government control would "effectively end this phase of business life." The bill is more drastic than any previous regulatory measure proposed, he said.

Loran D. Gayton, acting city engineer, said that by increasing fuel costs the bill would defeat the government's campaign to reduce electric power rates.

Jonas Waffle, managing director of the Coal Trade Association of Indiana, declared that the bill represents a serious menace to all industries because if it is passed by congress, control measures will be presented for other lines of business.

Declare Only Six Out

The strike of cotton goods workers in Chicago called by officials of the White Goods Workers' union, local 76, affiliate of the International Ladies Garment Workers' union, has not affected more than half a dozen employés of the member manufacturers of the Central Cotton Garment Manufacturers association, officials of the association announced last night.

A. J. Schanfarber, attorney for the association, said that a check of the sixteen shops of the association disclosed that about six employés failed to appear for work yesterday morning.

"The member manufacturers are paying the wage scale fixed by the code of the National Recovery act and employés in a vote taken recently overwhelmingly agreed to be represented by company unions instead of the international union," he asserted.

Sam Glassman, organizer of the local union, said that several thousand workers joined the walkout. He said that the cutters demand a 15 per cent increase and that other employés insist on a minimum wage of $16 a week.

COAL DRIVERS' STRIKE IS QUIET; 4 ARRESTS MADE

After Tuesday's flareup of violence, marked by a shooting, the strike of the "outlaw" Chicago Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers' union local 704 against coal dealers ended its third day yesterday in comparative peace. The men are asking that their $6 daily wage be increased to $7.

Four members of the union were arrested in their homes during the day by state's attorney's police investigating the shooting Tuesday of James Duncan, 38 years old, 811 South State street, a driver for the Yards Coal company, 441 West 33d street. Duncan was wounded twice by one of four men who dumped the ten ton load of coal Duncan was delivering.

Those arrested were Vaughan S. Johnson, 41 years old, 548 West 62d street; Joseph Strempleski, 31, of 2418 South Sacramento avenue; Chris Jensen, 32, of 7902 South Paulina street, and Charles Siebrandt, 42, of 1835 West 71st street. All were locked up in the detective bureau.

Deliveries were made without interruption yesterday, although the tire of one truck was punctured by gunfire from an automobile carrying gangsters.

SOLDIER LEAPS TO DEATH.

BUNDESEN TURNS TO LAUNDRIES IN HEALTH CLEANUP

All Plants Under Scrutiny by City Inspectors.

As a further step toward reducing Chicago's disease and death rates, already materially decreased by the chlorination of water and the strict milk regulations, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, announced yesterday that all laundries in the city are being investigated and that licenses will be revoked in every case where the owners failed to fulfill the requirements of cleanliness.

Dr. Bundesen pointed out that according to the health board regulations, boiling water should be used by laundries in washing clothes and the heat should be great enough to act as a sterilizer. The soaps and other materials used in the laundering should also be proper germicides, the regulations say.

Asked About Gold Seal Rumors.

Dr. Bundesen was asked about rumors among laundry men that the companies which pass the cleanliness tests will be given gold seals, which may be attached to their bundles.

"No," he replied. "It is not necessary to give them gold seals or any kind of certificates.

"After this drive is over, the mere fact that a laundry remains open will be its guarantee to the public that it has been approved by the health department. The only reward of the laundry will be the good will it has created.

"There is no compromise with cleanliness, no such thing as 99 44-100 per cent pure. Either a laundry is clean or it isn't, and if it isn't, it will not open for customers."

Several Licenses Refused.

During the last two months several laundries which wanted to begin business have been denied licenses because their equipment did not measure up to the standards of wash sterilization, Dr. Bundesen said. It was expected that several other laundries will have to close as soon as the city health inspectors have completed their reports.

"We want to coöperate with the laundry men," Dr. Bundesen said, "but if they won't clean up, we'll clean them up. There have been too many complaints from laundry customers that contagious diseases are being spread by the indiscriminate mingling of wash and the failure of the launderers to use clean, boiling water for each batch of clothes. We want the public to coöperate by reporting all violations of the laundry regulations to this office."

UNION PREVENTS OIL DELIVERY IN DYERS' STRIKE

Union pickets prevented yesterday the delivery of two barrels of oil to the plant of Peacock Cleaners and Dyers, 4744 Broadway, against which a strike is in progress.

The oil was on a truck of the American Railway Express, which was surrounded by the pickets as soon as it arrived at the curb. Policemen who were at the scene said there was no violence and that the driver voluntarily left with his consignment undelivered when the pickets advised him to do so.

Jean Frank, head of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union, said his organization and the inside workers went on strike because the Peacock firm had not carried out an agreement to pay its employés the usual union scale of wages. Executives of the company asserted that its plant, with 50 employés, was working as usual.

ALLEN BOMBERGER.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Allan Cressler Bomberger, 21, graduate student and instructor at Wabash college, Crawfordsville, was arrested there on federal charges of having sent an extortion letter to his father, L. L. Bomberger, Hammond attorney. That was revealed today by federal authorities here. Arraigned today here before United States Commissioner Howard S. Young, bond of $2,500 was provided by Judge Chase Harding of Crawfordsville, a family friend.

It was declared that young Bomberger had confessed to having faked the story told to the Chicago police. On Jan. 9 this year he appeared in a police station there and told his story. It was that forty-eight hours before he had been walking on a street in Crawfordsville when he was seized by two men and a woman.

Put into their auto, he told the police, and was driven to a city which he believed to be Indianapolis, and forced there to write a letter to his father saying the kidnapers demanded $50,000 for his release. He further related that he then was driven to Chicago and shoved out of the kidnapers' auto near the federal building. Allan Bomberger was graduated from Wabash college with honors and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, a national honor fraternity.

FIRE DESTROYS CANE FIELDS AT HERSHEY, CUBA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 20.—Immense cane fields of the Milton S. Hershey properties at Hershey, Matanzas province, were set afire early today by unidentified terrorists. Government officials estimated 25,000,000 pounds of cane was destroyed. The nation-wide anti-American and communist campaign sponsored by the Authentic Revolutionary party and the National Labor confederation are believed responsible.

A total of 350 acres of henequen likewise was destroyed by fire today in fields owned by the Cuban American Sisal company near Cardenas, only a few miles east of Hershey.

Meantime, the island's educational machinery was paralyzed, with a teachers' and pupils' strike closing all schools. The demands range from free breakfasts for teachers of grade schools to the high school teachers' demands for higher pay and the demand of Havana university students for vital government changes. The strike looms as a challenge to President Carlos Mendieta's administration.

FATE OF JUDGE'S SON NEARS JURY IN MURDER CASE

Death Penalty Is Not Asked by State.

Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—With final arguments near an end tonight, the fate of Phil Kennamer, 19 year old son of a federal judge, will be in the hands of a jury which will adjudge him innocent or guilty of murdering his former friend tomorrow.

Five attorneys addressed the jury today and two will conclude the arguments tomorrow. The judge may add to his previous instructions and then the case will go to the jury.

In their final arguments in "the southwest's society murder trial," opposing attorneys portrayed the young defendant in extremely contrasting lights.

The state called him a ruthless, cold blooded killer who planned and carried out the fatal shooting of John F. Gorrell Jr., 23, dental student. The prosecution asked the rural jury to "check the career of crime which this defendant's father, Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, failed to do."

The defense termed him an insane youth, cornered and fighting in self defense when Gorrell was killed in Tulsa last Thanksgiving night. This side held it was Kennamer's "moral and Christian duty" to take some action to thwart Gorrell's plot to kidnap Virginia Wilcox, pretty 19 year old oil heiress, whom the defendant loved.

Crowd Hears Arguments.

A tense crowd of 400 spectators, representing the wide variety of this former frontier country's inhabitants, listened to the attorneys' eloquence. There were Indians and stockmen, socially prominent Tulsans and Pawnee townspeople and farmers.

The trial was moved from Tulsa, the southwest's self styled oil capital, to this country town on a change of venue to eliminate prejudice because of the prominence of the persons involved.

Though the death penalty was not asked, state's attorneys asserted in urging a life sentence or a long manslaughter term, that the facts warant death in the electric chair. The defense pleaded that the defendant be freed so he could be sent to an institution for mental treatment.

The jurors were told by Judge Thurman Hurst they might acquit the youth; convict him of murder and sentence him to death or life imprisonment; convict him of manslaughter and sentence him to serve from four years to life or leave the manslaughter conviction to the court.

Follows Counsels' Arguments.

Young Kennamer was glum and cheerful by turns as he heard the shouted arguments about his conduct. He kept his gaze on the floor when his own attorney asserted he "hadn't enough sense to lead a blind goose to water" and that his love for Miss Wilcox was "abnormal, peculiar and, I believe, insane."

The defendant himself scorned the insanity plea, relying on his own testimony the killing was done to save his own life and protect Miss Wilcox after Gorrell had threatened them both.

Miss Wilcox was a defense witness and was in court throughout the case along with other spectators of wealth and social position from Tulsa. She testified that Kennamer was her "first date," but denied she loved him. She said she believed Kennamer loved her at the time of the murder and still does.

EVENTS TO CROWD WASHINGTON DAY HERE TOMORROW

Pupils Given Prizes for Patriotic Definitions.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The memory of George Washington as citizen, soldier and statesman will be honored here tomorrow on the 203d anniversary of his birth. School children, patriotic societies and countless other organizations will lead citizens generally in the celebration.

The legal holiday will close banks, markets, public offices and schools. The postoffice is to make a single delivery so that mail carriers may have a half day off.

Because public schools will not be in session tomorrow, the 330 elementary institutions and 35 high schools of Chicago are to hold their exercises today. The services of Washington in "establishing and helping to maintain a nation imbued with democratic idealism," will be emphasized according to William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools. In some schools episodes in the lives of both Washington and Abraham Lincoln will be portrayed.

Announce Awards to Pupils.

The conception of Americanism which three Cook county rural children embrace was phrased yesterday in prize winning definitions announced yesterday. More than 40,000 definitions of Americanism were submitted by pupils in 400 Cook county schools in a contest conducted by the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Chicago Art institute, and Otto F. Aken, county superintendent of schools.

"Americanism is being true to my country, doing things to help my community, respecting the flag, electing patriotic statesmen, having national unity, obeying the laws, loving my President, my flag and my country, having as my daily prayer the golden rule and the national motto 'In God We Trust.'" This was the definition of Marie Feehan, Rhodes school, District 7, who placed first.

Fights Foe Within and Without.

Tracy Walker, Lemont school, Lemont, took second with: "Americanism is the love of Americans for their country. This love may be so strong that Americans may fight until death to protect their country from fanatics and other enemies."

"Americanism is the highest form of loyalty, honesty, love, and citizenship a man is able to perform and possess for his country, America," wrote Helen Stubing, Alsip school, District 126, third winner.

The famous Gilbert Stuart portrait of George Washington, valued at $75,000, made a trip in an armored truck from the Art institute to the Union League club yesterday, to be placed under guard in the main lobby. The picture was purchased in 1924 by the pennies of 200,000 school children and other contributors.

Among Private Observances.

Prominent among the private patriotic observances will be the luncheon of the Daughters of the American Revolution tomorrow in the Stevens hotel, where Dr. Gordon Keith Chalmers, president of Rockford college, will speak on "American Conservatism."

What is termed as an old fashioned, patriotic revival will be held at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow by the Elks lodge of Chicago and twenty-one lodges from cities and towns in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. This demonstration is intended to awaken members to the workings of communism and radicalism, according to Frank Jacobson, chairman of the Americanization committee of Chicago lodge, No. 4.

A motion picture on Washington for children will be given by the Field Museum of Natural History at 10 and 11 a. m. tomorrow. Admission is free.

Auctions His Farm Goods; 3 Robbers Take Proceeds

Preparing to move to another neighborhood, Henry C. Bartelt held a public auction of household and farm goods yesterday at his home near Youngsdale, six miles southwest of Elgin. Late in the afternoon Bartelt counted up the receipts, $168 cash and $1,200 in checks. Just as he finished his counting three robbers arrived in an automobile, held up Bartelt, his wife, two daughters, and several neighbors who were present, and fled with both cash and checks.

TWO ARE KILLED AS CAR CRASHES INTO COAL TRUCK

Three Injured; Drivers Are Held for Quiz.

Two men were killed and three persons injured yesterday when the driver of a heavy sedan was unable to stop his car on the slippery pavemen at Augusta street and Hoyne avenue, and it crashed sidewise into a coal truck, the driver of which, the police say, ignored a stop sign.

The dead, both of whom were riding in the sedan, were Isadore J. Goldman, 25 years old, 1930 North Richmond street, an attorney with an office at 10 North Clark street, and Jesse Siers, 35 years old, 3568 Wabansia avenue, a gasoline station attendant.

Woman Fatally Injured.

The death of Goldman, Siers, and two others yesterday brought the 1935 Cook county motor toll to 121. Within the Chicago city limits 99 had been killed this year up until 4 p. m. yesterday and 1,950 injured.

Yesterday's other victims:

Mrs. Alice Anderson, 70 years old, 4124 Jackson boulevard. Fatally injured last night when she was struck by an automobile driven by Leroy Craft, 36 years old, 1206 South Home avenue, Berwyn, in front of 4149 Jackson boulevard. Mrs. Anderson died in the Garfield Park hospital.

Mrs. Paulina Benkoske, 73 years old, 3605 North Oakley avenue. Died in the Martha Washington hospital of injuries incurred Friday when she was struck by an automobile at Addison street and Irving avenue. Roy Soronsen, 26 years old, 6217 Eddy street, drived of the car, was notified to attend an inquest today.

Police pointed out that an accident such as the one in which Goldman and Siers died would be impossible on an elevated highway, since there would be no cross-trafic.

Those injured in the crash of the sedan and coal truck are Leonard Reinhart, 22 years old, 3504 West North avenue, driver of the sedan; Theodore Biedrzycki, 28 years old, 3448 Pierce avenue, and Mrs. Barbara Cable, 32 years old. The two men were lacerated and bruised, and the woman incurred a possible skull fracture. All were riding in the sedan.

Two Held for Inquest.

Reinhart and Nathaniel Ball, 32 years old, colored, 229 North Maplewood avenue, driver of the truck, are being held by the West North avenue police for the inquest this morning. Park Policeman Alfred Lombardi reported Ball failed to stop before starting to drive across the boulevard, but other witnesses contradicted this. Ball is employed by the Bellows Fuel company, 1900 Carroll avenue.

Both machines bore 1934 license plates, the one driven by Reinhart, but owned by Goldman carrying license No. 37-765, and the truck carrying license No. 12-148.

BOY KNIFES HIS BABY BROTHER; 'HEX' IS BLAMED

Williamsport, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The mystic "Hex" flung its weird shadow over central Pennsylvania again today while authorities pushed an investigation of the slashing of a baby boy by his older brother.

Eight month old James Leroy Fritz is in a hospital, his forehead slashed by a butcher knife. His head also bears the unhealed scar of a penknife cut, inflicted Sunday night. Physicians said he has a fair chance for recovery.

District Attorney John C. Youngman said the baby was attacked by John Fritz Jr., 5, after the older boy had been pronounced "cured by faith" of a spell for which his father blamed "unfriendly neighbors."

A "woman witch doctor" called by the parents to their Sallasasburg home, 15 miles from here, had wrought the "cure" with a mumbled ritual, Youngman said.

The parents stole to a window to watch—and, Youngman said he was told, they saw the boy slash his brother again, this time with a butcher knife. They rushed in to find the baby bleeding and his brother crouching behind the kitchen stove.

LETTERS DELUGE N. J. GOVERNOR ON HAUPTMANN CASE

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—While counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, outwardly harmonious after yesterday's serious rift, made plans to meet here tomorrow to arrange further steps in their appeal from the prisoner's conviction for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, Gov. Harold G. Hoffman revealed today he has already received 124 letters containing pleas for a new trial or commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.

The letters represent all shades of opinion, he said, although some were obviously written by cranks. Some expressed opposition to capital punishment while others described dreams and visions which, they said, convinced them of Hauptmann's innocence.

The conference to be held by the defense counsel tomorrow was arranged after Mrs. Hauptmann, the prisoner's wife, had pleaded yesterday for harmony after Lloyd Fisher and Frederick Pope, New Jersey lawyers, expressed in no uncertain terms their opinion of Edward J. Reilly, the Brooklyn attorney who headed the defense at the trial.

NEW VITAMIN B TREATMENT FOR INSANE PLANNED

Elgin Patients Will Undergo Tests.

A new series of tests to determine the powers of vitamin B in combating insanity will be started at the Elgin State hospital on March 1.

Much interest was aroused a few weeks ago when it was announced that scientists at Columbia university had discovered a way to synthesize this vitamin in pure form and unlimited quantities.

Dr. Charles F. Read of the hospital staf said yesterday that the results of the previous tests, which ended on Nov. 15, were rather inconclusive.

New Tests More Severe.

The new series will be much more closely restricted to give a better basis for certainty of the value of the vitamin treatment.

For these tests, 50 patients, all between 25 and 35 years old, two-thirds men and the rest women, will be chosen to take the vitamin. A similar group at the same time will be under observation, but will not be given the substance.

It is believed that after a year under such conditions it will be possible to get a clear evaluation of the treatment.

Draw Definite Age Limit.

In the previous tests, the vitamin was given to 95 patients. But these were of various age groups and had been mentally ill for various terms. Under the new setup only persons whose mental illness is of less than five years' standing will be observed. Dosage for those getting the vitamin will be increased.

Directing the experiment, which is under the sponsorship of the Otho Sprague foundation, will be Dr. H. Gideon Wells. Associated with him will be Dr. Read, Dr. Siegfried Mauer and Dr. Eva R. Balken.

PRESENT AWARD TO CLEVELANDER FOR ENGINEERING

Ambrose Swasey, of the Warner & Swasey company, Cleveland, O., was presented with the Washington award for 1935, the highest of engineering honors, at a dinner last night in the Hotel La Salle. Mr. Swasey, who is 86 years old, was named for the award by a commission from the five leading engineering societies. He was cited for his contribution to engineering as a "builder of instruments, institutons, and men."

The Washington award is given each year to an engineer selected in recognition of his "devoted, unselfish, and preëminent service in advancing human progress." The award is a large bronze plaque framed in marble.

Dr. Phillip Fox, director of the Adler planetarium, told the assembled engineers of Mr. Swasey's "setting the pace for precision engineering by building the finest of precision instruments." D. J. Brumley, chairman of the commission of award and presiding officer, read the citation of Mr. Swasey. The plaque was presented by Charles C. Whittier, president of the Western Society of Engineers.

Suspend Two Policemen for Beating Suspect Pair

FIST IS GAVEL FOR THE BOSS OF RHODE ISLAND

Quinn Smiles and Gets What He Wants.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Providence, R. I., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Lieut. Gov. Robert E. Quinn, the new political boss of the sovereign state of Rhode Island, presided smilingly today at a decidedly informal and very brief session of the state senate. Mr. Quinn wore a snappily tailored black and white checked suit with tie of brilliant hue. His blue eyes twinkled.

Mr. Quinn engineered the now famous coup d'etat of last Jan. 2 when a Republican senate was transformed in two minutes into a Democratic senate, a Republican Supreme court was swept out of existence and replaced by a court with a Democratic majority, eighty commissions [Republican] abolished and a number of high Republican officials deposed, all in the total elapsed time of less than two hours.

Quinn Explains Quick Action.

"Mr. Quinn," this reporter asked innocently after watching the state senators enjoy themselves for half an hour and then adjourn for the day, "why was it necessary to do all those things that first day of the session when the senate has done practically nothing since?"

"Well, now, I'll tell you," Mr. Quinn said with engaging candor, "some of our lawyers have said that it all had to be done on the first day under the law, but I don't take any stock in that. The main reason was that the people had instructed the Democratic party to take over the government and we decided that the thing to do was go ahead and do it and get it over with."

"Did the people say to throw the entire Supreme court out?" he was asked.

Would Avert Another Change.

"Not," he added, reflectively, "that I think it's a good idea that a legislature should be able to wipe out a Supreme court. I guess this is the only state in the Union where that can be done. We are going to fix up the law so that it can't be done again."

Mr. Quinn grinned at the reporter. He did not say it, but it was obviously to be taken for granted that with the Democrats ruling the high court it was a very wise thing to arrange matters so that that status of affairs should continue if the Republicans should regain control.

Mr. Quinn is a very likable fellow. He is slated to be the Democratic nominee for governor in 1936, Gov. Theodore F. Green having his eye on the United States senate. Mr. Quinn, according to the political experts, is the real power in Rhode Island politics at present.

Not All Parliamentarian.

Mr. Quinn is known as a rough and tumble fighter and handy with his dukes, as his boys say. On one occasion, it is related, when Mr. Quinn did not wish the senate to come to order, a clerk, Republican appointed, started to call the roll. Mr. Quinn, it is said, knocked the clerk unconscious with a very neat right to the chin. And again, when a senator insisted on speaking after he had been denied the floor, Mr. Quinn descended from the rostrum and laid the senator low.

His handling of the senate on that momentous day last January probably will go down as one of the smoothest pieces of work in political history, his admirers say.

Mr. Quinn waved genially to Senator William G. Troy. Some years ago it was Senator Troy's misfortune to make a remark which was deemed contemptuous by the Supreme court which forthwith suspended the senator from the practice of law for two years. It was the senator's pleasure last Jan. 2 to introduce the resolution removing from office the five members of the court who had punished him.

Gov. Green Blueblooded.

"The trouble with this state," Mr. Quinn concluded the interview, "is that it's been run by the bluebloods for too long. The people are going to take a hand in things from now on."

Of deepest azure is the hue of the blood which flows in the veins of Mr. Quinn's nominal superior, Gov. Green. The governor, unlike Mr. Quinn, was not available for interviewing at a moment's notice, but certain information was gathered about him.

Gov. Green is a corporation lawyer, the heir to great wealth. He has aspired to political office for many years. He first saw his hopes realized in 1932 when he was elected to his first term as governor. His family is one of the oldest in a state of old families. He was graduated from Brown and Harvard universities and studied abroad. He was instructor of Roman law at Brown. He has a real estate business, a large interest in a loan association, and was a member of the board of directors of one of the largest textile firms in the state. One of his platform planks is the correction of abuses in that industry.

Quinn Knows His Wants.

There is a certain amount of coolness between the governor and Quinn. The latter has stated bluntly that he is going to grab the gubernatorial nomination in 1936, even though Green does not get the senatorial nomination he covets.

The governor, according to observers, has something of a Napoleonic complex. He has a large bust of himself on his desk facing him. In the 1932 campaign he published a full page advertisment in the newspapers showing himself stripped to the waist, wrestling, carrying a big rock, and playing tennis. Let these photographs, the advertisment stated, disprove all scurrilous rumors, spread by various political enemies, concerning the governor's virile manhood. Gov. Green was immediately dubbed "Tarzan of the Apes" by these same vicious adversaries.

His record, the newspaper men covering the executive assert, is inconsistent. He vetoed a $1,200 pension for a state employé who had served 45 years, on the ground that pensions should not be granted individually. After the five Supreme court judges had been awarded $8,000 pensions as some balm for being summarily removed from office, the reporters reminded him of his former statement.

"Well," said the governor, "these matters must be considered in the light of certain circumstances."

One of "Abolished" Talks.

The reporter found Frederick S. Peck, the Republican leader of the state, in his real estate office, gazing somewhat gloomily out the window. Mr. Peck, as chairman of the finance committee and state finance commissioner since 1916, had ruled the state's financial policies. His was one of the first offices abolished in the great purge of Jan. 2.

"The whole proceeding was illegal," he declared. "Why, the senators didn't even bother to take their oaths that day. The clerk mumbled something, but no one even raised his hand or acknowledged the oath. They were too busy thinking about the big job to be done.

"I shudder to think of what will happen to the state finances," Mr. Peck added. "It was all a most ruthless violation of the law."

"But," he concluded sadly, "the people don't seem to give a damn."

Rhode Island is in for some bad times, a majority of persons questioned declared. There has been no rioting since last September when three were killed and many injured after the National Guard had been called out to quell disturbances caused by strikers in the textile mills. The main reason for the cessation of hostilities has been the fact that many mills have closed down and the workers are thinking more about holding their jobs than of striking for more wages.

The state government is in comparatively good shape financially because it has been benefited by large inheritance taxes, observers said. The proportion of large fortunes to the population which is only 687,000, is very large. Again and again, when the state has been slipping into the red, the settlement of some large estate, with its attendant large inheritance tax, has helped pull the government out of the financial mire. But the big estates are becoming fewer in number, it was pointed out.

PUSHES BATTLE ON INCOME TAX PUBLICITY LAW

Calls "Pink Slips" Aid to Racketeers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Repeal of the "pink slip" or publicity section of the income tax law was urged in the house of representatives today. Representative Robert L. Bacon demanded passage of his bill erasing this feature in order to protect private citizens from racketeers and kidnapers.

Bacon pointed out that the "pink slip" legislation was not in the 1934 revenue measure as originally reported to the house, and was enacted in the closing days of the session after it had come over from the senate. He said that resentment was rapidly growing.

Mother Worried About Children.

"And I get letters from widows and mothers who are worried that their children may be kidnaped," said Representative Florence P. Kahn [Rep., Cal.].

"When are these reform things going to end?" asked Gifford.

At the same time a petition against the statute, which requires all persons filing personal income tax returns to give written statements of their private incomes for posting in postoffices, was sent to congress by the Sentinels of the Republic, of which Raymond Pitcairn is national chairman.

Called Food for Gossips.

"The practice of no free nation requires such exposure of the private affairs of citizens to satisfy the morbid curiosity of the envious and of gossips," the petition stated.

Untold injury would result not only for citizens of large means but greater hardship would be worked on citizens of modest means, the Sentinels continued.

Repeal of the pink slip section was put up to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau by Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the house ways and means committee. The cabinet member was asked for his views and recommendations.

At 93 He Will Be Citizen, but Voted for Years

Monroe, Mich., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—His allegiance to the German government of Adolf Hitler was foresworn in the Circuit court here today by John Menzel, who will be 91 years old next June. Born in Germany in 1844, Menzel came to America in 1884. Until the world war he voted, he said, only learning then he was not a citizen. In two more years, when he is 93, he will receive his final citizenship papers.

CHARGE MELLON SOLD SHORT TO EVADE TAXATION

Personal Fortune Near a Hundred Millions.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Government attorneys hurled a charge of short selling at Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, today at a hearing before three members of the board of tax appeals, at which his personal fortune was placed at close to $100,000,000.

These were only two of the high points of the cross-examination of the 79 year old capitalist's financial secretary by Robert H. Jackson in the proceedings which ultimately will determine whether Mr. Mellon owes the government more than $3,000,000 in back taxes and penalties for fraud or is entitled to a $139,000 refund for overpayment.

Under Mr. Jackson's questioning Howard M. Johnson, the bespectacled and uneasy financial secretary who held directorships in a dozen Mellon owned companies, testified that his employer never had sworn to his 1931 income tax return, which is in dispute, nor for that matter given it more than a cursory glance when he signed it.

Consulted with Attorney.

Mr. Johnson testified also that in preparing his employer's income tax return he consulted frequently with D. D. Sheppard, a former employé of the internal revenue bureau, who left the government service to become Mr. Mellon's tax attorney in 1927. Although no longer a government employé, Mr. Johnson admitted, Mr. Sheppard continued to occupy an office in the treasury building with ready access to Mr. Mellon's office as long as the latter was secretary.

The charge that Mr. Mellon had increased his wealth and reduced his tax liability by two short transactions in March, 1931, while he still was a member of former President Hoover's cabinet, was made by Mr. Jackson immediately after the secretary had concluded his direct examination by asserting that at the close of 1931 the secretary of the treasury had in his portfolio securities which if sold would have resulted in a $15,000,000 loss.

As soon as Frank J. Hogan, Mr. Mellon's chief counsel had completed his examination, Mr. Jackson directed the attention of the witness to an account Mr. Mellon carried with the brokerage firm of Moore, Leonard & Lynch under the designation "Account No. 48." The transcript of the account showed that on March 18, 1931, Mr. Mellon sold 2,500 shares of Westinghouse Electric "short."

Profits on Deal.

The shares were sold, the account disclosed, for $220,437.50. When Mr. Mellon went into the market on April 2, 1931, to "cover" his short position he bought 2,500 shares of Westinghouse for $148,187.50, making a profit on the deal of $72,250.

Between March 18 and the end of that month Mr. Mellon again took a "short" position on 2,500 shares of Westinghouse which he sold for $226,150, the brokerage account disclosed. He did not go into the market to "cover" on this transaction, but took the stock out of his portfolio.

Reporting this transaction, he claimed a loss of $68,302.25 on his income tax return for 1931, fixing the value of the stock he used to cover his short transaction at $294,450, the price he had paid for it in 1929. Thus the two transactions served at once to increase his wealth and reduce his tax liability, Mr. Jackson contended.

Sales "Against Box."

Mr. Johnson tried to explain that the transactions were not really short sales at all but sales "against the box," inasmuch as Mr. Mellon had some 11,000 shares of Westinghouse "in his pouch" all the time.

"Do you mean that Mr. Mellon while he was secretary of the treasury was selling securities he didn't own and then covering them later?" he demanded.

"Mr. Mellon," the soft voiced secretary answered, "sold through his broker stock that he didn't have in the brokerage account, but he had in his pouch more than twice as much as he sold."

"Wasn't it entered on the broker's account as a short position?" Mr. Jackson pressed.

"Yes," said Mr. Johnson.

"And that account shows a profit of over $70,000 on that short position as a member of the cabinet in the panic year of 1931; isn't that so?" shouted Mr. Jackson.

It was recalled that at the time of the alleged short sales Mr. Hoover was trying to rally the sagging securities market and denouncing short selling as a business practice running counter to the nation's welfare.

Describes Signing of Return.

Mr. Johnson's description of the manner in which Mr. Mellon's 1931 income tax return was prepared, signed, and attested by a notary provided the government attorney with additional ammunition.

Mr. Johnson testified he saw Mr. Mellon long enough to assure him that his income tax return was made out properly and to get him to affix his signature to it. Mr. Johnson said he later realized that both he and Mr. Mellon had neglected to have the signature attested by a notary. In the Mellon offices was a young woman employé who knew the signature of the financier and who also was a notary public. She attested that Mr. Mellon had sworn he had examined the return and found it to be correct, although Mr. Johnson admitted that such was not the case.

V. A. CHRISTGAU RESIGNS FROM NEW DEAL AAA

Act Is Protest Against Loss of Rank.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Victor A. Christgau, New Deal radical, who was swept from his position as No. 2 man of the Agricultural Adjustment administration in that department's recent house cleaning involving seven left wingers, today submitted his resignation to AAA Administrator Chester Davis as a protest against his demotion.

VICTOR A. CHRISTGAU.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said he was attempting to persuade the former Minnesota congressman to withdraw the resignation. Davis said he had not accepted the resignation, but Christgau declared it stood.

Secretary Wallace refused to discuss the circumstances which led to Christgau's action, declaring there are "some things I don't care to blare from the housetops."

Wallace Admits Friction.

Wallace indicated, however, that there was "some irritation" between Christgau and A. H. Lauterbach, chief of the AAA dairy section, over the milk policy. He also indicated that "the friction" which led to the purge of the radical protégés of Undersecretary Rexford Guy Tugwell, No. 1 brain truster, was present in Christgau's relations with other department members.

"I prefer to keep Vic," Wallace said. "I'm still urging him to stay. I think he has done an excellent job. I don't think it would be fair to Vic or to us to discuss matters which led to the resignation."

Christgau before the AAA housecleaning was assistant administrator and chief of the commodities division of the AAA.

Tugwell Resignation Hinted.

Christgau's move revived reports that Tugwell will resign shortly because his influence in AAA affairs has been curtailed through the ouster and demotion of his protégés.

Secretary Wallace was asked if Tugwell was not devoting more time to other phases of the New Deal than to his duties in the department of agriculture.

"Tugwell has an unusual position with the New Deal," Secretary Wallace said. "He is particularly interested in its social aspects."

"Would you say he is the roving interpreter of the New Deal?" Wallace was asked.

"You might call him that," was the secretary's reply.

ILLINOIS FARM GROUP TO OPEN SESSION TODAY

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—The fortieth annual state meeting of the Illinois Farmers Institute and Department of Household Science will open here tomorrow.

The convention will continue through Saturday. The feature of the meeting tomorrow will be an address by Dr. Moredecai Ezekiel, brain trust adviser to the secretary of agriculture and associate director in the planning division of the AAA. Dr. Ezekiel will discuss "Land and Agricultural Planning."

The afternoon's program, tomorrow, will highlight Prof. J. C. Hackleman of the University of Illinois, director of the National Crop association; Prof. W. P. Flint of the University of Illinois, chief entomologist of the state natural history survey, and Dr. J. R. Holbert, senior agronomist, United States department of agriculture.

NEW AAA PLANS HIT BY LEADERS AT FARM PARLEY

'Autocratic, Dangerous' Powers Cited.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Dangerous, arbitrary, and autocratic powers over farmers, manufacturers, and distributors of farm products are concealed in the "adroitly worded" amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment act.

This report was made today by the legislative committee of the agricultural industries conference after a study of the amendments.

The report found that the amendments would give Secretary of Agriculture Wallace far broader powers than the set of amendments proposed last year. The proposals of a year ago were defeated by a group of senators on the ground that they would permit the licensing of farmers.

New Ones More Rigorous.

Casual reading of the present amendments would give the impression that farmers would be exempt from licensing, but in reality they would subject farmers to more rigorous control than was contemplated a year ago, the committee said. Farmers who do not sign allocation and crop restriction contracts may be entirely without a market, it was said.

The committee cited the provision that the AAA may require that a licensed processor purchase only from those who sign contracts. In this event the situation of the nonsigner was characterized as hopeless. The committee pointed out that of 1,100,000 corn-hog producers, only 495,510 signed in 1934, and one-third of the latter voted against continuation of the program in 1935.

The amendments make no provision for the farmer to express himself in the matter of licenses, but contain provisions for price control, markets, production and purchasing, the study said. These provisions, the committee found, through indirect restriction of the farmer's market, are equivalent to a licensing of the farmer.

Would Direct Whole Life.

"Not only would the individual operations of a particular farmer be subject to control, but the entire economic life of the communities could be directed from Washington," the committee said.

"Certainly the experience of the last few years caused by the injection of politics in agriculture and business must lead to careful thought concerning a measure which would subject individuals to a changing, uncontroled and possibly irresponsible administration."

The amendments would give the department power over 110,000 processors and manufacturers, 62,500 wholesalers, and 911,000 retailers in its broadest interpretation, the committee said.

The full extent of the powers contemplated give Secretary Wallace control not only over the destiny of the packing industry, but over thousands of dealers, it was declared.

The committee found that Wallace, a political appointee, had "unthinkable power" over the food, clothing, and staple commodities of over 120 million persons.

The fact that the constitutionality of such power may be questioned will not deter Wallace from pressing its passage, the survey stated.

The committee answered the argument of proponents of the legislation that the full powers will not be exercised by stating that it is an obviously dangerous principle to grant great powers upon such an assumption.

"Any official who received broad control with authority to fix prices will soon be under tremendous pressure from organized groups to impose a particular requirement that will bring momentary selfish advantage to the pressing group," the committee said. "It is not the intent of the proposed amendments but their actual wording which would be enacted into law."

SHEARER RAGES; DENIES CHARGES OF DEATH THREAT

Ex-Geneva Lobbyist Stirs Munitions Inquiry.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—William B. Shearer, big navy propagandist once credited with breaking up an international naval parley at Geneva in 1927, sprang from his seat today at a senate committee hearing. He resented testimony that he had threatened his former employers with death and scandal. Shearer charged half way down a committee room alle, demanding the "full story."

The munitions inquiry committee told him to sit down. He did so, but later told newspaper men he had not made the threats described.

"I have demanded to be called as a witness to tell the whole story," Shearer said.

Senator Bennett Clark [Dem., Mo.] was reading from a senate committee report of 1930, and came to a statement by Clinton L. Bardo, then president of the New York Shipbuilding company, as to a conversation between Bardo and Shearer. It said Shearer had threatened a scandal rivaling "Tea Pot Dome." Placing that conversation, in April of 1928, Bardo's statement said, Shearer threatened to kill S. W. Wakeman, then president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company.

Charges Threat to Shoot.

To "shoot him down like any other dog in the street," was the term used. Shearer's anger, Bardo's statement related, was due to a dispute over pay.

Previously Senator Clark had brought out during the questioning of Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, that Ferguson's company and possibly the Bethlehem and New York Shipbuilding Corporations had paid several thousand dollars to Shearer, some of it after the time of the alleged threat.

"Did you know of this conversation at the time the New York and Newport News yards were making payments to Shearer?" Senator Clark asked Ferguson.

"I heard of it later," Ferguson replied.

"Why did you continue paying?" Clark pressed. "What was Shearer doing for you?"

"I don't remember definitly," Ferguson said. Previously he had testified Shearer was doing publicity work for the New York office of the company.

Shearer Makes Denials.

Shearer told newspaper men he had testified at the senate naval affairs hearings in 1930 that no such threat was made. He said the Hoover administration blamed him for breakdown of the Geneva conference.

PETITION HITLER TO SAVE TWO MEN SPIES FROM AX

Hope Seen in Reaction to Execution of Women.

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Two more German spies doomed to death may be spared the headsman's ax, it was indicated tonight.

Petitions asking clemency for the two, both of them men, have been presented to Reichsfuelier Adolf Hitler, it is understood, and favorable action was regarded as likely because of the sensation that greeted the execution of Baroness Benita von Berg and Renate von Natzmer, noblewomen who were beheaded Monday.

A spokesman for the minister of justice, meanwhile, denied that the two men, who are prisoners in the death cells of Ploetzensee prison from which tradition has it none emerges alive and free, had any connection with the women. Their names have not yet been revealed. It was learned, however, that one is a former naval technician.

Denies 54 Spies Trapped.

An official in the propaganda ministry also denied reports published abroad that 54 German spies had been trapped in foreign countries through the activities of Baron George von Sosnowski, Polish nobleman, who with Irene von Jena has been sentenced to life imprisonment as ringleader in the espionage plot.

"We don't have that many spies," he said. "Sosnowski, in any case, was engaged in espionage in factories and the reichswehr [regular army]."

The ministry of justice spokesman also asserted no further trials are pending in connection with the Sosnowski espionage ring.

Until Hitler sends his official order to the executioner to don his top hat, tails and white gloves and make ready his medieval ax, the two men spies may cling to their hope that Der Feuhrer will step in to save them.

While the women spies were tried in a star chamber session of the dread People's court, whose sentences must be carried out no later than 48 hours after the verdict is handed down, the two men were tried several weeks ago in regular court, the sentences of which do not become effective for 99 days.

Two Women Buried.

The bodies of Baroness von Berg and Frau von Natzmer were laid to rest this morning in Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial cemetery.

The funerals were the simplest which had long been witnessed in that aristocratic burying ground. The ceremony of burial took only twenty minutes including the short obsequies in the cemetery's chapel.

Only six members of the family of the baroness and a Protestant pastor attended her rites. A lone man mourned for Frau von Natzmer. A few spectators watched from a distance. After the coffins were lowered into the ground, the little family group stood around in a few minutes of silent prayer.

The pit for the body of the baroness was dug next to the vault of the family of Baron von Richthofen, the German world war ace aviator, who was distantly related to the spy's family.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Winston Churchill returns from Africa to find the fortunes of war have followed him to England, and he embarks on a successful political career. Influential friends, he declares in today's instalment, help him in his climb.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

When I was taken prisoner after the fight round the wreck of the armored train, I regarded it as a great personal disaster ending altogether my chances of making a reputation in the South African war. In fact, however, by my escape I became at once a popular figure. The great reception which awaited me at Durban was only a prelude to those which I was afterwards to receive in England when, eight months later, after the fall of Pretoria I returned home. I had already made an unsuccessful attempt to enter parliament in the Oldham election in the summer of 1899. But now the townspeople and cotton operatives of that Lancashire constituency, without distinction of class or party, gave me a triumphal welcome, and I was soon after eagerly pressed to be a candidate of the Conservative party.

He Wins Election.

Although the war was by no means finished and a long costly guerilla campaign followed the close of the main operations, the government decided to have a general election in the early autumn of 1900. In those days the elections were spread over four or five weeks instead of, as now, being all on one day. It happened that Oldham was almost the first to poll, and my victory displacing Mr. Runciman, afterwards a distinguished minister, was the herald of the 'Khaki' victory.

I found myself immediately a 'star turn.' From every part of the country came demands for my services, to deliver the wind-up address at the greatest meetings. Accordingly, for a month I was hurried to and fro across the length and breadth of England by the party organizers and everywhere filled to overflowing the largest halls. By this time I had learned to speak sufficiently well, and also to make the same speech over and over again with suitable local and topical variations. It seemed to me that I had very great successes, being everywhere received with enthusiasm and often having six or seven old established members of parliament sitting dutifully behind me on my platform. I was twenty-five, and I certainly felt the world had opened up very quickly for me.

I did not see any reason why my fortune should not continue to broaden at the same rate. Certainly there were very few positions of action or responsibility which I should not have been ready to accept. I remembered that Mr. Pitt had been prime minister at twenty-four and that Napoleon had commanded the army in Italy at twenty-six. And how did I know I was not as good as they? Such is youth!

The Youthful View.

I had no patience with those who said that it was a mistake for young men to get on too quickly, and that it was much better for them to have a long succession of prizes to strive for one after the other, as they advanced step by step. On the contrary I wanted to come to the top at once and manage things as they ought to be managed. However, here I am at sixty, while all this mismanagement is still going on!

There was another extremely important respect in which my fortunes were improved, by my South African adventures. Young people not infrequently suffer peculiarly from the want of money. I had no money but what I earned from month to month and no worldly possessions of any kind except the clothes I wore. How could I then maintain myself in parliament and devote myself to public affairs? I think I may truly say with Bobbie Burns that I needed money.

"Not for the gear that money buys,
nor for the train attendant;

My escape from the Boers conferred this blessing upon me. I received over £2,000 apart from my expenses from the Morning Post for my work as their war correspondent. A lecture tour throughout England and over a large part of the United States, yielded over £6,000, and my books on the various campaigns another £2,000 or £3,000. By the beginning of 1901 I had nearly £10,000 in my possession. I thought that would enable me to live as I required for a good many years to come.

I had only myself to consider and my personal expenses were not great. I, therefore, gave up journalistic work and lectured no more. I could thus give my whole time to my parliamentary duties and to political work. I had no need to take up any profession or engage myself to any person, or join the board of any company, or dabble in any kind of business. I had no need to be a respecter of persons or of institutions. I could criticize any one I chose and attack any vested interest that seemed abusive. I took great pride in this, especially when I saw how many members of parliament were quite honorably tied up in this way or that, or could not always afford to deal with public questions on their merits. I rejoiced in being a free lance responsible only to my constituency. In this spirit I addressed myself to my house of commons work.

John Morley, member of parliament, who, largely because of his friendship with Winston Churchill's father, helped the young writer in his political career, which is described in today's instalment of his autobiography.

I soon found, however, that the Tory party viewed my independence with limited satisfaction. My maiden speech was a great success—all maiden speeches are. But when in the summer of 1901 I began to plead the cause of economy and to criticize army expenditure from the conservative benches, I encountered many black looks. I must admit that from the beginning I found myself very powerfully impressed by the leading members of the opposition. Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain, the most important ministers, always treated me with the greatest kindness and I met them both very frequently at dinners or at week-end parties in what was then still a brilliant London society.

Friendship with Rosebery.

But in those days it was Lord Rosebery and still more Mr. John Morley who claimed my admiration. Rosebery was then considered our greatest public orator. Besides this he had high prestige as a writer. I remembered to have heard my father say that his study of the younger Pitt was a literary gem. He soon honored me by his friendship, invited me frequently to stay with him at the Durdans or at Mentmore, or again in Scotland, and also to dinner and luncheon at his house in Berkeley Square.

He was at that time adrift from party, disliking the Tories from upbringing, and having quarreled with the Liberals on the war. He had no real political backing but every one looked up to him as a great statesman and many were the hopes and wishes that he would form a national party combining patriotism and empire with an ardent resolve to better the conditions of the working people and sweep away abuses. All this interested me keenly. Nevertheless, I valued his society mainly for its non-political qualities. He had a vast and profound knowledge of history and to hear him talk about it was an education. His judgment on the great men of the past and its turning points, his fund of historical anecdotes and oddities, his comprehension of the foundations of Europe seemed to throw a new and revealing light upon modern affairs.

In these days he had incurred Liberal censure by criticizing the British entente with France. The Tories all supported this because it was the policy of their government. The Liberals supported it because it looked like making friends with a neighbor with whom we had had so many differences. But Rosebery always believed that England joined with France and Russia would divide Europe into camps of equal strngth, and that this was much more likely to lead to war than to peace.

We can see now that he was right about this. There is no doubt that from the moment the triple alliance of Germany, Austria and Italy found itself faced by the so-called triple entente, all the conditions for a great trial of strength were present. On the other hand we must not forget that if England had continued to side with Germany or maintained herself in 'splendid isolation' we might soon have been confronted with the overwhelming Germany mastery of Europe. And what would have happened then?

In recording Lord Rosebery's prescience I must not be understood to accept his view. I have always held that England must be on the opposite side to the strongest European power, and must take part in resisting the military domination of the continent particularly of the low countries by any one.

SETTLEMENT ON ENZO'S 1ST WIFE OF $17,000 BARED

Apparently thoroughly reconciled, the two announced they would stop over in Rome, hoping to proceed to Cannes as soon as Fiermonte gets his confiscated passport back.

Friends said tonight Mrs. Fiermonte had settled 200,000 lire [approximately $17,000] on Fiermonte's first wife, from whom he was divorced, and their child.

At Rome the boxer's mother said Fiermonte believed his troubles soon would be straightened out and his papers returned.

SETH PARKER TO REACH SAMOA FRIDAY IN TOW

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The American schooner Seth Parker, disabled in the South Pacific Feb. 11, wirelessed today she expected to reach Tutuila, American Samoa, Friday in tow of the United States navy tug Ontario.

On board the Seth Parker are Phillips Lord, radio performer and master of the schooner, with four crew members. Nine others of the crew were taken off Feb. 11 by the Australian cruiser Australia, which had responded a second time to distress calls for assistance during a hurricane.

The Ontario, which put out from the naval base at Tutuila Feb. 11, reached the Seth Parker about 800 miles to the east at 9:30 p. m. last Thursday. At noon today the Seth Parker was 180 miles east of Tutuila.

FILM PLAYERS FLEE FIRE IN EARLY MORNING

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Scores of film colony tenants, some scantily clad, were driven into the street here early today when fire destroyed the upper stories and roof of the fashionable seven story Voltaire apartments in the Laurel Canyon section.

Before it was extinguished, the blaze had cost the life of a fireman and caused damage estimated between $150,000 and $200,000.

Among the film notables who escaped from the building were Kathlyn Williams and Alan Hale, Margaret Ettinger and Ross Shattuck, Player's agents, and Marcella Knapp, of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer casting office.

Maureen O'Sullivan rushed from an adjoining apartment building, and John Farrow, writer, dashed up the street from another apartment in time to rescue his automobile from the Voltaire garage.

SIMON LAKE TO HAVE TRY AT 4 MILLION CARGO

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Although he has "no proof that there's a dollar down there," Simon Lake, submarine designer and salvage engineer, hopes to attempt next week the recovery of the cargo of the British ship Hussar, sunk in the East river in 1780.

According to legend, the Hussar carried 4 million dollars brought from England to pay British troops, when she sank in Hell Gate.

Several attempts have been made to salvage the Hussar's cargo, but none has succeeded, largely due to the strong currents.

Frees Albert Z. Halperin of Contempt Over Debt

A contempt citation against Albert Z. Halperin, 3800 Sheridan road, once wealthy real estate dealer, for nonpayment of a $6,095 judgment to the Credit Clearing House Adjustment corporation, was dismissed yesterday by Municipal Judge N. J. Bonelli. The debt was for unpaid rent on restaurant and liquor store at Milwaukee and North avenues which Halperin leased in 1927. At a previous hearing Halperin testified he had long before disposed of his interest, that he was clerking in the store for $20 a week, and that he could not pay.

MOUNT VERNON

11 TO 12 YEARS OLD!

One of the very few great prohibition-aged whiskies you can still buy

MOUNT VERNON (at any bonded age) is just about the most delicious whiskey ever Maryland-made from choice rye kernels.

When you get it 11 and 12 years in wood, you have a rye of unprecedented richness and rarity.

So you'd better go right down today, if you want to put some by for special future events.

The same, incidentally, holds true of several proud old pre-prohibition bourbons, still to be found, here and there, on the shelves of dealers, namely—

All were held by special government permit for medicinal use during the years of prohibition.

And all are just about gone.

So we sincerely urge prompt action if you desire some.

SENATE ASSAILS RELIEF SYSTEM, PRAISES BOARD

Distinction Made Plain by Speakers.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Repercussions from yesterday's investigation of the administration of relief in Illinois were heard today in the upper house of the general assembly.

The fracas started with a resolution introduced by Senator W. H. Hickman [Dem., Paris], commending members of the Illinois emergency relief commission for their "unselfish services to the public."

It was adopted by a vote of 22 to 7, but only after several senators had expressed fears that their votes would be misunderstood as praising the system as well as the commission.

Called "Fools' Paradise."

"We are living in a 'fools' paradise' in this relief situation," said Senator R. Wallace Karraker [Dem., Jonesboro]. "Everywhere there is growing dissatisfaction. I feel that the commission should be commended for its efforts, but I do not want to have any part in praising the relief system.

"When I see the relief burden augmented and encouraged, I see a group causing a cancer in the body politic. Everything I see in relief is flying a red flag. We are heading for more trouble."

Senator James Barbour [Rep., Evanston], called yesterday's investigation a "disgraceful" spectacle and said that no progress could be made by throwing mud at persons trying to aid their state. Other senators were in agreement with him.

Backs Superhighway.

Besides commending the relief commission, the senate adopted a joint resolution introduced by Senator Thomas P. Gunning [Rep., Princeton], declaring it to be the policy of the state that motor fuel tax funds should be used to construct a superhighway in Chicago and to build other roads throughout the state.

Under the terms of the resolution, if it is also adopted by the house, the state highway department would prepare plans immediately for superhighway construction in Chicago, and to connect every city, town or village of not less than 50 inhabitants by improved roads to the state road system.

Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] introduced a bill requiring challengers and watchers at municipal elections to be qualified voters in the precinct in which they are on election duty. While this would eliminate the prevailing custom of sending hordes of college students and others into the "bad" wards.

Among the other bills introduced today were the following:

Francis J. Loughran [Dem., Chicago]—Strikes out provision of liquor act which makes property where liquor is sold liable for injuries or damages caused by intoxicated persons.

Ward—Requires jury commissioners to place both sexes on jury lists. This bill was placed on second reading.

Ward—Provides for filing objections to petitions calling local option elections by any legal voter with adjudication by election commissioner county election board.

HEAR NO VOICE AGAINST RIVER CHANNELS SALE

Senate Pushes Plan for U. S. Purchase.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Another step forward in the program of the sanitary district to sell its channels to the federal government was taken today when the proposal met no objections in a public hearing held by the senate committee on corporations and municipalities.

Under the questioning of the district's witnesses by Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston] it was brought out that this plan affords a method of financing the construction of sewage treatment works without additional taxation. It also would eliminate downstate's present objections to sewage disposal by dilution.

Lake Diversion Reduced.

"The system was constructed with a flow capacity of 10,000 cubic feet per second," said Elmer J. Whitty, acting attorney for the district, who was the chief witness, "and it was expected such diversion from Lake Michigan would be permitted continuously.

"Under the decision of the United States court the diversion is to be reduced after Dec. 31, 1938, to an average of 1,500 cubic feet per second. Consequently, a large part of the taxpayers' investment in these channels will vanish as far as the disposal of sewage is concerned while their usefulness to navigation still will be retained.

Connect Lakes to Gulf.

"As the channels form the connecting link in the lakes to gulf waterway, a project of national importance under consideration since first proposed by Father Marquette in 1674 and in the belief that the entire nation should bear the cost of navigation improvements which benefit the whole nation, the district is urging this sale."

The 1934 reproduction cost of the channels and structures applicable solely to navigation has been estimated by the district at $90,607,173. The district, Mr. Whitty said, pledges itself to use these funds only for the construction of sewage treatment works, the construction of which has been made necessary by the decree of the Supreme court. Sale of the channels would avoid imposing the construction financial burden on the state.

PARENTS DIFFER ON NUMBER OF THEIR CHILDREN

How many children have been born to Stanley and Victoria Rusek? The couple would like to know, and are awaiting the report of Master in Chancery Henry J. Berman next Wednesday.

Mrs. Rusek, who lives at 4416 South Maplewood avenue, divorced Stanley in 1930 after 22 years of married life. She appeared before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday to ask an increase in the $2 a week support payments of her former husband, a stockyards foreman who lives at 4542 South Talman avenue.

"How many children are there?" Judge Desort asked.

"Three," replied Mrs. Rusek.

"Five," her former spouse corrected her.

"Three," the woman maintained. "I ought to know." Then, turning to her attorney, Victor Frohlich, she said: "But if there are five, I want support for the other two."

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. Martha Kahn, 23 year old clerk who lost her job when she refused to walk up twenty-six floors to work during the elevator strike, has a new and better job today.

Max Shapiro of Shapiro Brothers, textile bankers, gave Mrs. Kahn a clerkship in his office at $17 a week, starting Monday.

Mrs. Kahn, a bride of a year, left the offices of the Victor Dyeing and Finishing company to go to lunch. When she returned the elevators were tied up by the strike.

Her employers told Mrs. Kahn to walk up to work. She refused.

Yesterday she was discharged from her $14 position.

"I think it's a shame; she can work for me," said Shapiro when he heard of the incident, and Mrs. Kahn got the job.

DE VALERA DENIES ANY MUZZLING OF NEWSPAPERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 20.—President Eamon de Valera denied in the dail eireann today that the government's information bureau has placed restrictions on newspapers, or made threats against them.

The bureau's function, De Valera explained, is not to censor, but to see that the newspapers published accurate information.

Dr. James Ryan, minister of agriculture, replying to a question by Gen. Richard James Mulcahy, admitted that advertisments of the government's wheat scheme were withdrawn from newspapers in Cork and Donegal. He asserted that editorials in the newspapers concerned nullified the effect of the advertisment.

Sells Husband's Car; Faces Jail if It's Not Returned

Mrs. Maizie Linderborg, 42 years old, 6959 South Racine avenue, was ordered to jail by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort for selling her husband's automobile. She was released on her own bond, however, and was promised the jail sentence would be rescinded if she produced the automobile today. Her husband, Philip Linderborg, 45 years old, 7106 South Green street, a lumber yard foreman, asked the contempt citation. He has made regular payments of $40 a month for the support of his three sons, the youngest 8 years old, he said, but his wife kept the automobile while he walked three miles to work.

SEEK UNTAPPED SOURCES TO AID STATE'S INCOME

Horner and Aids Look for Millions.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Once again tonight, Gov. Horner and leaders of the legislature sat down together to seek new revenue for unemployment relief and old age pensions. Washington has said that a total of about fifty millions will be needed annually—thirty-six for relief and twelve or thirteen for the indigent.

Still on the calendar as likely possibilities were increases of the gasoline and sales tax. Another source of new revenue talked about tonight was a 4½ per cent tax on the net income of corporations. It was estimated that this would produce fifteen millions annually.

Visualize 45 Millions.

Additions of one per cent and one cent, respectively, to the sales and gasoline taxes would produce approximately thirty millions for relief, the conferees believe. Thus, with a corporation tax, the total would reach forty-five millions.

Shy some three or four millions of the figure Washington has set, the state might gather more dollars through a broadening of the base of the sales tax, some of the conferees said. Inclusion of the professional people—doctors, dentists, lawyers, etc., probably would bridge this gap.

Few Desire Income Tax.

There was some rather hesitant talk about imposition of a two per cent gross income tax on individuals, which, it was said would yield from fifty to sixty millions. Not much sentiment in its favor could, however, be found.

Bearers of estimates to the conference were Tax Commissioner E. Leland and Dewitt Billman, secretary of the legislative reference bureau. They carried a portfolio giving estimated revenue that could be produced by a varying number of new imposts—luxuries, and excise. Schedules were placed in front of each conferee and the study went on toward midnight.

ILLINOIS WILL GET 33 OF U. S. MILLIONS FOR ROAD, GRADE WORK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Illinois, Gov. Horner estimated today, will receive about 33 millions of federal money for highway and grade separation work, bringing the total road fund to be spent in the state in 1935 to approximately 44 millions.

Federal allocations from the four billion, 800 million dollar work relief fund, now pending in the United States senate, will net Illinois the 33 millions it expects, the governor believes. In addition, the state will spend 11 millions of its own money for road work.

In the plans now being prepared by Director of Public Works Kingery and Highway Engineer Lieberman, it is intended that about 13 millions shall be used for grade separation work and the balance principally for "farm to market" highways.

These recommendations will be part of the projects the state will present to the public works construction authorities in Washington. Other proposals are now being considered by Director Kingery and members of the Illinois planning commission. They will be delivered later this week to the governor and, with his approval, transferred to Washington.

It was reported today that recommendations for elevated highways, completion of the outer drive bridge in Chicago, and twenty-five millions for penal and charitable institutions will be included in the recommendations. The money would be used for new buildings and remodeling.

MICHIGAN ORDERS BROOKS AND WIFE RETURNED HERE

CRIMINAL COURT.

Alphonso Brooks and Warnett Pierce, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lowe.

The Rev. Edward L. Brooks Sr., and his wife, Grace, who have been the subject of a one man grand jury investigation in connection with their operation of an alleged "baby farm" near Beulah, Mich., were ordered extradited to Chicago yesterday by Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald of Michigan. They are to be tried here under indictments charging they operated the Beulah Maternity home at 2144 North Clark street without a license.

Acting State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said their case now is on call before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court and that they would be tried within two weeks.

Judge Fred S. Lamb of Cadillac, Mich., has been conducting the investigation of the "baby farm" at Beulah, where it was charged irregular practices have been followed in the deaths of babies born to unwed mothers.

Court Denies Car to Wife Who Is Seeking Separation

Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti denied yesterday the request of Mrs. Bertha Huston, 8027 Dante avenue, that an automobile of her husband, Edward, trafic manager of the Peabody Coal company, be turned over to her. She is suing him for separate maintenance. Questioned by her attorney, Norman Becker, she testified that Huston is paying her $100 a month for the support of herself and her son, Edward Jr., and that he gave her the automobile and then took it away from her. Attorney Daniel Corelli appeared for Huston. The court allowed Mrs. Huston attorney's fees and directed that Huston pay all the child's expenses.

NO RIOTS IN CHICAGO.

Chicago has been happily free of the kind of strike which has disgraced other communities in recent years. Rioting and murder accompanied the textile strike in the south and east and the teamsters' strike in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Port cities on both coasts were the scenes of outbreaks of violence which ended in long casualty lists. Milwaukee went through a similar experience. Violence has accompanied a few labor disputes in Chicago, notably the abortive bus strike, but rioting has been prevented.

The credit for this accomplishment goes to Mayor Kelly and the police department. Where there is a firm hand in command and a disciplined police force riots seldom start, and when they do start they do not get out of hand. In any community large enough to call itself a city the police force is always able to dominate any spasmodic uprising. The police are always better armed and better disciplined than the mob; if public officials are determined to maintain order they can always do so. It is only where public officials are cowardly or allow political considerations to control their conduct that rioting, with its accompaniment of murder and looting, takes place.

It is true, of course, that municipal governments have been handicapped of recent months by the extraordinary conduct and pronouncements of officials in Washington. Sister Perkins, the secretary of labor, has been quoted to the effect that strikes are nothing to get excited about. Washington has placed itself in the light of granting indulgences to favored leaders of unions and pseudo-unions, and some local officials have been confused into thinking that what Washington does is always right.

Mayor Kelly has not been misled by this kind of talk. He has not interfered with labor's right to strike, but he has held firmly to the doctrin that the right to strike is not the right to kill and to pillage. His position, it is scarcely necessary to say, has the approval of all but an insignificant minority of the citizens. His persistence in it will assure the continuance of good government in this community and furnish a shining contrast to the misgovernment of cities like Milwaukee, New York and St. Paul.

LADIES TO THE BLOCK.

Evidently there could be no doubt Baroness Benita von Berg and Renate von Natzmer were beautiful. They were beheaded in Berlin in the court of the Ploetenzee prison, Monday morning, in execution of a sentence finding them guilty of betrayal of German military secrets to a handsome Polish cavalry officer, who beguiled them to their doom. Every account of their pending or accomplished fate referred to the beauty of the noble dames bearing distinguished Prussian names.

Their Mephistopheles got life imprisonment and Polish-German relations, which had been newly made happy by a two-party Locarno, are now unhappy with suspicion and recrimination. The fate of the beautiful ladies aroused widespread sympathy, although their crime must appear one tainted with an ignominy unrelieved by any heroism of self-sacrifice and not purified by any permissible emotions.

The medieval ax which chopped off the fair heads added to the gruesomeness of the scene, particularly to Americans, who soon come to regard any lady murderer as Mama or Auntie, a sentiment which is appearing nowadays also in the English populace. The execution of a death sentence on a woman has for centuries been a touchy spot in English speaking sentiment, so touchy that there was a prejudice against hanging as being offensive to womanly modesty. In avoidance of that the law provided that the lady should be burned at the stake, a delicacy which may have more done credit to the state of society than given consolation to the victims.

The German ladies, although the chief sufferers, were not the chief actors of the drama. They sinned through weakness, cupidity, misplaced affections, or whatever it was that destroyed their integrity. Back of them, and apparently escaping moral reproach, were honorable governments which in times of peace employ discreditable methods to learn what each proposes to do to the other, and how, if anything should make their protestations of friendship false.

Governments are very honorable. They are very honorable and they are very sensitive. Let a small incident touch their dignity and they will resent it, the implication being that nothing disreputable could be in the contemplation of any majestic sovereignty. They are, in a fashion, guests in each other's houses. Their diplomatic representation, along with its honors and immunities, assumes this. As guests each one in the conduct of European intrigue will bribe the servants of the host to prowl his house, ransack his cabinet, and steal his private papers.

Their representatives are accorded, just as football coaches are accorded, the right of scouting the other team. Their military attachés may attend maneuvers, but that is not sufficient. Burglary, corruption, eavesdropping, wire tapping, every underhand device which ingenuity can concoct, will be used within the permission of honor to violate every scruple which honor in private life is supposed to observe.

For this the lovely ladies lost their heads, twice, it must be assumed, and the second time not lightly.

PURGING THE RELIEF SERVICE.

Reports that a considerable number of the employés of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission were avowed and active communists led the chairman of the commission to announce recently that any employés proved to be Reds would be fired. There can be no quarrel with this position. Places on the state pay roll do not belong to men and women whose principal ambition in life is to destroy the government which supports them. Moreover, the money and goods given to the poor ought not to be available to communists to be used as bribes to encourage the recipients of the state's bounty to overthrow the government which supports them.

It is almost unthinkable that the rule laid down was needed. If relief is not to become a continually growing burden in this community and if it is to be distributed honestly great firmness is required. The fact that subversive elements have found little difficulty, apparently, in entering the employ of the commission is a measure of the deficiencies of the service as it now exists.

SWEET COVINGTON, KENTUCKY BELLE.

Covington, Ky., has been let in for deserved public opprobrium as the indirect result of the trial of Labatt kidnapers in Canada. Two detectives from the town, endeavoring to furnish alibi testimony for an accused in the Canadian court, found themselves easily confused in their stories and skipped out of jurisdiction without completing their tales. Their flight turned attention to the community in which they could be employed as peace officers.

Covington, it appears, is another American town which cultivates vice and crime for profit. Such places spot the map here and there. It is across the river from Cincinnati, where a sincere effort is being made at good government, a condition which added to Covington's opportunity to welcome the rifraf, something within its long familiar habit.

A town setting about to make itself a burglars' lair, a pirates' nest, a robbers' castle, does not need to issue more than one invitation to make itself the sally point for gangsters who issue forth to commit their crimes and return for protection. Such a place does not stand alone in its foulness. It infects the surrounding country and, in the Labatt case, even Canada.

The state of Kentucky cannot escape reproach. The town is the creature of the state and if the state officials were not involved or indifferent the condition could not exist.

FOR RICHER MILK.

The monthly report of the federal milk market administrator for Chicago, Mr. Frank C. Baker, gives occasion to observe once more that one reason for the plight of the dairy farmers is that they are selling too much water and too little butter fat. If the milk entering the Chicago market were richer, and therefore tastier, more of it would be sold and it would fetch a better price.

EXCURSIONS.

If there ever was an opportune time for the railways to be considering excursions to and from Chicago, it is the present. For the last two years visitors from far and near have been streaming to the metropolis to view the wonders of A Century of Progress. Many of them had insufficient time for sightseeing, but letters received from a goodly number indicate that they were impressed and would, with slight urging, return to visit Chicago's fixed institutions. On the other hand, Chicagoans have been conducting a two year "at home" for out of town friends and relatives, and represent a substantial volume of pent-up travel because they have been forgoing the familiar week-end trips in favor of a visit to the Fair.

Railways generally were well satisfied with returns from the special fares and concessions granted "Chicagowards" in the last two years. Moreover, a considerable number of people have become railway minded. Let the railways make known the places of interest along their lines, offer the necessary inducements of week-end, short term, family, all expense and other types of reduced rates and there is no reason why the tide of travel should ebb. Of course, the Fair isn't here as an attraction for the outsider, but conversely it is not here to keep the Chicagoan at home.

GOLDEN GLOVES CONTESTS IN SPOTLIGHT.

[Bloomington Pantagraph.]

The second year of the Golden Gloves boxing tournament in Bloomington, sponsored by the Pantagraph, promises to be a bigger, better amateur sporting festival than in its initial engagement a year ago.

For one thing, larger quarters are provided. Public interest in the events being what it is, the smaller accommodations of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium were outgrown, and the Coliseum furnishes two major advantages. One is the possibility of furnishing good seats for a larger number of persons; the other is that, with the roomier seating space, the prices of admission can be kept down so that the events can be truly of the popular character, with no fancy prices for any of the seats.

This year's entry list of boxers shows the growth of interest in Golden Gloves and amateur boxing among the young men and boys of this section in a way that is encouraging to those who believe in good clean sport conducted under wholesome surroundings. Some of those who entered last year are to be seen again with the added experience of another year's training. There are many newcomers getting their first taste of real competition in this branch of sport. The range of territory and environment from which the entries come is larger, including college boys, high school students, some from CCC camps and some who have worked under instruction of maturer heads. Nearly every type of entry will be represented, and from the list will emerge a team of boxers who are expected to uphold central Illinois' reputation in the larger field in Chicago later.

But winners and losers alike will benefit by the contests of next week, for each will have learned to do his best in the ring against an opponent of his own class; all will have learned that the way one carries on is of more importance than the result. No grudge will survive the bouts, for it's all between friends after all.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

GOSH! it's hard to make sense out of things that happen nowadays. The four flying foxes out at the Brookfield zoo have been executed on orders from Washington because they might destroy some of our agricultural crops. And on the other hand the AAA has made the farmers plow corn, wheat and cotton under, bury thousands of little hoggies and reduce the size of everything down on the farm except the mortgage. But if flying foxes could help cut down the size of the crops as the AAA has been doing, why weren't they encouraged and abetted instead of being put to death? A half dozen busy gangs of flying foxes could save the farmers the trouble of plowing their crops under. And yet the government kills 'em instead of giving 'em jobs. Darned if I can figure it out.

ABSENT.

Back through the self-worn jungle path
From habit I still walk,
As in glad days, preoccupied
With books and dreams and talk;

To kneel at the scarred dais wound
With dripping vines—to stare
And dully rise, remembering—
The idol is not there.

LILA TERRY.

THIS NEW FAD—having lovely models, wearing the very latest in bathing suits, stalk back and forth before the passengers in the lounge car of the through trains to Florida—may cause papa to say, "Oh, well, now let's take the choo-choo cars when we go to Florida this spring." But it's going to make the mama declare firmly and icily, "We are going to travel to Florida as usual in the automobile. And if any of those bathing suit hussies try to parade around in my car they won't find much room to show off, and besides I'll call the police."

THE NEW WILDERNESS.

II.

The rubrics of new discoveries interlace the pages of the battered field book . . . sedge grass again where once a field of hay had been: cattails thriving in a swamp that has usurped a drainage scheme: marsh wrens avidly returning home: flags of many hues and pickerel weed drawing their very being from the graveled ooze, even as the reconstructed dreams of one's lost youth need draw their nourishment from the futile years that lie between.

And expectations cling to the rubrics. . . .

Campion in the newly created bogs; swamp asters, marsh marigold and meadow rue. There'll be swamp saxifrage a-bloom in May—"like rosettes of mignonette." In June, a heap of shimmering gold, called, for want of a better name, golden ragwort, pressed close against the purple avens.

Through them and among them a little boy will walk with new found wonderment upon his nut brown face. Flying squirrels will chide him for his presence. Perhaps, from her nesting place on the edge of the gorse, a mothering prairie hen will watch us as we pass. An otter, no doubt, will pause just long enough in his silent crossing above the old Eaton ford to show his silken, gleaming coat.

Oh, there will be a wondrous smile upon that nut brown face, drawn from neither Agassiz nor Ernest Thompson Seton, but from the fleeting sight of a fox clearing a broken fence, or from the undulating dips of a sand hill crane flying low with her young over the minarets of the lower Vermilion!

An upland slope of wild thyme, just beyond the red haws where the red-wings are nesting, will greet him, and long-stemmed violets, too; and, rightly, he will claim them as his own. Through waters that are running clean once more he'll mark the upward passage of the small-mouth bass and watch it break the olivaceous surface at twice its length beneath a hovering hatch of may flies or red ibis.

An abandoned farm home, fearful of collapse beneath its burden of trumpet vines run wild, will be alive with hummers—those dartlike exclamation points of August's running story . . . and the little boy, with eyes and ears askance, will watch the quick passage of the humble bee from an abandoned orchard to a nearby locust tree . . . a thousand teachers for one pupil, and green carpets, woven of moss and lichens, spread before him to hush an inadvertent step.

THAT FELLA DOWN IN STREATOR.

WE ALL USED TO THINK skyscrapers were simply the last word in architecture. And the closer they came to the sky the better. And how we gazed breathlessly upward at the one hundred and two story Empire State building. But now the strikes and walkouts of the elevator men in the office buildings in New York make us a little doubtful. A woman clerk in New York, who had held a good job in an office on the twenty-sixth floor of a high building, came around day before yesterday and telephoned up to her boss she couldn't get to work because the elevators weren't running. The boss told her to walk up. Twenty-six flights of stairs were too much for her. She was fired. So what? After all, the two and three story store and office buildings of thirty and forty years ago weren't so bad. An Indian teepee might have a lot of advantages over a skyscraper; a little cold in winter, but no chance of the elevator men striking.

TREATMENT OF DIABETES. PART II.

LUCIUS SENECA, a famous Roman philosopher, said: "Man does not die; he kills himself." This is emphasized by the rising use of sugar, particularly in America. E. V. McCollum and J. E. Becker make the statement that in 1812 the average American citizen used fifteen pounds of sugar per year, whereas the present day consumption is more than one hundred pounds a year per person. It is not the fact that sugar is used that is dangerous, but that more sugar than is necessary is consumed, thus placing an added load upon the sugar burning agency of the body, namely, insulin. Yesterday's article included some simple facts about diabetes. The use of insulin was mentioned and the necessity of providing this substance whenever the pancreas fails to produce a sufficient amount to utilize the carbohydrate intake.

Insulin is not a substance that can be used with impunity. In the normal body a carefully regulated mechanism produces just enough and not too much. Whenever diabetes exists the intelligence of the patient, coupled with the skill of the physician, is responsible for the task of accurately adjusting the need of insulin to the carbohydrate in the diet.

An insulin reaction occurs whenever too much insulin is taken or whenever there is too little carbohydrate upon which the insulin can act. There is a reduction in the amount of sugar in the blood to considerably below the normal level, and symptoms develop that must be treated promptly. The patient is pale and faint; the pupils of the eyes are usually dilated, and there are extreme nervousness, sweating, and trembling. If the reaction is exceedingly severe the patient may become unconscious. Symptoms quickly disappear if the individual will eat two or three lumps of sugar, drink the juice of an orange, or take a tablespoonful or two of corn sirup. As a precaution against too low blood sugar, every diabetic should carry a few lumps of sugar in his pocket.

Occasionally acidosis is associated with diabetes. This is because proteins and fats are burned more rapidly than carbohydrates, resulting in the production of certain organic acids. Sometimes this condition develops quickly and leads to unconsciousness [coma]. The usual symptoms are headache, nausea and vomiting, rapid and shallow breathing, and drowsiness. In any diabetic in whom the symptoms of drowsiness are unduly pronounced, examination of the urine for diacetic acid should be made. In unconsciousness of any type associated with this disease a physician should be called promptly, because an emergency exists. The patient should be placed in bed, the body kept warm, and an enema given.

Patients with diabetes must observe special hygienic precautions: [1] care should be used to keep the bowels normal; [2] there must be a daily bath, and the teeth and mouth kept exceptionally clean; [3] scrupulous attention must be given the feet, the toes, and the toenails; [4] exercise must be taken regularly, at the same time guarding against overfatigue; [5] anything that tends to lower resistance should be avoided, as well as all types of infections.

In normal persons the use of sugar provides an easy and simple means of obtaining body nourishment. It is practically certain, however, that some individuals take sugar to excess and thus overwork the insulin secreting cells of the pancreas. Those who have a natural tendency to overweight are rather more inclined to diabetes. With determination and by virtue of prepared insulin, and the following of inflexible rules of diet, diabetics may look forward hopefully to a life of normal efficiency.

OTITIS.

P. U. G. writes: What is external otitis? Could a punch cause it?

REPLY.

The word "otitis" means inflammation of the ear. If the external ear is inflamed it may be due to injury, to some skin disease, or to infection. "Punches" are sometimes responsible for the "cauliflower" ear.

TRUSTEESHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Certain of the heirs under a will desire a change of present trusteeship to a real estate agent. 1. Is it permissible to take this will out of his hands and give to a man less capable if all heirs do not agree to the change? In the will there were ten heirs, and now only five survive. 2. Can the will be changed from the trust department to a real estate agent? 3. If a change takes place is it as safe in a capable real estate man as it would be in the trust department of a reliable bank? P. M.

1. Depends on the wording of the instrument under which the trustee was appointed.
2. Probably not. The wording of the will would control.
3. Depends on the broker and the bank.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DAMAGED BY VANDALS.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—Next door to my home is a four story brick apartment building which to all appearances has been completely abandoned. The building has no windows, doors, and very little of anything that can be removed and carried away. The porches are in very dangerous condition, making it a hazardous playground for children. Questionable characters hang out in the building. How should I proceed to have this building removed.

C. A. W.

The building in question is being destroyed by vandals, and has been damaged about 25 per cent of its original value. The openings have been boarded up but vandals have torn boarding away. The property is in trust and owners do not live in this state. We have located one of the owners and notified him to make necessary repairs. The police have been notified to arrest all trespassers and the city law department is now engaged in getting data and names so that proper legal action can be taken. This building is not structurally dangerous.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The French embassy at Rome has proposed to the Italian government a plan to buy over Turkey as a military and naval ally, according to information from an authoritative source.

The French foreign office has stated that in the event of a continental war the chances are that Kemal Pasha having a mobilized and mechanized army with excellent communications would immediately pounce on Syria—the richest province of the former Ottoman empire. The Turks, France has pointed out, would be assisted by a large Turkish-speaking population within Syria—a population that mans the civil and police services still to a considerable degree. To prevent such a situation France is prepared, subject to italian approval, to come to a "hypothetical arrangement" with Turkey in return for a promise of military aid in the event the Third republic is attacked.

The arrangement would emphasize that a European conflict would automatically kill the league of nations by whose mandate France holds Syria. Her hands would be free, therefore, to tackle the Syrian question as a "purely internal matter." She would cede Syria and in return for this Turkey would have to support the Franco-Russo-Italian combine against a group including Germany, Poland, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia and probably Bulgaria. French and Italian transports and Greek railways would insure the throwing of Turkish divisions onto the shores of the Adriatic to attack their hereditary foes, the Serb and Bulgar. The Turkish fleet, still the strongest in the Black sea, would insure the safe passage of Turkish reinforcements to stiffen the dubious military value of Russian soviet troops against the Poles and also to ginger up the Rumanians.

The Italian government is said to have given a cold reply to the first suggestion, not from conviction but on a basis of bargaining. The Roman foreign office is loath to resign its plans for the pacific or hostile penetration of Asia Minor—unless compensation is offered in some other part of the world. This compensation, it is suggested, might take the form of ceding to Italy some part of France's equatorial empire to which Frenchmen won't go, but Italians would.

Since its recent reorganization the strength of the Turkish army is given in London as 250,000 first line and 350,000 reservists—excellent military material—who could be mobilized and equipped and armed locally in four months. In a year Turkey could throw 1,750,000 troops in the field, but for such a force she would have to rely for the greater part of their equipment on foreign sources.

The French are also said to be negotiating a loan to Turkey on very generous terms. This is a return to the old policy of Franklin-Bouillon.

Great Britain is watching these developments carefully, seeing in them, as in the recent Turco-Persian accord, the seeds of a new Ottoman empire stretching in political and military influence from the Adriatic to the Indian frontier.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

The lion is not "king of the beasts," and never has been, according to explorers who have studied the habits of this animal. The real king of beasts is probably the African buffalo. It is quicker, more alert, and more ferocious than the lion; and its strength is greater, in comparison to its size. This is one animal that lions are afraid to attack.

A LONG ONE, BUT WORTH READING.

Park Ridge, Ill., Feb. 15.—A letter which appeared the other day interests me. It was from the sister of the fiancée of a young M. D. She had become enamored of farm life through your splendid articles, and was considering forsaking him for a romance with a farmer, if she could find the farmer.

I feel quite qualified to picture both sides, having been a successful business woman at a darn good salary before I married a farmer and went to live on a farm. First let me say that I had never been on a farm, had never dreamed of marrying a farmer, and a farm was the last place on earth either I or my friends thought I would ever live. I had never done any hard work; I had never prepared a meal except a dainty Sunday night tea, and was more acquainted with hors d'oeuvres than, shall we say, hosses, and canapes than corn fields! Well, anyhow, I went on a farm, not as an owner's wife, either, mind you, but as a tenant's. And let me say right here little did I wot what wotted! I lived on three farms all told. I met some splendid, fine women—women whom I respected and liked heartily—but if I had hand picked them I couldn't have selected three women calculated to make life more miserable for me than the wives of those three farm owners!

I found plenty of hard manual labor connected with farm life. And you can't always stop to put on your rubber gloves, either. It seemed to me that I scrubbed acres of floors from the day I first sat in the middle of a really small linoleum covered kitchen and wept because it seemed so huge to the day when I was casually scrubbing up a couple of floors each four times that size, and taking it all in my stride.

I confess I wanted to run, and run plenty far, when I first grasped the idea of what having threshers meant. That was about eight weeks after I was married. But I planned and prepared substantial dinners and suppers for 23 threshers for almost three days running, in addition to having the engine crew for three breakfasts. And was I proud of that achievement! After that there were corn shredders, silo fillers, wood cutters strung along throughout the year just to give it savor. I took care of 500 of the finest Buff Rock chickens in the county, all raised from eggs in the nest; picked wild raspberries, gooseberries, plums, grapes; jammed, and jellied, and canned them all; picked cherries, apples, crabapples, and canned them for the winter; made sausage, rendered lard, as well as canning vegetables from the garden.

My husband and his brother were working the farm, and so when the milk check came in and what other money came in it had to be split two ways, and by the time it got to me there just wasn't "none." And it did seem that when there was a little ahead if the old manure spreader wheel wouldn't break down or something like that would happen. O yes, I made my own clothes and made the boys' shirts for good measure.

We had hard luck, too. My brother-in-law was badly gored by a bull; my baby died at birth through neglect of the doctor, who had to leave me to "judge cattle at the state fair," and my husband finally suffered a breakdown from which it took him several years to recover by trying to carry on and do the work of two men from 3:30 in the morning until after 10 at night.

How do you feel now about sticking to your M. D.?

But with it all I kept up my music [I had studied voice under one of the best teachers in Chicago and had done some concert and oratorio work]; held down a church soloist position in the biggest church in town; took part in about everything musical that was done; belonged to the history club, art league, musical club, and D. A. R. I kept up my literary and cultural life, and I did it, boys and girls, by riding to town in a rig behind a horse because we never got to the point where there was any extra cash to buy a Ford.

I have never forgotten that first feeling of utter freedom, that feeling that the whole wonderful out of doors was mine, when I first went on the farm. I gained 40 pounds in the five years I lived on a farm—another reason why you'd better stick to your M. D. And, although I came back to the city on account of my husband's breakdown because somebody had to earn some money, and have succeeded in again becoming a successful business woman [deleting the depression and subsequent cuts] and have about paid for a home, I would go back to a farm tomorrow. And would my husband make tracks! There's just one provision I would make—I'd want a good long look at the owner's wife. You see, in my experience, the owner and his wife lived on the same farm and it just doesn't work. CHAGUN A SON GOUT.

THE SEERS DEFENDED.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Your paper is publishing articles deriding seers and clairvoyants. Let's have a look on the other side of the picture. People coming of their own free will to consult a psychic, seeking amusement or a thrill, which they get for their money. Or the worried, harassed people with emotional problems they cannot or dare not confide in their friends, receiving from the medium words of cheer and hope. Suggestion is a powerful force, and predictions made by mediums have often put new hope in lives headed for suicide or the insane asylum.

And as for making predictions, what is wicked about forecasting the future? The weather prophet, the doctor, the preacher, the politician—everybody is doing it. FAY BROWN.

CHINESE ATTACK JAP PEACE CORPS; 100 CASUALTIES

"Demilitarized" Zone Is Scene of Fighting.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—While Wang Ching-wei, premier of the Chinese Nationalist government at Nanking, and Koki Hirota, Japanese foreign minister, expressed themselves today as desirous of peace between the two nations, serious fighting occurred in the "demilitarized" zone north of Tientsin. More than 100 men were reported either killed or wounded.

The clash took place at the town of Lwanchow between the recently organized Peace Preservation corps and the Lwanchow militia. The Chinese claim that the Peace Preservation corps is receiving Japanese money and munitions. The Lwanchow militia, financed by local Chinese interests, determined to oust the corps despite the fact that it has received the official approval of the Chinese government.

Rail Trafic Hampered.

The situation is asserted to be critical and has interfered with railway trafic through that area.

Premier Wang, speaking before the central political council today, said that the critical relations between China and Japan are responsible for an atmosphere of insecurity throughout the world. Expressing the belief that it is possible to find a solution providing both countries are sincere in their efforts, he said:

"If Japan and China ignore their immediate interests and seek a rational solution to their troubles it will be the orient's greatest contribution to world peace."

Foreign Minister Hirota, according to dispatches from Tokio, expressed similar friendly sentiments regarding Sino-Japanese relations to Dr. Wang Chung-wei, China's representative on the world court at The Hague.

A Discordant Note.

Japanese financiers and business men, however, introduced a discordant note. They declared Sino-Japanese cooperation is impossible unless China is willing to adjust defaulted debts and discontinue all anti-Japanese boycott movements.

Soviet Russian authorities also introduced their views on the far eastern situation through the medium of an interview with an unidentified high Moscow official which was published here. Statements by the Japanese foreign minister pertaining to peace were denounced by this soviet official as "both hypocritical and provocative."

"Japan's Manchurian adventures since 1931 are directly responsible for Russia's increased fighting strength in Siberia," the spokesman said. "Regardless of what friendly words Hirota may utter, Russia will not trust Japan.

250 Are Reported Dead in Sinking of Chinese Ship

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The sinking of the coastal steamer Fu-Lung early this week claimed 250 lives, according to details received here today. First reports of the loss of the 1,815 ton vessel placed the number of casualties at 100. The latest information said 200 civilians, men, women and children, and 50 soldiers perished when the Fu-Lung capsized as the result of overloading. Only one woman survived.

ITALY PREPARED FOR WAR, IL DUCE ASSURES NATION

Has Plenty of Supplies to Bring Victory.

ROME, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Italy's supreme defense council tonight promised the nation the wells of war supplies will not run dry as 4,000 Italian troops steamed across the Mediterranean to Africa in consequence of Italo-Ethiopian tension. Many times 4,000 soldiers are ready to embark at Naples and Sicilian ports.

The council, over which Premier Benito Mussolini himself presides, concluded its fifth session in recent days with this statement:

"Italy can rest assured that the council has done its duty in preparing in time those indispensible measures so that an eventual warlike effort can be carried out in conditions which will assure victory."

Balbo with Council.

Gen. Italo Balbo, former air minister and now governor of Libya in Africa, and Undersecretary of War Gen. Federico Baistrocchi attended the sessions of the council, which government circles said were inspired by the Ethiopian situation and Italy's watchful attitude toward possible developments in Austria.

The Fascist government has liberated the nation from "the bondages of war," and any future campaign can be fought in the knowledge that war supplies will be adequate, the council said in its statement.

Asserting "every particular" of Italy's war needs has been examined, the communique gave assurance that such primary war necessities as wheat, corn, rice and other grain will be available, in this connection it referred to the Italian grain campaign of the past several years which has made Italy virtually self-sufficient in those foods.

The council warned that Italy still must work on the problem of bringing its meat production up to a basis of self-sufficiency.

Has Own War Materials.

However, the communique said, as far as liquid combustibles are concerned the nation could depend upon the developments of science to grant it a war-time "autonomy" through exploitation of its natural resources. The nation can depend in time of war upon its own resources to supply iron, lead, zinc, aluminum, wood and coal.

Meantime Italy has effected arrangements abroad for acquiring lubricating oil and asphalts, the council stated, while numerous enterprises abroad, "under Italian patents," continue to function "with satisfactory efficiency" in producing hydrogen. Through scientific development in hemp, it added, the nation would be able even to clothe itself in the event of war.

Italian newspapers, meanwhile, set up an outcry against asserted anarchy reigning among Ethiopian border tribes, declaring further incidents along the border may be expected at any time.

[The Italian papers carried their reports in the form of dispatches from London, but cables from the British capital said no reports of "anarchy" along the Ethiopian frontier had been received there.]

Replies to Ethiopia.

A government spokesman said tonight Italy had replied to the last communication from the Ethiopian government, accepting some of the conditions laid down by Addis Ababa for establishment of the proposed neutral zone along the frontier between Ethiopia and Italy's African colonies. Other conditions were rejected, the spokesman said, and Italy now awaits reply to its latest message.

The spokesman said the government had received no reports of new frontier incidents in Africa.

Nearly 1,000 soldiers of the Third regiment of engineers left Naples today, after being reviewed by Crown Prince Umberto aboard the steamship Montenegro.

Some thousands of men at Messina have been sent to Syracuse for embarkation, while others have gone to Catania. The S. S. Vulcania, a liner widely known among American tourists, is understood to have received orders to stand by at Naples for possible troop transport service to Africa tomorrow.

"HORRIBLE!" Says MODERN SOCIETY

"ADMIRABLE!" Says THE MODERN DENTIST

You can still be civilized and avoid "PINK TOOTH BRUSH"

IMAGINE such conduct at the dinner table. One such barbaric performance would immediately black-list the offender. And no one could blame modern society for it.

But the modern dentist—your dentist—sees this performance in another light.

"Admirable," would be his prompt and clear-cut verdict. "If coarse, raw foods were more in prominence on our modern menus, if all my patients were more primitive and aggressive about exercising their teeth and gums, I'd hear a lot less about that dental warning 'pink tooth brush'—a lot less about a long list of modern dental ills."

For our soft, modern foods do deny our gums work and exercise—do rob them of health and firmness. And "pink tooth brush" is simply the drastic warning that massage and stimulation are needed at once.

NEGLECT OF "PINK TOOTH BRUSH" IS UNSAFE

Don't let neglect of "pink tooth brush" cause your teeth to become dingy, your gums tender. Don't let it open the way for serious gum disorders. Don't let it endanger sound teeth.

Follow modern dental teachings — and play safe. Brush your teeth regularly with Ipana Tooth Paste. Then each time you brush your teeth, put a little extra Ipana on your brush or fingertip, and massage it into your gums. Ipana with massage rouses lazy gums, speeds circulation through the gum tissues and helps bring them back to healthy firmness.

Get a tube of Ipana today and try Ipana and massage for a full month. You'll notice the improvement in the brightness of your teeth and the sparkle of your smile. Your gums will be healthier and firmer. And you'll be much safer from "pink tooth brush."

DECISIVE CHACO BATTLE RAGES THROUGH 5TH DAY

Paraguayans at Gates of Villa Montes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 20.—The battle of Villa Montes today raged through its fifth day without decision, Bolivians defending their strongest position to keep the Paraguayans, conquerors of the Chaco, out of Bolivia proper.

The stand at Villa Montes is the climax of the Chaco war which began on July 19, 1932. Paraguay, which has rejected all proposals of arbitration which the league has offered—and which Bolivia has accepted—counts on a victory at Villa Montes to retain supremacy in the Chaco boreal.

It is estimated a total of 60,000 men are engaged, with Paraguay having the advantage in numbers and Bolivia the advantage in terrain. Villa Montes, situated on the slopes of the Aguragüe mountain range, stands guard over Bolivia's rich oil fields. Bolivian military communiques of the last few days declare several Paraguayan thrusts at Villa Montes' defenses had been repulsed with heavy losses.

Battle Line 40 Miles.

Paraguay has concentrated the bulk of its three army corps on a short, crescent shaped front approximately 40 miles long. This front extends from the Aguaragüe hills, twelve miles northwest of Villa Montes, to fifteen miles southeast of Villa Montes on the Pilcomayo river. The line passes through Chimes, nine miles north of Villa Montes on the road to Santa Cruz, and also through Agua Blanca, nine miles northeast of Villa Montes.

In making a definite stand at Villa Montes, Bolivia avoided spreading its forces by constructing its outer defenses at a surprisingly short distance from the main fort. The Paraguayans, who had expected to contact outer defenses about 20 miles from Villa Montes, did not meet resistance until they approached Chimes and Agua Blanca, where the present battle is being fought.

Argentine observers declare Gen. José Estigarribia, Paraguayan commander, has taken precautions to prevent an attack from the rear and also to maintain a great threat to Bolivian territory if Bolivia should mass its forces at Villa Montes.

Threat to Oil Fields.

Gen. Estigarribia concentrated strong forces at Boyuibe, sixty miles north of Villa Montes, as a threat to the oil refineries at Camiri, and other forces at San Francisco, forty miles farther north, facing the Bolivian department of Santa Cruz.

The Paraguayan line represents the final objective of a battle plan which at one time embraced the entire Chaco territory. A line, at first several hundred miles long, slowly swept the Bolivians backward, the line narrowing as it advanced. After the fall of Fort Carandayty, the Paraguayan right wing advanced down the main road toward Villa Montes, and contracted to its present length.

The Pilcomayo river is the border of Argentine territory. If the Bolivians lose at Villa Montes it appears they must retreat westward to Tarija, where it is believed the Paraguayans will not follow them. Such a move would mean relinquishment of the Chaco to Paraguay.

Stench Bombers Attack Beauty Parlor, Barber Shop

Stench bombs were hurled early today through the windows of the Carol beauty shop at 1120 East 55th street and the barber shop of Joseph Findley at 648 West 45th street. Mrs. Carol Dennis, owner of the beauty parlor, said she knew of no reason for the bombing. Findley said that he operated a nonunion shop. He knew of no specific reason for the attempt to harm him, he added.

VAN DERCK LINKS DAVE BARRY AND BAIATA TO THEFT

Tells of Bank Looting in Swindle Plot.

to Dave, but he did not have the money. Joe said if I was arrested that night, that Barry would go to the bank president and there would be no publicity because Barry was so well known. I asked them if I should go to work the next day and they said 'sure.'"

Tells of New Enterprises.

Van Derck said his juggling fooled the examiners and he escaped detection. Then he told of meeting Karatz at Barry's tavern when the group started to organize various enterprises to cash in on Barry's name as a prize fight referee. Among these, he said, were the promotion of a special train to the Baer-Carnera fight, and the organization of the Hall of Champions and the Garden of Champions at the Century of Progress.

Van Derck said he supplied the money through his peculations for practically all these enterprises. They all proved to be financial flops. The amount of the shortage finally figured up to about $27,000 in September, 1934.

"I told them that the examiners would be around again soon and that the amount was too big to cover up," continued the youth.

Barry's Name "Worthless."

"Joe Baiata said that Barry's name did not seem to mean anything and that it was no use to longer try to promote things in his name to cover the deficit with the profits. He said the only way to make up the shortage was to get hold of some huge financial institution like a bank or insurance company with a big cash reserve and a sizable security portfolio. The Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, Ill., and an Indianapolis bank were mentioned."

The witness then told of how the deal to buy the insurance company through juggled checks for $25,000 was about to be completed when he suddenly decided he could go no further with the conspirators.

"I was going to get married," he said. "And my conscience was bothering me. I went to the bank lawyers and confessed. They called the police and I confessed to them."

Gustav Lindquist, former insurance commissioner of Minnesota, who is named as a co-defendant in an indictment charging conspiracy to loot the life insurance company, still is a fugitive from justice.

PASSES FORGED CUBAN ORDERS; GETS 2 YEARS

Samuel Sparks, 35 years old, formerly of Memphis, Tenn., was sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $500 by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday for passing forged Cuban money orders. Testimony before Judge Sullivan showed that Hirschie Miller, Chicago gambler, accepted $1,100 of the forged money orders in payment of a $300 debt Sparks had run up in Miller's gambling house. The Broadway Trust and Savings bank cashed them for Miller, but when they were sent through the clearing house it was learned they were spurious. In the meantime Miller took $2,200 more of the orders on another debt of Sparks' amounting to $700.

TRACE $317,000 INSURANCE PAID IN DAICHES DEATH

One point stressed by the prosecution in its examination of the insurance officials was that the premiums on most of the policies were payable between the first and last weeks of March. Murphy had testified that Weitzman urged him to have Daiches killed so that the premiums about to come due would not have to be paid. The state said this supports Murphy's story. Policeman James Keeley, one of a group of police witnesses called by the state during the day, disclosed that as far back as Dec. 4, 1933, the police knew that the gangsters were trailing Daiches.

Keeley testified that he arrested Murphy and Emblen at 50th street and Dorchester avenue after a chase of several blocks on that date. He returned later to the same place and arrested London, who was waiting on the corner, and confiscated two revolvers in the latter's room.

"Murphy offered to give us $500 if we would give them a pass (let them go)," testified Keeley.

"At that time Murphy told me that they were trailing Daiches. He said we just missed Weitzman."

"Would you believe Murphy under oath?" asked Atotrney Burke.

"I would," replied the policeman as even the jurors laughed.

Keeley did not offer any explanation as to why no precautions were taken to protect Daiches from harm in view of the statement made by Murphy four months before the actual murder.

William Bartz, 32 years old, 6832 South Ada street, is persistent in following out his career. Five years ago he was arrested by the Englewood police, was convicted of burglary, and sentenced to Joliet penitentiary. He was paroled, but was caught carrying a pistol eleven months ago and was sent back to prison for violating parole. Two weeks ago Bartz was again released. Early today a squad from the Englewood district, hearing that a thief was looting the Gilroy drug store at 7462 Vincennes avenue, went there and arrested William.

FRANCE HEDGES ON REARMAMENT OFFER TO HITLER

Wants Talk with British Before Entering Pact.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The British cabinet devoted most of its regular weekly meeting today to consideration of the international situation arising out of the recent Franco-British offer of a five power air security pact to Germany, Italy, and Belgium. The offer included recognition of Germany's rearmament. Under the air security pact all signatories would be bound to come to the help of any of them attacked by air.

No decision was taken regarding acceptance of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's proposal that Britain send a minister to Berlin to discuss with him questions raised in the German reply. It is now clear that no decision can be reached before the visit of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to Paris on Feb. 28, ostensibly to deliver a lecture but really for a further contact with the French government.

French in Difficult Position.

The Germans, with more than usual diplomatic skill, have put the French in a difficult position. It is now generally recognized, although not openly admitted, that the Franco-British offer was drawn in such terms that the French hoped the Germans would refuse brusquely.

The German answer was conciliatory and now, instead of being in a position to demand from Great Britain a defensive alliance against the Germans, the French find themselves faced with the likelihood that they may be compelled to admit Germany's rights of equality and to deal with Hitler as an equal instead of as a conquered foe who must be kept under.

All this is very disconcerting to the French, who now want to talk things over with the British before the latter go ahead and negotiate with Germany for a five power pact.

Britain Becomes Impatient.

There are some indications here that the British are growing tired of the rôle of cat's-paw for pulling the French chestnuts out of the fire, and may take an independent line.

Previously every British foreign minister, no matter how he felt when assuming office, has in a short time come under French influence. Sir John Simon now shows signs of impatience, although so far he has been as docile as Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, who once proclaimed that he loved France as a man loves a woman.

After Simon's visit in Paris next week, he or another British official will go to Berlin to see Hitler. Britain's efforts may be somewhat cramped by the recent executions in Berlin of Baroness Benita von Berg and Frau Renate von Natzmer for spying. The British do not like the idea of beheading women, and this action of the Nazis has caused a popular revulsion against Germany here.

Russia Backs Proposals.

MOSCOW, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Soviet Russia notified England and France tonight it is in agreement with the London proposals for a general European peace pact on condition that they are carried out in full.

Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov instructed the soviet ambassadors at London and Paris to inform the governments there that regional pacts such as the proposed eastern Locarno agreement are considered by the U. S. S. R. as necessary for the preservation of peace in Europe.

FORMER PREMIER AND KIN CLEARED IN STAVISKY CASE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Exactly one year after the body of Magistrate Alfred Prince was found on a railroad track at Dijon and his death was connected with the Stavisky financial scandal, the parliamentary commission of inquiry today issued a statement that it had voted to absolve former Premier Camille Chautemps and his brother-in-law, the late Georges Pressard, prosecutor, who was forced to resign, from all complicity in the magistrate's death.

Many newspaper articles and at least two books have been published in an attempt to show that Magistrate Prince's death was due to a "Masonic crime" by an inner circle of those who had protected Alexander Stavisky.

Pressard was principally accused, and his sudden death some weeks ago was asserted to be due to the immense strain under which he had lived for a year.

To End Stubborn Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

POWERS STALL ON U. S. PLAN TO CONTROL ARMS

Await Hitler Stand Before Signing Up.

GENEVA, Feb. 20.—(AP)—A disposition on the part of several European powers, notably England and Italy, to play for time in considering the problem of the arms trafic until Germany's stand is defined was evidenced here today.

Delegates to the present meetings of the disarmament conference committee considering an American plan to publicize arms manufacture apparently were awaiting the reich's reaction to the Anglo-French proposals that it return to the league of nations and to the disarmament conference.

[Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reply to the London proposals made no mention of Germany's return to the league, nor of the proposal that it enter in arms convention.]

War Outlawed, Yet Possible.

As Hugh Wilson, United States minister to Switzerland and disarmament expert, fought vigorously for preservation of the essentials of the American plan, the Italian delegate remarked that the Briand-Kellogg pact outlawed war, "yet defensive war still remains possible."

Some delegates said they took that to be an allusion to Italy's dispute with Ethiopia.

The Italian representative, Admiral Ruspoli, said he wanted protection given to nations which do not manufacture arms whose orders abroad might be imperiled if a manufacturing company became either a belligerant or neutral.

Wants Thorough Supervision.

A phrase Wilson used in asserting his determination that the arms trafic be thoroughly supervised—"we want to keep track of a cannon from its birth to maturity"—struck the fancy of the delegates. Lord Stanhope of Great Britain, in opposing what he called "super publicity," said Wilson wanted to register the cannon from its birth while Aubert of France wanted publicity for the molten mass of metal.

"This pre-natal publicity overdoes things," Lord Stanhope commented.

General discussion of the various categories of arnaments was completed today without adoption of any articles and sub-committees began preparing amendments to the American plan.

MRS. VANDERBILT IS FORCED TO MAIL HER DAUGHTER'S PRESENT

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt celebrated the eleventh birthday of her daughter, Gloria, today by sending the child a present through the mails and adding another employé to her dressmaking shop.

Declaring she has not given up hope of having the decision revoked whereby her daughter was given over to the custody of her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Vanderbilt said she made no effort to see her daughter on her birthday because, "Naturally I would not go to Mrs. Whitney's."

"I shall see her Saturday as usual," said Mrs. Vanderbilt.

"Business is marvelous!" she said, her eyes sparkling. "But as to my daughter, I am afraid she has become a very much spoiled child, which I think is extremely unfortunate. She is very difficult to entertain and she wants to be entertained every minute, otherwise she is unhappy. And it is difficult to compete in this with Mrs. Whitney. I only hope that she won't be so badly spoiled that she will grow up into an unhappy woman."

Mrs. Vanderbilt added that she entertains Gloria chiefly by taking her to the movies.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 20.—(AP)—A jaunty bandit who refused to compromise on a life term, holding out for ten years, faced the electric chair tonight for a $433 robbery here Dec. 10.

James Trout, 25, Indianapolis, was condemned to death by a jury today, the first doomed under a new statute providing death for armed robbery. Calmly he heard the verdict, which came after an eleven hour trial.

Three employes of the Ballard & Ballard company, flour millers, identified Trout as a man armed with a pistol who participated with others in the holdup of the firm's offices. Two unidentified employés pointed out in the courtroom Jerry Daugherty, 26, of Indianapolis as one of the robbers. Daugherty was arrested and indicted for robbery today.

Trout had his chance to get off with life yesterday. His attorneys countered with a proposal that he plead guilty to the Ballard charge and a grocery holdup and get concurrent ten year terms. He has a police record in Indianapolis and was arrested in Orlando, Fla., in 1930 for Indiana police.

Nebraska Wife, 13, Gives Birth to Son; Mate Is 24

WIFE JUST CAN'T BE FAITHFUL; HE QUITS HER AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Hugh Shuttleworth Holden, who divorced his wife in 1928 and remarried her two years later, divorced her again today. He accused Mrs. Holden of adultery. The suit was not contested. After the first divorce, the wife asked to be taken back and Holden gave her a second chance. They moved from London to Bury St. Edmunds, where he believed there was less temptation. The court decided today that there had been too much, so Holden, whom the judge called a "very tried husband," got a second divorce.

THEY'RE SAFE—IN AN ALL-STEEL BODY

—a feature of the big, rugged New-Value Dodge

THE first Dodge car ever built had an all-steel body. It wasn't chance . . . it wasn't "climbing on a bandwagon" that led Dodge to the safety of the all-steel body. It was progressive engineering, the urge to pioneer, to lead and not follow, in vital, important automobile improvements.

These Dodge bodies have been tested and proved by owners for over 20 years, everywhere, in constant daily use. Dodge not only pioneered the all-steel body but has constantly perfected it over the years.

So, too, with hydraulic brakes. First introduced by Dodge many years ago, Dodge has constantly developed them. Today, Dodge gives you hydraulic brakes that are long past the experimental stage. For in Dodge you get perfected, dual-cylinder hydraulic brakes—safer, more dependable, more economical than other types.

Now Dodge pioneers again the "Airglide Ride", in which you speed smoothly along with new comfort, skimming over bumps without a tremor or jar, taking the curves safely, without sidesway. Another new contribution to motoring ease is "Synchromatic Control", which makes driving unbelievably easy and effortless.

You'll recognize this Dodge as a prize beauty the minute you see it. But you must drive it to see how far ahead of others it is in power and speed, comfort and economy, safety and performance.

FAITHS TO MEET IN BROTHERHOOD SERVICES SUNDAY

City Will Join in National Observance of Day.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi, and a Protestant layman will deliver religious good will messages before a congregation representing those three faiths at Harris hall of Northwestern university in Evanston Sunday night. This was announced yesterday by the Rev. Theodore C. Hume, pastor of New England Congregational church, chairman of Chicago's religious brotherhood day committee. Sunday has been set for observance of brotherhood between leaders of various faiths.

The three Evanston speakers, the Rev. Father Francis Manger of St. Mary's Catholic church, Rabbi Charles Shulman of North Shore congregation, and Dean Ralph Dennis of the Northwestern university school of speech, are representative of speakers at similar services to be held on Sunday not only in the Chicago area but throughout the nation.

Sponsored by National Group.

The movement toward recognition of brotherhood between faiths is sponsored by the national conference of Jews and Christians, headed by Dr. John H. Finley, New York publisher.

Rabbi Solomon Goldman, nationally known Jewish leader, said last night that the brotherhood movement should be encouraged, Chicago, he said, has fallen behind many other larger cities of the country where series of joint meetings of the three greater faiths have been held. Rabbi Goldman added that such services tend to dispel misunderstandings between varying faiths.

Other brotherhood services will be held in the city Sunday. Rabbi A. L. Lassen will be the speaker Sunday morning at the Rogers Park Congregational church. Three Protestant clergymen will occupy the pulpit in the synagogue of Washington Boulevard congregation on Sunday night.

Other Services Planned.

Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Sinai congregation and the Rev. Dr. Douglas Horton of Kenwood United church will exchange pulpits for the morning service, as will the Rev. Dr. Norris L. Tibbetts of Hyde Park Baptist church and Rabbi Joshua Liebman of K. A. M. temple. At New England Congregational church Sunday night Rabbi Lassen and the Rev. Dr. Duncan H. Browne, rector of St. James Episcopal church, will be the speakers.

JUDGE DECREES 24 HOURS IN JAIL FOR A REPORTER

Miami, Fla., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Judge Jefferson W. Browne held Paul Jeans, editor of the Miami Beach Tribune, and Shannon Cormack, a reporter, in contempt of court this afternoon as a result of the publication of a misstatement in the report of the trial of State Senator Hayes Lewis, charged by indictment with operating public gambling at Beautiful Deauville, a night club. A jury of six freed Lewis yesterday.

Cormack was fined $50 and sentenced to 24 hours in the county jail. Jeans was fined $50.

Immediately after the announcement of the decision, counsel for Jeans and Cormack arranged for the preparation of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. They later presented it in the Circuit court. Hearing on the petition was set for tomorrow.

The newspaper had asserted Judge Browne had presided at trial of Fred W. Pine, county collector, who was acquitted in an earlier case of a charge of misconduct under a directed verdict. Judge Browne had said he was one of the judges sitting at that trial, but did not preside, though the newspaper said he had. His decision today included this comment:

"It was evident that the defendants intended to cast suspicion upon the conduct of the present trial, if not directly, then by innuendo and inference. They put on notice the idea that if there were any ruling possible, favorable to Lewis during the trial, the public might expect it because of the relations outlined in the article. A newspaper has a right to express an opinion in regard to the action of a court, but it has no right to question the motives of a judge before or after his action. I therefore find the defendants in contempt."

Jeans and Cormack, by counsel, admitted the responsibility for the published reference to Judge Browne and admitted it contained factual errors. Both in court and in the newspaper that apology was made to the court.

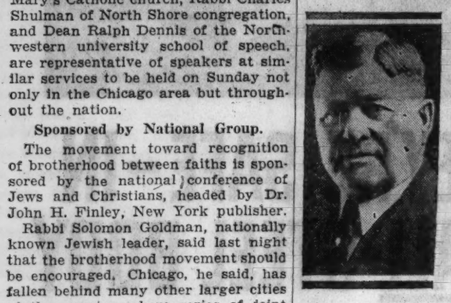
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: She Travels Alone

RITES TODAY FOR GEORGE WILLIAMS, PHILANTHROPIST

Funeral services will be held in the Rosehill cemetery chapel at 2:30 p. m. today for George J. Williams, veteran Chicago attorney and philanthropist. Mr. Williams, who was 80 years old, died of pneumonia late Monday in his home at 4534 Ellis avenue.



GEO. J. WILLIAMS.

Mr. Williams was born at Ludington, Mich. When he was 9 years old he was brought to Chicago by his parents. In 1879 he was admitted to the bar, and, as a specialist in real estate law, accumulated a considerable fortune. In 1919 he and his daughter, Mrs. Madeleine Seymour, founded the St. George School for Girls. The institution, now housed in a new building at 4545 Drexel boulevard, has sixty residents. Mr. Williams established a $250,000 trust fund for its support.

He was a member of the Chicago Bar association, the Chicago Athletic association, and the Olympia Fields and South Shore Country clubs. Surviving Mr. Williams are his widow and daughter. At the funeral services an address on behalf of the bar will be made by Judge John P. McGoorty.

MOTHER SCOLDS WOMAN FAMILY FEARED KIDNAPED

Kansas City, Kas., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Surprised at the anxiety her two day disappearance had caused her mother and brother here, Mrs. Francis Skinner, 36, wife of an Omaha manufacturer, arrived late today to face a maternal scolding.

Mrs. Skinner, who left Omaha Monday morning after writing her mother she was coming here, went to Chicago instead, she explained tonight as her mother, Mrs. C. N. Peck, gave her "a talking to for being so thoughtless."

"I've always been free to do as I please," Mrs. Skinner said, "so when I decided to go to Chicago to check up on some investments I made I just went."

She did not know, she said, that her husband and brother had enlisted aid of federal officers in the belief she had been kidnaped, until she was stopped by State Motor Patrolman L. M. Inman of St. Joseph, 80 miles from Kansas City.

MRS. MARY QUILL ADAMS, 77, DIES; FATHER PIONEER

Mrs. Mary Quill Adams, 77 years old, daughter of Dennis Quill, pioneer paste manufacturer, died last night in the home of her niece, Mrs. Mary O'Connor, 6426 Glenwood avenue. She had been ill of heart disease for 16 months. Mrs. Adams' father founded the D. Quill Paste company here in 1856.

After her graduation from St. Mary's college of Notre Dame Mrs. Adams went to work for her father, and was general manager of the company for 30 years. Surviving are her two sons, John J. and Dennis T. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at St. Ignatius church, with interment at Calvary cemetery.

Cebrian, Spanish Architect Widely Known in U.S., Dies

MADRID, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Juan C. Cebrian, famous Spanish architect, died today at the age of 87. His advanced age aggravated an attack of grippe. Cebrian was well known in California, where he designed numerous university buildings. With Archer Huntington, American author and educator, he founded the American Association of Spanish Teachers in New York. He presented several Spanish objects of art to New York and Chicago museums. Cebrian first came to the United States in 1869, and worked as engineer, contractor for bridge and hydraulic work, and railway construction.

Wm. F. Hogan Dies at 82; Ex-Mayor of Highwood

William F. Hogan, 82 years old, former mayor of Highwood, died yesterday in his home at 9 Walker avenue in the suburb. Born in Albany, N. Y., he moved to Highwood 60 years ago and had lived there ever since. He was president of the village late in the last century and mayor for two terms after it became a city early in the present century. He was an insurance man, retiring ten years ago. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning in St. James church in Highwood. Burial will be in Lake Forest cemetery.

DR. C.W. PAYNE, 70 years old, 434 Oakdale avenue, became ill of heart disease last night will visiting at the home of Mrs. Louise Neis, 429 Wellington avenue, and died a few minutes later. Dr. Payne, a retired physician, was head of the Payne-Purcell Motors company at 316 Madison street, Oak Park. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Arthur Beck of Ottumwa, Ia.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Will Rogers, who is taking one of his periodic vacations from his CBS commercial program, dropped in at the College inn Tuesday evening to visit George Olsen and Ethel Shutta, with whom he played in the Follies. Afterward Rogers gave a party for the entire Olsen troupe.

Asked how he chanced to be in Chicago, Rogers replied: "I came to join the other half of my team—Stepin Fetchit." The colored actor, who has appeared with Rogers in several films, including "Judge Priest" and the current "County Chairman," is playing at the Palace this week.

Rogers is fond of Fetchit. In fact the feeling is mutual. A story that drew a big laugh concerned Fetchit's reaction on seeing "County Chairman." Turning to his manager, he said: "I must have Will Rogers in my next picture, too."

Charlie Agnew and his orchestra replace Olsen and Shutta at the inn and on NBC beginning tonight. Featured with his singing orchestra will be Emrie Ann Lincoln, Dusty Rhoades, Kenny Sprong, soloists, and Olive Olsen, comedienne. Olsen's troupe begins a Chicago theater engagement tomorrow.

Lynn Cole, tenor soloist with the Olsen orchestra, plans to remain in Chicago. He has just been engaged as the headliner of a new WBBM program, "Be Ready for Romance," to have its premiere at 10:15 p. m. next Tuesday.

It's a blue-eyed boy at the home of Isobel Carothers, who plays the part of Lu in "Clara, Lu 'n' Em." Miss Carothers, in private life Mrs. Howard Berolzheimer, and her husband have adopted a six weeks old baby who will be called David Berolzheimer. They live at 205 Hamilton avenue, Evanston.

H. L. Mencken will give his views of "Two Years of the Brain Trust" over NBC at 5:35 next Tuesday. . . . "Party Making with Mickey," a W-G-N feature, will be piped to WXYZ, Detroit, beginning tomorrow. . . . Four leading contract players—Oswald Jacoby, David Burnstine, Michael Gottlieb and Howard Shenken—will start a series on bidding over CBS at 10 p. m. next Monday.

While Jessica Dragonette vacations in Florida all of next month, Lucille Manners will substitute for her on her New York NBC program. Olga Albani would have taken Jessica's place if her Silken Strings engagement here had not interfered.

As a boon to apartment house dwellers, Fred Allen recently introduced a "dog walking service" on his Town Hall broadcast. It was only a burlesque, but two days later a dog walking service advertisement appeared in a New York newspaper and has been running steadily since.

Rites for Anton Mathison Today; School Engineer

Funeral services for Anton Mathison, school engineer who died Monday in his home at 5454 Hutchison street, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Our Savior English Lutheran church, 4159 North Laramie avenue. SERBIAN REGENT BEGS FOR PEACE AS 16 DIE IN RIOTS

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Violence in the kingdom of little Peter II. today caused Prince Paul, chief regent, to break a rigid rule and lash out publicly in condemnation of rioting which has taken sixteen lives in two days. He expressed fervent hope that the people "will see the folly of bloodshed and bullets to gain their ends."

The clashes yesterday and today were the results of a heated preelection campaign in which government oppositionists hope to gain for the Croats and Slovenes a greater voice in the nation's affairs. Paul's share in this government is great. He is defender of the dynasty and the executor of the policies of the late King Alexander, who was assassinated at Marseilles.

"If the people only will have patience to wait until May 1," Paul said. "I am sure they will all have equal opportunity to participate in the approaching elections. I am sure the Croats and the Slovenes will see the wisdom of remaining united with the Serbians rather than attempt a separation or embrace an alien rule."

Dodd Twins to Be June Brides at Double Rites

BY JUDITH CASS.

IN the double wedding the evening of June 12 in St. Paul's church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue, the lovely twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Dodd will become brides. Lois will be married to David Brown Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Arthur Richardson of Oklahoma City, Okla. Helen will exchange her wedding vows with Harris Bradbury Burrows III., son of Mrs. Harris B. Burrows Jr. of Cleveland.

Noted for their blonde beauty as well as their charm, the two young women are certain to be two of the prettiest brides of the approaching spring season. The service is to be read at 8:30 o'clock, but it has not been determined by whom, because of the recent death of Dr. George H. Thomas, long rector of St. Paul's and an intimate friend of the Dodd family.

Mr. Dodd will bring Lois to the altar and Donald Dodd, a brother of the twins, will given Helen in marriage. The ceremony will be a double service in every detail with the minister repeating each vow twice instead of reading two separate ceremonies. A reception is to follow at the South Shore Country club.

Wedding Party Is Announced.

The twins will have two intimate friends, Mrs. Justin Dart [Ruth Walgreen] and Mrs. Walter Scott Trude Jr. [Jane Blocki] for their only attendants.

John Taylor Hamilton of Cedar Rapids will serve Mr. Richardson as best man and Richard Chase Burrows of Cleveland will be best man for his brother. Ushering will be Crawford Bennett of Oklahoma City, Walter Scott Trude Jr., Henry L. McIntyre, and Justin Dart.

Although the path to the altar is the same for the twins, it will divide thereafter. They plan to go in opposite directions on their wedding journeys and then they will return to make their homes in different localities. Mr. Burrows and his bride will live in Evanston in Sheridan square and Mr. Richardson and Lois will live until next February at 240 East Delaware place. Then when Mr. Richardson finishes his law course at Northwestern university, he and his bride will go to Oklahoma City to make their home permanently.

The parties for the twins have already started. A fortnight ago Mrs. Dart entertained at a luncheon and shower and this week-end Mr. Hamilton has invited them and their fiancés for a house party in Cedar Rapids. Mrs. Trude is planning a kitchen shower for the near future.

Tell Engagement of Beatrice Norton.

As hostess in the box of her mother tomorrow afternoon at the Symphony concert Miss Beatrice Norton will be receiving the good wishes of her many friends, for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hubbard Norton of 4930 Woodlawn avenue, are making known her engagement to Robert Vernon Dilley of Chicago and Cleveland, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Vernon Dilley of Cleveland.

Miss Norton prepared at the Faulkner school for Dana hall and after studying there went to the Roerich museum in New York City to study theater production. Later she pursued this same course at the Goodman theater school here.

This winter she has been identified as chairman of the committee sponsoring the chamber music series. On Tuesday she returned from Florida with her parents in time for the chamber concert.

Mr. Dilley was graduated from Dartmouth college where he was a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity and the Harvard school of business administration. He is now in business in Chicago so that he and Miss Norton will make their home here after their marriage next fall.

Kennedy-Van Schaick Wedding on Saturday.

The wedding of Miss Julie Anne Kennedy, sister of Mrs. Frederick S. Bailey to John Morel van Schaick, son of Mrs. Gerard van Schaick of Highland Park, will take place Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bailey in Niles, Mich. The Rev. Charles Melcher of Philadelphia, a cousin of the bridegroom, will read the service at 4 o'clock and a reception will follow.

Mrs. Van Schaick is leaving for Niles tomorrow and numerous members of her family will make the trip to Michigan for the wedding. They include Anthony Gerard Van Schaick, who will attend his brother as best man; Arthur Van Schaick of Southport, Mass., the bridegroom's uncle, and Mr. and Mrs. John Morel of Savannah, Ga., Mrs. Van Schaick's brother and sister-in-law. Miss Dixie Middleton Kennedy will be her sister's attendant.

Mr. Van Schaick and his bride will go to Island Beach, Ga., Florida, and Nassau, on their wedding trip. Upon

Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, the former Mary Meeker, reeceived many compliments Tuesday not only because she was looking smart and charming in a new spring outfit, but because she and her committee had made such a success of the Junior league's annual art show and had planned such an amusing program. Mrs. Cramer is chairman of the arts and interests committee of the league.

A NEWCOMER to a western suburb had failed to purchase her 1935 Illinois license plates, and during her five day residence in the village had been stopped several times by the village constabulary. On the sixth day she not only received a ticket but was stopped twice in the public square and asked about her license. That same afternoon she started out in the car to pick up her children at school. As she approached the square, with her children and some of their little friends in the car, she was again stopped by a trafic officer. Before he had time to ask the familiar question she spoke hurriedly.

Variety—Logic—Intuition—Street Cleaner—Theme Song.

"I'm the Widow Straub," she said, "and this," indicating the children in the car, "is the Hauptmann jury. Can you direct me to a booking agent?"

A YOUNG Chicagoan was considering the purchase of a sewing machine on the instalment plan.

"The price is $32.50," said Norma, "five dollars down and the balance monthly, with a carrying charge of four dollars."

"But if you have an automobile," interjected Pauline, "couldn't you bring the machine home yourself and save the carrying charge?"

A LETTER from Florida mentions a lecture given by Eunice Tietjens of Chicago at the winter institute of literature at the University of Miami on writing for children. Miss Tietjens mentioned the advisability of not "writing down" to children. She told of an occasion when she had taken two young children to see the mystery play, "The Bat." After the first act the smaller of the two girls said with conviction:

"I know who did it?"

"How do you know? And who was it?" Miss Tietjens asked.

"It was the detective," replied the child. "I know because I don't like him, and the one I don't like always does it."

THIS incident proves something or other, but I'm not sure what. A street cleaner, meticulously collecting litter from the gutter, paused beside his cart, drew a candy bar from his pocket, removed the wrapping, dropped it into the gutter, and pushed on, leaving the litter behind him.

Miss Skinner Effective in New Monologs

Six Characters Tell Decline of Noted Mansion.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, the gifted lady of the "solo dramas," occupies the stage of the Selwyn theater this week and gives the major portion of her attention to a new dramatic sequence called "Mansion on the Hudson." In this series of character sketches running in a connected story, she deserts the field of historical memoirs which inspired her with 'Wives of Henry VIII." and "Loves of Charles II." She is now a student of the American scene during the last half century. Her method resembles that of a novelist dealing with the decline and fall of an aristocratic family and its ancestral abode somewhere on the Hudson river.

"Tall Trees," as the estate is called, is the central figure in this saga in monologs. Miss Skinner plays six characters who have frequented its spacious rooms from 1880 until the present, but the old house itself, with its traditions of social greatness, is the theme of her story.

She impersonates, in succession, a gracious mother of 1880, who had made a mistake by marrying a Howland, but could not be tempted away from her duty to the family name; a young wife of the pompadour and shirt-waist period [1898], who loses her husband in the Spanish war; a grim spinster of the Howland clan, who sells the place and faces poverty in 1920; the chatelaine of 1927, a bejewelled and leggy heiress married to a Tammany upstart; the Italian wife of Tony, the bootlegger, who bought the place for a roadhouse in 1934; and a loose society girl of the present, patronizing the roulette tables at "Tall Trees" of the present.

In this series of vivid character sketches, costumed with her usual effectiveness, Miss Skinner presents the story of the decay of "Tall Trees" and its occupants as typical of the swift currents of change in American life. The sequence is decidedly effective in every scene. It does not carry the glamour of her excursions into historical amours, but it is work of higher grade in the matter of invention. As acting, it enhances her well-established reputation for versatility and grace.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A new aid to eyebrow grooming combines the workabiltiy of scissors and the utility of tweezers. The leverage of the scissor-handled tweezer promotes ease and accuracy in shaping the brows.

One of the most maddening chores of the well groomed woman is keeping her brows presentable. If she has the money she lets the beauty shop worry about it; every ten days or so she presents herself before her favorite operator, tells her to get out the tweezers, grits her teeth, and submits, sneezing, to the irritating operation of having unruly hairs plucked. If she hasn't the money she grits her teeth still harder and tweezers the darned things herself.

Going to the beauty shop and having this as a regular service is, somehow or other, the route women prefer. We women are funny in that we'll pay perfectly good money to let others inflict pain upon us; if we must do the tweezing ourselves we're inclined to put it off until next week, and then the week after that—and then to let it go so long that we look messy about the brows nine-tenths of the time.

But there is a new gadget out that will probably put an end to this alibi for home users of the tweezer—an instrument that is a happy marriage of the tweezer and the scissors and that you can work with before your own mirror with remarkable dexterity.

It is a scissor handled tweezer (the handles, by the way, are very gay—red, green, lavender, rose, ivory, or blue finish) that gives clear vision in the tweezing of brows as you attack the problem yourself. Because of the leverage it has an efficient grip and the little hairs pop out in a jiffy. Really pop out, too. They aren't just cut at the point where the tweezer grips the hair. The gadget insures ease and accuracy in shaping or grooming the brows—and if you think brow grooming isn't important you just don't know anything about making the most of your looks.

It's good—and it's so inexpensive you'll swoon of the shock!

Used in Smart Accessories for Color Contrast.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

All the fanfare about chamois skin has been justified, though the footwear of this light yellow shade are hardly the slippers to get into north of the Mason-Dixon line. Chamoiskin costume accessories are plenty good to look at and easy to wear. They make slick color contrasts. Wait till you see a chamois belt, gloves, handbag, and hat, with that fascinating new shade of violet that smart gals are wearing.

The belt collections of chamois are good enough to claim most of your lunch money. The butter yellow of the chamois is a nice smooth shade, without a single streak to mar the effect. Most of the buckles are covered affairs to match the belt itself, and you can find all widths and lots of interesting shapes and sizes in the buckles. The bag arrivals are a bit tardy, but all kinds are on the way. In another week you'll have practically an unlimited assortment from which to choose.

Navy and chamois yellow form a new color combine that is going strong. Slipon gloves, a belt of chamois, with a navy hat trimmed with a strap and buckle of the chamoiskin provide exciting color contrasts for a simple navy blue suit in any of the smooth spring woolens. Some of the clever new berets are fashioned completely of chamoiskin—flattering. French looking berets with tiny tucks and self insets elaborated with fine stitching in yellow, or deep blue, or dark brown. Bows of the chamois in strict tailored formations are ideal trimmings for tailored hats that top slim tailored suits.

Smooth and rough straws in the exact shade of the popular chamois yellow make some of the newest hats—the small piquant flat brimmed sailor models. The brims are narrow and made without a single dip or twist, the crowns are shallow, and the good old elastic bands are still with us. There is hardly a new spring hat available without that handy bit of rubber to keep it secure. Don't sniff at these elastics; there is no other way to keep the newest hat on your head without holding it on with both hands.

Rachel Crothers Will Produce Own Film with Sam Goldwyn

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—A production agreement unique in the motion picture business was made public here today by Sam Goldwyn, producer, with the announcement that he is now associated with Rachel Crothers, playwright, for the filming of a picture starring Miriam Hopkins.

Miss Crothers will be paid no salary, receiving instead a percentage of the proceeds of the picture. She will co-direct the film, help write the scenario, and have charge of the casting and staging of the production. She will also supervise the setting, scenery, plot and wardrobe.

This arrangement, novel to Hollywood, is similar to Miss Crothers' contracts in staging legitimate plays.

Miss Crothers has directed Miss Hopkins on the stage in the past.

Good Morning!

If you like the Charlie Chan series I recommend "Charlie Chan in Paris" as one of the best of the lot.

It's smooth. It's exciting. It has a number of "different" twists—and it certainly had ME guessing.

Warner Oland is at his suave, shrewd best. As Charlie Chan he comes to Paris, ostensibly on vacation but really to root out something that is very rotten indeed. That he succeeds in his mission is, of course, inevitable. But plenty that is dark, deep, and dangerous transpires before Chan's inevitable triumph rolls around.

A humorous note is injected by the introduction of Chan's enthusiastic young son, who aspires to help papa detect. . . .

Mary Brian and Thomas Beck—he's new to me—attend neatly to the romantic angle of the piece. The villains are given able portraiture by well—John Miljan's one. The others I won't name, as you're not supposed to KNOW they're villains till the last reel.

Long live Charlie Chan! Me likum!

See you soon!

'The Green Pastures' Back in New York for Fifth Birthday

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Richard B. Harrison, who used to be a Pullman porter on the Santa Fe and who is now regarded as the foremost colored actor of his time, and "The Green Pastures," the remarkable play that was spurned by numerous managements and yet grossed more than $3,000,000 in five years, returned today to Broadway. On Tuesday evening, the fifth anniversary, the Marc Connelly play will have its Manhattan reopening at the Forty-fourth Street theater.

The company has traveled 40,000 miles, played 203 towns, and appeared in all but eight states. They're here for a stay for as long as New York wants the play. And then, from here? To Boston, perhaps, or Chicago.

In all those 40,000 miles, those 203 towns, those 1,652 performances "De Lawd" has not missed a performance or been late for a cue. And he said today that he felt better than he has in years. Harrison is 70.

Boy Soprano, 9, a Feature of Chorus Concert

BY EDWARD MOORE.

One of the striking features of the program given by the Carl Craven Ladies' chorus at Kimball hall last night was the singing of one of the soloists, Ernest Lee, a boy soprano 9 years old.

There was perhaps a touch of temperament in the fact that he was missing at the time he should have appeared, but he turned up later in time to sing two Neapolitan songs, "O Mari" in Italian and "Torna a Surriento" translated into modern Greek. A boy's voice can be one of the loveliest musical instruments on earth, and his is one of the loveliest of all.

Mr. Craven has developed an uncommonly good chorus. It has tone, balance, flexibility, and the ability to sing in parts clearly and project the English language at the same time. Another feature of the program was the fact that Josephine Forsyth came on from Cleveland to play the piano accompaniment of her now well known setting of the Lord's Prayer.

Josephine Gerwing, violin soloist, played two movements from the Vieuxtemps Concerto in D minor, short pieces by Godard and Mendelssohn-Kreisler, and several obbligati with the chorus.

Lotte Lehmann, soprano, and the winner of a high reputation during several seasons here with the Chicago opera, will give her first Chicago song recital at the Auditorium next Monday night. Lieder by Brahms, Schubert, Hugo Wolf and Richard Strauss will be prominently featured on her program.

That wizard of the concertina, Rafael, who played violin numbers with almost a violin's purity of tone during the recent engagement of the Continental Varieties here, has returned to take up a week's engagement at the Chicago theater beginning tomorrow.

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts the hazardous though thrilling post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly, and wealthy, who has been receiving letters, that cannot be traced, threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, though she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables dies. Her death is attributed to natural causes. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had had prosecuted.

INSTALMENT X.

A COMMON DANGER.

"There was but one source of danger common to him and me. Even Harry, much against his will, was forced to agree when I pointed it out to him, although then and always he has tried his best to make light of my idea. Now, hand me my dressing bag. I will show you the communication I received, and the others as well."

A folded sheet of common paper similar to what Sarah had seen in London was put into her hand. Rudely printed on it were the following words:

"Lady, we got your friend, now we go after you. It may take time, but no matter, we shall contrive another accident. We give ourselves one year. Make the most of it."

For the first time Sarah began to believe. One by one she read the entire series of letters—twelve in all. All were dated the seventeenth of the month, the sevens crossed.

"You see?" murmured Miss Venables, watching her closely. "These itinerant vendors move about continually. O, I have never supposed the letters to be written by the prisoners themselves! That, I am assured, is an impossibility; but if the culprits have friends in league with them it comes to the same thing. There are no finger prints. The detective you saw supplied that information—and their spy system must be highly perfected, considering that all my addresses are correct, even the one in Oberammergau, where I spent only three days. It was there I got the bad attack of food poisoning. In Ravenna I was nearly run down by a car with colored curtains—and those two incidents are not the only escapes I could mention, accidental though they may have been."

So this was the baron, this shrunken, gnarled little man.

Her face had taken on a grayish tinge. She moistened her dry lips and reached for the letters.

"You have seen all you want of the horrid things? Then let us lock them away and close the subject. I shall sleep the better for having poured out my tale."

Sarah could now understand why one place was considered as safe as another, but she did think to inquire if the Ste. Brigitte police were promising any sort of protection.

"They have their instructions from the sureté générale of Paris, but my main comfort will be to settle down quietly again and be among friends, particularly the De Bellesnaves, of whom I am so fond. It is true they know nothing of all this, so be very careful not to mention it to them; but you can't think how reassured I shall be by the sight of their kind faces. Dr. Gilcrest's, too." She sank back, her face gaunt, but peaceful in the little pool of golden light.

Sarah switched off the two lamps and got into bed, her mind strangely torn between pity and an odd dissatisfaction.

In dazzling sunshine the two women alighted at Hyeres, from which terminus a car was to take them the remaining ten miles to Ste. Brigitte.

Sarah had found something supremely touching in her employer's eagerness to end the self-imposed exile from the one spot representing home. She successfully hid a smile when she was told that it was the French blood in the Venables which made them so adaptable to this delightful country. French blood! She had yet to meet any one more truly, basically British than Christine Venables, the timid romance of whose nature stamped her no less surely than the repressions which sought to cover it up. Conventional, prim—but was it not these very qualities which inclined her toward an atmosphere in which without loss of dignity she could for once expand?

Lorgnette raised, she was peering along the platform. Now she gave a glad cry of recognition.

"Is it? Yes, to be sure, it's Jacques, the same chauffeur who always drives me. Really, this is like old times."

The black browed Provençal grinned, jerked two dirty fingers toward his beret, and at once began shouldering their bags. A two seater, shabby and white with dust, chugged in their direction. Again the lorgnette did service, and again the spinster exclaimed in pleased astonishment.

"Doctor! And you, baron! To think you came all the way to meet us! How good of you both!"

The two men got out to greet them. Dr. Gilcrest, looking much improved by a deeper sunburn, nodded to Sarah with the same reserved indifference which had so annoyed her before. Somehow, for the preservation of her own conceit, she had hoped he would show her some attention; but the strange, gnomelike figure beside him comforted her wounded vanity by his gentle, smiling courtesy. So this was the Baron de Bellesnaves, this shrunken, gnarled little man in the pie crust colored homespun suit far too loose for his wizened frame! She saw a face criscrossed with wrinkles and yellowed to the same unwholesome tint of its owner's clothing, thin hair, less gray than faded, and a pair of washed out blue eyes in which world weary sophistication mingled oddly with a childish and whimsical good-will. Prematurely aged by suffering, yet imperishably young—that was her first impression. Her second informed her that the baron, serene in misfortune, belonged not to the upstart nobility but to the old régime well rooted in the past. She was glad of this, having feared something different.

Glowing with pleasure, Miss Venables was saying: "Two friends—but where is the third? I don't see Polly."

"You think she would desert me? La voila!"

The cumbersome, singularly repulsive white bulldog just disentangling its bulk from the steering gear was, like so many pure specimens of its breed, a misery to itself and all beholders. It lumbered toward the group, bleared eyes upcast. Sarah patted it and moved hastily aside.

The baron chuckled. "Ah, mon ange, no one loves you but me! Gilcrest can show no greater proof of friendship than by allowing you in his car. C'est vral, mon vieux?"

Sarah saw a smile of affectionate understanding pass between the two men. For an instant a veil dropped from the doctor's slate blue eyes, revealing something likable beneath; but the veil fell again as the baroness' name was mentioned, a fact which recalled to Sarah Harry Venables' teasing innuendo.

"I hear Maddalena is in Paris. Indeed, she wrote me a day or so ago. How is she? As lovely as ever?"

"Unchanged, always the same. But why not? At an age when the blood is like new, strong wine. . . . Ah, Brian, you are looking at your watch, which means we must be off."

"Rushed as usual, I suppose? I hear there's been a great deal of flu about. But won't you both dine with us this evening? Baron, as you're alone, perhaps just this once——"

The little man gave a smiling refusal on the plea of a strict diet. Gilcrest hesitated and asked if he might leave it open.

"But certainly! Come if you can, just as you are. You got my letter?" Miss Venables asked in a lowered tone. "You were right about my poor sister-in-law, it seems. I had made the appointment, but that very night a crisis arose, and her heart gave way. It was sudden and shocking. I will tell you about it when we have an opportunity to talk."

Sarah saw the doctor's somber gaze just graze hers and drift quickly away. As on a former occasion she read in it what was either a question or troubled uncertainty whose nature she could not determine. The bare nod he gave made her feel the subject of Mrs. Venables' death was one he had little wish to discuss. Did he fear some criticism of his professional judgment?

She was still vaguely wondering about him when, from the departing car, she looked back to see him, preoccupied and absent of face, wiping off the dusty windscreen of the two seater. The baron waved to them, and stooped with tender solicitude to hoist his unwieldly pet into the car.

Arliss Wears His Monocle at Rehersals

Does Not Drop It Until Camera Starts.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—The monocle that is inseparably associated with George Arliss' civilian moments has accompanied him into the splendid settings of the Paris palace of Cardinal Richelieu in Arliss' current film "Richelieu" for Twentieth Century.

Watching a scene today in which his secretary-companion, Père Joseph [Hallowell Hobbs] in the sandals and woolly brown habit of the Capuchins, is bringing information to the great French statesman, Arliss wore his eyeglass through all the rehersals, the focusing of lights and the measuring of camera distances.

Then when time came for Director Rowland V. Lee to start the actual scene, Arliss moved a muscle on his upper right cheek and another muscle of his lower forehead and popped the eyeglass out without touching it with his hand. It fell, suspended by a thin black ribbon, along the front of his red cardinal's cassock and lay there on his chest looking like some kind of a sacred relic while the cameras ground the scene.

For the next scene, in which Arliss sat at a table and the cameras moved closer for a semi-closeup, he removed the monocle entirely and concealed it under one of the papers on the table.

Maud Howell, who has been with Arliss, helping direct his stage appearances and advising with his film directors, since 1920, was on the sidelines and asked the fine old actor to re-do some of his rehersals and one of his scenes when she saw some reason for it. But she did not mind the presence of the monocle; so it evidently will not show in an incongruous manner when the scene is shown in the theaters.

Arliss wears a grayish mustache with spikey ends and a thin pointed chin beard and these look so natural that it required some convincing before this onlooker was wholly persuaded the mustache and beard were sheer makeup.

Ceremony to Take Place at St. Paul's Church.

their return April 1 they will make their home in Buchanan, Mich., where the bridegroom temporarily is engaged in business.

At 4:30 this afternoon in the chapel of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle Miss Josephine Burke, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Burke, will become the bride of Ralph Fournier, son of Mrs. Charles Fournier of Butte, Mont. The service will be read by the Rev. George Kearny. A reception will follow at the Blackstone hotel.

Miss Mildred Burke will attend her sister as maid of honor and Frank Grismer of Cleveland will be Mr. Fournier's best man. The ushers will be Lewis Evans of St. Paul and James Doyle Ryan. After a wedding trip Mr. Fournier and his bride will make their home at 5124 Kimbark avenue.

Roy McWilliamses Arrive from France.

After postponing their trip several times Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams finally have arrived in Chicago from their home in Biarritz, France. They are visiting Mrs. George T. Langhorne instead of Mr. McWilliams' sister and brother-in-law, the Joseph C. Beldens, as was originally planned, because Mr. and Mrs. Belden have gone to Florida. Mrs. Langhorne is entertaining at tea for them and for Gen. and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy this afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams will spend a month with Mrs. Langhorne and then visit the Beldens upon their return from Florida.

Small, informal dinners, most of them preceding jaunts to the theater or some other interesting place, are popular at this time of year. The Alexander Kirks are having such a party Saturday night at their residence, 926 Lake Shore drive; the O'Neil Ryans had one Tuesday night at their apartment on East Delaware place for their house guest, Mrs. Ryan's sister, Miss Caroline Tyler of St. Louis, and the Byron S. Harveys had one last night before seeing Ina Claire's amusing play at the Grand Opera house.

There will be many Harvard widows in town and in the country this evening, for Harvard alumni are meeting at the Palmer house for their annual dinner. The speakers will be Prof. Harry E. Clifford, dean of the school of electrical engineering at Harvard; Jerome Greene, who is working on the plans for Harvard's tricentennial to be celebrated in 1936, and Dr. Elliott Carr Cutter of the Harvard medical school. The toastmaster will be G. Cook Kimball, the club president.

Eagle River Trip for Winter Sports.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith, the Snelling Robinsons, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Welles are leaving tonight for Eagle River, Wis., to spend the week-end winter sporting.

The Alfred M. Wolfes and several friends are leaving today to spend Washington's birthday and the week-end at the Wolfes' country place at Ephraim on Green bay in Wisconsin. They expect to enjoy three days of skiing, tobogganing and skating and to come home feeling as if they had been away for a much longer vacation. Going with them are Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Miss Janet Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Edward George, and Alfred Kline.

The John Alden Carpenters left Chicago last night for San Francisco to sail Saturday for the orient. They do not plan to return home until early June. Their first stop will be Honolulu, where they will visit the Walter Dillinghams; from there they will go to Japan and then to China, where they have taken a house in Peiping for six weeks.

It will be April before Peter Berkey returns from his winter vacation upon which he embarked a few days ago. He and Richard C. Lilly of St. Paul flew to Los Angeles and from there, on the 17th, they took off by plane for Miami via South America.

Before long the Charles Breasteds hope to get away for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, in Washington, D. C. They will take their young son, still unnamed although he will be six weeks old next Sunday, with them so that his congresswoman grandmother can see how much he has grown since she last saw him just a few days after he was born.

Enjoy Holiday on West Coast.

It will be another month before the Alden Swift family returns to Chicago from a vacation in the southwest. The Swifts, including Mr. and Mrs. Swift, Narcissa, and Lydia, left by motor a fortnight ago. They went to Gulf Hills, Miss., first and are now on their way to Phoenix, where they will stay at the Arizona Biltmore while enjoying golf and swimming and horseback in the sunshine.

On their way to Phoenix they intend to stop in Kirkland, Ariz., at the Z Triangle ranch owned by the James Minottos. Mrs. Minotto is the former Ida May Swift, sister of Alden Swift.

In the absence of Walter Lichtenstein, president of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, William B. Hale will preside at the luncheon the council will give today at the Palmer house. The speaker will be Vernon Bartlett, diplomatic correspondent of the London News Chronicle and foreign affairs analyst for the British Broadcasting company. Mr. Bartlett will discuss the possibilities of an imminent war in Europe.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Mayer of 5203 University avenue announce the marriage of their daughter Janet to Arthur Garfield Levy Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Levy of the Windermere hotel, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Levy and his bride will be at home after Feb. 27 at 7300 South Shore drive.

Tricks of Beauty World Aid in Concealing Liabilities

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's funny, with all the vanity with which our sex is supposed to be equipped, how women will go out of their way to expose a liability. I thought of it the other day when a certain woman appeared with her hair brushed back off her brow and over her ears. Her forehead has such deep furrows in it for a comparatively young person, and her ears were not intended for a beautiful-ear-contest entry. They just weren't a bit pretty. With all the coiffure aids available now, it is no trick to get a lovely coiffure to subdue a wrinkled brow, if not to cover it. And charming hairdresses may be arranged with ears covered.

That's one kind of liability exposing. I understand the passion for brilliant nail tips. I like them myself, although there are hands you can't bear to think of wearing them, the the louder to advertise bony fingers, enlarged knuckles, and generally unattractive hands. A light nail polish is in excellent taste, so why not leave the nail brilliants to the pretty handed just by way of covering up what one had better keep covered?

Then, there are just countless women who needn't make thicker looking a thick calf of the leg. These sit, for example, with one leg pressed against the other, the pressed one spreading out its flabby flesh unnecessarily. All one need do is to sit with knees not crossed and skirt draped to hide the fleshy upper part of the leg. Or, if legs are crossed, cross them above the knees, not below. And direct the toes of the crossed upper leg down in the same direction as the supporting one.

A thickened waistline, for instance, shouldn't advertise its rotundity with a light colored belt in tone contrasting to the dress. A belt of the same color as the dress is so much better. High necklines, much in fashion now, are better than wide-at-the-back V lines, which expose knobby collar bones and red, lethery skin.

TELLS OF DAYS SHE LOST

I'll always regret the time it took me to try Midol; the first time that I used it proved that I had simply been suffering needlessly every month." A great many women could say that! Are you one who is postponing its comfort and still enduring periodic pain?

These tablets have no narcotics of any kind, but they act very fast and are effective for hours. Two tablets should see you through your worst day. Midol is a special medicine, for this special purpose, and specialists can tell you how well it works! You'll see it on the druggist's counter — or just ask for Midol. Today, so you'll have it ready.

Some Faults Are Common to All Children

"Inbetweens" Especially Share Weaknesses.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"So my child's not the only one who behaves like that," is a reflection that holds comfort for many mothers. It makes them feel, first, that there's nothing wrong with their particular child and second, it makes them feel that they are not complete failures and the cause of everything wrong that their child does.

This is the kind of comfort that is especially needed by the parents of children who are anywhere from 6 to 11 or 12 years of age. That is why we summed up yesterday the changes that may be expected in the boy or girl who has left little childhood behind, and why we are going to run over today some of the difficulties that often arise during these years. Of course these are varied but among them are often to be found:

Dislike of school.
Troubles at school with those in authority.
Difficulty in developing sociability—or the opposite, which is:
Too great absorption in the gang and being too much influenced by them.
Slowness—as in dressing or doing any given task.

Trance-like obliviousness to what is said or going on, such as not answering, etc.
Forgetfulness.
Heedlessness.
Clumsiness.
Objecting to doing chores or helping.
Use of "bad words."
Showing off.
Disobedience.
Argumentativeness.
Untruthfulness and dishonesty.
Questioning of authority.
Physical ills, contagious diseases, accidents in violent and adventurous play, tonsil removal, etc.

Mayor Buys First Box for Hospital's Benefit Concert

The first box for the Easter Sunday benefit concert celebrating the golden jubilee of St. Mary of Nazareth hospital was purchased yesterday by Mayor Kelly. The concert is to be held in the Auditorium theater. Miss Jean Tennyson, who made her debut with the Civic Opera company last season, will be the principal artist. The celebration commemorates the establishment in this country of the Polish Catholic sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth, who conduct the hospital.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

WHEN SHOULD YOU MAKE A JUMP RESPONSE TO YOUR PARTNER'S DOUBLE OF AN OPENING BID?

Here again you cannot proceed on the assumption that your partner's double is necessarily based on distributed high cards or that he will fit any suit you bid. This was a proper assumption when you were using the old "auction" double, but when you use the double in the versatile way I advise you cannot at this stage know whether your partner's double is "distributional," in which case it would be of the auction type, but stronger or "strategic," in which case it will almost surely not include normal support for the suit in which you are tempted to make a jump response. This very uncertainty, which cannot be cleared up until your partner has made another bid, is the strong point of our doubles, and I am particularly anxious that you should not get into trouble through incomplete understanding of its proper handling. On your first response you must therefore assume that your partner's double is strategic; that he may have less than Q x x in your best suit, so that a fit between the two hands may be difficult to find, and that there may not be any fit in any declaration unless you are the one who can override this fear of a misfit. A jump response to a double is a forcing bid, forcing to game, and you know that I absolutely refuse to permit a forcing bid or response being made [other than the one over one, which is only a limited force] unless there is certainty of a fit for the twenty-six cards in some declaration. I think you will find that in response to a Sims double you should not force unless:

[a] Your hand contains an original Sims bid; I mean that it would justify your opening the bidding as dealer.

[b] You must not give a jump response in a suit unless it consists of at least five cards and is nearly solid, so that you can rebid it without qualm if your partner does not raise it, and need not worry about giving him the impression that it is a six card suit. However, you must be prepared for his holding only a weak doubleton in it. In this case he has a long suit of his own; his double was strategic. Consequently you may, after one rebid of your suit, have to abandon that suit and consign the hand to your partner's suit. You must therefore have some kind, a fit for both the two unbid suits when you jump in a five card suit. At least Q x or x x x in each of them, so that you are willing to let your partner be declarer in a game contract in his suit if he cannot help you in your suit even after a rebid.

[c] When your suit is a six card suit you can jump without the suggested support for both the unbid suits. Lacking such support, however, your six card suit must be so strong that you are satisfied to play for game in it, even though your partner may have no support in it. It should, therefore, be independent of trump support: K Q J x x x or K Q 10 9 x x. The guarantee of "no eventual misfit" which justifies your force now resides in your own big suit and not in any other resource in the hand. Of course, to have the equivalent of an original bid you must have values outside that one suit, but if those outside values are all in one suit it is extremely likely that the suit in which you have nothing is the suit your partner will bid and rebid, because it is the basis of a strategic double. Don't gamble on his holding the right one of two suits. If in doubt respond first in minimum terms and if the bidding is kept open for you make a constructive rebid on the next round—a "belated game try."

[d] If your hand is of the borderline or defensive type and you have no suit justifying a jump response, your only jump bid would be two no trumps. Do not make this bid unless you have the opponent's suit well taken care of, by which I mean that you have it stopped once beyond any doubt, even if another suit is opened and the lead comes through you in their suit, and that there is also a strong probability that you have a second stopper in it. The ace is not enough, nor ace jack alone. K 10 9 x or Q J x x or K J x will do, but not Q J x. With only one stopper, bid only one no trump and see what your partner does. Best prospects are now for game in any suit he may bid in reply. With no stopper, bid your best four card suit, but only at the minimum level, and make a constructive rebid on the next round.

Orgy of Hate Only Rebellion Within Oneself

BY DORIS BLAKE.

This is the morning's stickler.

Con you be in love with a person and still be able to hate that person at times?

Can you, reader? Ever indulge in a paroxysm of hate for that person to whom you're bound by ties of love?

"I love Blank dearly most of the time, but there are times when I hate him for the way he acts toward me!"

We don't know how much truth there is to the claim, by certain students of the emotions, that there is but a frail border line between intense love and intense hate, that this is why one can slip out of a mad infatuation suddenly into a violent hatred for the same individual. We haven't any really authentic statistics on the subject. We could argue more from the standpoint of human frailties and follies which would regulate feelings from burning hot to icy cold.

More often than not, we take the nose dive into the hate inferno because our own wills are crossed, or because an imaginary idealism about a person, built up by ourselves, is suddenly dissolved. Or, because a stronger will than ours appears about to crush us. In other words, a hate orgy is more likely to be a rebellion, over something in our own selves, that may be anything but a proud asset. Our ego is stung, or we haven't been considered, as we expected the man in love with us to show never failing consideration. Or, maybe from simple bilious innards we can work up a case of wronged love.

We wouldn't go trying to analyze the emotions scientifically. You can always use your own good head to figure out just what you did to develope the hate orgy. What weakness in you furnished the resentment? It's a good game, anyway, for clearing the brain of a lot of impractical ideals about two people in love, who turn out to be only human beings after all.

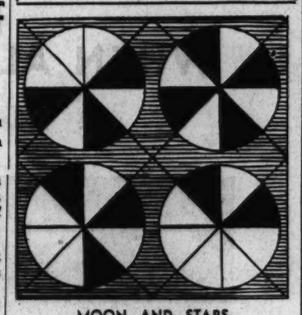
Celestial Design Intriguing Basis of Pieced Quilt



MOON AND STARS.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Moon and Stars" is one of the most intriguing of all pieced quilt blocks, because it is almost impossible to discover the secret which makes it such a striking design. It is not a difficult pattern to piece, and the colors of lavender, blue, and white create a most unusual effect. The quilt is set together with alternate blocks of pieced and plain material.

Picnic Ham Has Ideal Size for Small Family

Adapts Itself to Many Cooking Methods.

BY MARY MEADE.

Don't let your sense of propriety be outraged at the suggestion of a "picnic" ham in what is obviously not picnic weather. There's nothing in the name, you know, but there is a pat idea in that particular cut of meat. That is, if your family is small and the thought of using up a whole ham, or even a half one, is too, too dismaying, a picnic ham is a most satisfactory way of indulging your ham fancies.

This tidy chunk of cured ham comes from the shoulder and can be purchased, conveniently boned, in sizes from one and a half to three pounds or thereabouts. Or, if you prefer, you can order your small piece of ham in the form of the ham shank, in a handy size for braising with vegetables, or as the more impressive ham butt, which lends itself to delightful baking.

If any of this strikes you ham enthusiasts as good tidings, or as a happy reminder, you're probably all ready by now to leap to the nearest cookbook to see if you can ferret out any new ways to cook these small pieces of hams. Leap if you will, but first tarry a second to see if any of these will provide the necessary stimulation.

The handy size of these less ponderous hams makes them particularly adaptable to braising or baking in a casserole. If the baking course has more appeal, plunk your small ham into a kettle of simmering water and let it cook slowly until it's tender. Anywhere from one to two hours should suffice, depending upon the size of the piece. Then place it in a baking dish and treat it to just the sort of sweet, spicy coating you'd give to a whole ham. Brown sugar and cloves, strained honey, sweet pickle liquor, fruit juices, grated pineapple—any of these will do nicely. Then brown the small roast in a moderate oven for around 30 minutes.

For braising, the parboiling process may be forgotten. The trick to this is simple. Place the small ham in a casserole, cover and surround it with two cups of diced raw vegetables—potatoes, celery, onions, carrots, whatever you like—douse it with a cup of tomato juice and let it cook, covered, in a slow oven for two hours. For variety perhaps you'll choose to substitute two cups of cooked lima beans for the vegetables and use half tomato juice and half chili sauce for the liquid.

PICNIC HAM WITH ORANGE SAUCE.

Slice the small piece of ham into half-inch slices. Arrange these in a flat baking dish, with small wedges of pineapple and orange sections on each slice. Then over the slices pour a sauce made by mixing:

2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon flour
Juice of 1 orange
Grated rind of ½ orange
1 cup pineapple juice

Stir the sauce over a low heat until thick, pour over the ham slices, and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes.

PICNIC HAM MEXIQUE.

Cover the picnic ham with water, add a half cup of brown sugar mixed with 1 tablespoon of chili powder and a well bruised clove of garlic. Simmer, allowing 20 minutes for each pound of meat. Then place in a baking pan, rub the meat with more brown sugar, and bake in a moderate oven until brown, about 30 minutes.

If your choice of meat happened to be the ham shank, take a tip from the simmering pot of the "jungles," where the gentlemen of the open road congregate to feast, and turn it into something like this:

Ham Mulligan.

1 ham shank
1 No. 1 can corn
1 No. 1 can green beans

Cover the ham shank with water, and let it simmer until tender, which should take about 2 or 3 hours. Add the canned vegetables just before serving, thicken the liquor to make a gravy, and serve with boiled potatoes.

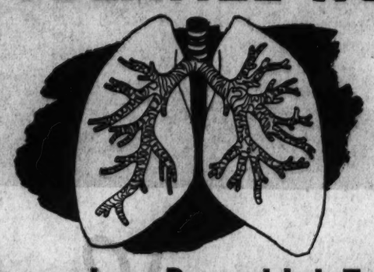
A VOLATILE RUB



that reaches Bronchial Tubes!

You can use this new pine penetrant to throw-off a cold without one drop of internal medicine.

As everybody knows, a "rub" is the most direct relief for any cold. But here's a new rub, with new speed—its action starts with the first breath. It's perfectly safe—it can be used full-strength on little children.

Pine Balm relieves a head cold in a few moments. A chest cold overnight. Its occasional use will be a comfort to you all through the winter.

A light cold will often disappear after a single application. A more deep-seated cold requires longer treatment. But actual relief of that congestion is begun and felt within a quarter hour.

An improvement on nature? It would almost seem to be! The pungency of this pine compound does what days in the woods may not accomplish for the nasal passages, the throat, and bronchial tubes. Its volatile vapors spread quickly through the affected area. Yet they are so harmless, so helpful, so soothing, that you may use Pine Balm on the baby!

This new formula offers you an entirely new cold treatment. It has been tested by physicians on a great many types of colds. As a result of this testing, it may safely be said that there is no more efficacious relief for adult or child use. Your druggist has it, now; ask today for Dr. Caldwell Pine Balm.

FEAR KIDNAPING OF SAVER OF OLD WARSHIP OF 1812

Gulesian Missing; Began Constitution Fund.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Believed a victim of either kidnapers or amnesia, Moses H. Gulesian, 71, once wealthy realtor, whose home was in Newton, was sought tonight by the combined forces of the federal department of justice, state authorities, and the police of Boston and Newton.

Gulesian gained national prominence nearly thirty years ago through his efforts to save the frigate Constitution from destruction. He endeared himself to millions of Americans by his offer to buy that famed vessel from the navy department. Later he helped establish the "Old Ironsides" fund which preserved that famous ship of the war of 1812.

Reported Kidnaping Threats.

On two occasions Gulesian had reported that kidnaping threats were made against him. The last one was in 1933, when he told police he had been lured to Albany on a fake business deal which he believed was a plot to abduct him. Since that time he had carried a revolver for protection.

However, his wife, a pianist and composer, expressed the opinion her husband might be an amnesia victim. She said she didn't believe he had been kidnaped and she was convinced he would not commit suicide. Though considerably alarmed by his disappearance, she said she believed he "would be back in a few days."

Gulesian last night addressed a Boston meeting of a patriotic organization, of which he was an honorary member, at the University club in Boston.

Mrs. Gulesian said she was apprised her husband left the club early in the evening. She had expected him home about 10 o'clock.

Auto Yields No Clews.

Apparently he never returned to his parked automobile which was found early this morning in the Back Bay section of Boston where he had evidently left it not far from the club. It yielded no clews.

The missing man's son-in-law, James L. Beck of Newton Center, reported Gulesian's absence to the police early this morning after he had been summoned by Mrs. Gulesian.

Asked about a report that Gulesian had been living in comparatively straitened circumstances, Beck said his father-in-law had thousands of dollars tied up in real estate and the outlook was becoming better. He added Gulesian was in good health and had received no recent threat of kidnaping.

Gulesian, who came to this country as an immigrant, made a fortune in Boston real estate. He first was threatened with abduction for ransom in 1907. Following an alleged second attempt in 1933, Gulesian identified a man he said was one of those who attempted to kidnap him. That man was indicted, but lack of evidence in the kidnaping threat case caused him to be turned over to other authorities on another charge.

CUBA ISSUES ITS 1ST PAPER MONEY BACKED BY SILVER

Crisp 'Blue Back' Peso Notes Out.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 20.—Hundreds of curious jammed the national treasury building here today as the Cuban government released the republic's first paper money—crisp "blue backs"—guaranteed by silver pesos.

The new bills, 10,000,000 pesos of which were placed in circulation, were printed through the Second Export-Import bank at Washington, D. C., coincidentally with the minting of an equal number of pesos at Philadelphia.

Crowds in the treasury ranged from newsboys to bankers. The exchanges were limited chiefly to one peso and five peso notes.

American currency has heretofore predominated in Cuban exchanges with discounts on silver pesos ranging from one to two and a half per cent on the dollar.

Similar to U. S. Bills.

Those who elbowed to the special exchange windows in the treasury building discovered when they acquired new bills that they were virtually the same as the United States notes. The chief differences were that the bills have blue backs instead of green and, of course, the portraits and signatures are "criollo." The size, printing, and paper are exactly the same as Uncle Sam's "green backs."

Only ones, fives, and tens were in evidence today. The ones bore the portrait of José Marti, Cuba's "apostle of freedom"; the fives a picture of José Miguel Gomez, a former president, and the tens a portrait of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, famed warrior and statesman.

Plan to Increase Circulation.

It is planned to place another 10,000,000 pesos in circulation, perhaps by the end of the year. It is understood that a rigid control will be kept on the silver pesos to be held in the national treasury to guarantee the silver certificates.

Banking circles were said to be watchful, but reliable sources assured that there was no uneasiness with respect to possible immediate inflation.

BRITAIN ABANDONS ATTEMPT TO SOLVE 'TRUNK MURDER NO. 1'

A coroner's jury today, after hearing investigators of Scotland Yard and elsewhere testify they could find no clues as to the identity of the woman whose torso was found last June in a trunk at the railway station here, returned an open verdict, thus writing an official finis to the case.

The investigators, among them Britain's most noted criminal pathologist, Sir Bernard Spilsbury, told the jury they could not determine how, when or in what manner the woman met her death.

"Brighton Trunk Crime No. 2" was discovered a month after the first. The dismembered body of another woman was found in a rooming house in Brighton. That body was determined to be that of Violet Kaye, a vaudeville actress. Tony Mancini was indicted for the murder but was acquitted by a jury. That crime, too, is "open."

Print "Real Truth," Speaker Urges.

Newspapers were described as the final defense of American liberty yesterday by Col. Guy T. Viskniskki, newspaper consultant, in an address before the Inland Daily Press association in the Palmer house.

Col. Viskniskki told the assembled publishers that they have responsibility for the preservation of American liberty through spiritual freedom of the press as well as legal freedom. Only by return to the old fashioned principles of digging out the truth of news rather than accepting "handouts" from politicians and others will this spiritual freedom be obtained and the safety of the country's liberty assured, he declared.

Assails Political Handouts.

"Can we fulfill our mission and solemn obligation to the people of America if we take these handouts from the capitol on down to the city hall? We are the phalanx of liberty. Are we going to take attacks on the freedom of the press lying down, or will we act like men with a sacret trust?

"Thank God for some newspaper men who realize this and who have fought from the beginning for the rights of the freedom of the press."

Col. Viskniskki urged a return to good old criticism of the editorial pages of the years that have gone. A free government, he asserted, is kept free by criticism, too much of which has passed out of the newspaper field.

Criticism Needed Now.

"America needs criticism as never before, and a press spiritually free as well as legally. When we get it and maintain it, then this country will be safe."

Dr. Harry F. Harrington, director of the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern university, discussing the newspaper of the future, foresaw a more localized, provincial newspaper with less standardization. Women, he said, should get away from the society column to interpret the well being of the family and the home.

The press of the future, Dr. Harrington went on, will have a more independent news gathering staf "not content with inspired information of press agents." There will be, he said, more effort for a weekly interpretive summary of world and domestic news, and most of the newspaper pictures will be in color.

Approve Press-Radio Bureau.

The association, in executive session, passed resolutions approving the operations of the press-radio bureau, suggesting that independent broadcasters and radio chains join in the service. It opposed, however, the sale of news to advertising sponsors by press associations for radio broadcasts.

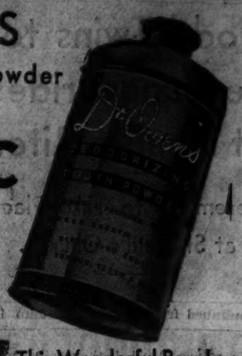
Linwood I. Noyes, publisher of the Ironwood, Mich., Globe, was elected president of the association, succeeding Verne E. Joy of the Centralia, Ill., Sentinel. J. S. Gray of the Monroe, Mich., News was named vice president.

Mr. Joy was named chairman of the board of directors.

Chinese Execute 4 More for Murder of Chicago Pair

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Four more communist rebels have paid with their lives for the murder of the American missionaries, the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Stam, former Chicagoans, in southern Anhwei province last December, the foreign office here revealed today. Anhwei province authorities, it was announced, captured the quartet and executed them. Nine Chinese connected with the Stam murders have met death.

DR. OWEN'S
Deodorizing Tooth Powder
50c CAN Special 37c



This Wonderful Powder
ACTUALLY STOPS BAD BREATH

Dr. Owen's Deodorizing Tooth Powder contains an ingredient that gently, but quickly, dissolves the dead tissue that forms the coat on the back of the tongue. With this coating removed, the one big cause of "bad breath" is likewise removed. And it accomplishes this wonder of wonders without leaving even a trace of medicinal odor.

FALSE TEETH BRIDGE WORK
Food particles collect in false teeth and bridge work, causing bad breath. We recommend Dr. Owen's Deodorizing Tooth Powder to overcome this common fault. Being non-abrasive, Dr. Owen's is perfectly safe for false teeth.

But more! Dr. Owen's stops bleeding gums, too, quickly bringing sore, tender gums back to health and firmness. And, as a tooth cleaner, we've never seen a dentifrice that cleans or whitens teeth more beautifully.

GOLDEN GLOVE FIGHTS ON 3 FRONTS TONIGHT

RUTH PONDERS FUTURE AS HE REACHES HOME

Still Frowns on 1935 Player Contract.

Not for Sox

REPORTS from Akron, O., last night that Babe Ruth might be traded to the White Sox for Al Simmons and then become manager of the Chicago club received little credence in baseball circles last night. Sox officials have denied repeatedly that they would trade Simmons. They turned down a chance to obtain Ruth from the Yankees following the 1933 season, and on several occasions since then have indicated that they had no interest in Ruth either as a player or a manager.

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—The strains of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" floated out over the Hudson today as the United States line's S. S. Manhattan nosed slowly into her berth. Baseball's theme song was played for the game's most glamorous figure, sounding loud and clear on the sharp wintry air.

Babe Ruth was back home after an absence of four months, returned to a future that is uncertain and indefinite in relation to the sport that has been his life for the last 21 years. He wants to continue in baseball, but he is as determined as he was last October that he will not sign a player contract again.

May Change Mind.

"Of course, I may change my mind," said the home run batter, who recognizes that he is fading as a player. "I don't know. Different things may come up to change my mind for me. I'm so thrilled to get back, I don't know what I'll do. It will take me a couple of days to get my bearings. But the way I feel now, everything is just the same as it was when I left on this trip. I don't intend to sign a player contract again.

"I don't want to leave baseball. Frankly, I'd be lost without the game. I want to get back into a uniform. It's hard to stay away from it after being in the game so long. I think I'm entitled to a manager's job, or a try at it, anyhow. I don't think I should be asked to sign on as a player and sit on a bench waiting for a chance to pinch hit maybe once in seven days. That's something I do not intend to do. But I'll know more about that in a few days. Maybe things have changed since I left. I want to look into things and see what's what."

Will Wait For Call.

"Will you see Col. Ruppert [Yankee owner] without delay?" Ruth was asked.

"Not unless they call me up to let me know the colonel wants to see me," was the reply. "I understand they've mailed me a contract. If I don't like it when I look at it, I'll take it back to the colonel. I won't mail it."

"You know it is one of those $1 a year contracts," Ruth was reminded. "There's a letter of explanation with it."

"I thought that was a bonus when I heard of it," said Ruth, with a smile. "I must have misunderstood the colonel when he told me before I left he would let me go if I got a chance to manage a club. I thought he meant he wouldn't let me go with any other club as a player-manager. Now I hear I can go as a player-manager. I'll have to straighten that out when I see the colonel. One thing is certain, If I sign a player contract this year it will have to be as a regular, not a pinchhitter.

Will Go to Florida.

"Do you think you could play a full season as a regular?" Babe was asked.

"I don't know," he replied. "That would depend on how I feel at the training camp. Even if I don't sign, I intend to go to St. Petersburg, Fla., to thaw out. I'm getting so old now I feel I belong there. Money is not the primary consideration with me now. I've got enough to live on. But, I want to stay in baseball.

"I've got something under consideration which I cannot tell you about now in case I don't get what I want this season. I can't say what it is now. It has to do with big league baseball, but not with me as a club owner."

Mrs. Claire Ruth, who, with her 18 year old daughter, accompanied the Babe around the world, shared his gratitude at being home again, and supported his argument against a player's contract.

A symphony in brown, his favorite color, Ruth was obviously overweight. Artie McGovern, his trainer, who was among those to go down the bay to greet the returning idol, estimated Ruth's weight at about 240 pounds. Babe pleaded ignorance of his poundage, although he said he used the ship's gymnasium on the rough trip over.

"I had a wonderful trip, but I wouldn't go through it again for $500,000," said Ruth.

The Babe said he had traveled about 21,000 miles, to Vancouver, Honolulu, Japan, Bali, Java, up the Suez, Paris, Switzerland and London.

BY FRENCH LANE.

At last the day has come when Chicago Golden Gloves fans must show their colors.

No longer can they be uncertain about their partisanship. They must declare themselves wholeheartedly for one sectional team or the other, for there will be fighting tonight all around the town.

If you decide to be a north side rooter you will be at Loyola university gymnasium, where the north section champions will be picked.

If you are a dyed in the wool west sider you will hang your hat in the checkroom at the Community Center gymnasium on West Madison street and see the west sectional champions crowned.

If you rise and fall with the fortunes of the south side team you will report at the White City arena, where semi-final battles will be fought.

Reach Whirlwind Peak.

At Loyola gymnasium there will be 40 bouts, at Community Recreation center 34 bouts, and at White City 50 bouts. Never before have the battles toward Golden Gloves championships reached a peak in such whirlwind fashion. And never before have the stars of last year been so soundly whipped. A checkup reveals that Otis Thomas, who will fight tonight for the north section heavyweight crown, is the only former Golden Gloves winner in Chicago left in the sectional competition.

MAX SCHMELING LOSES

The appearance of Max Schmeling Jr., nephew of the former world's heavyweight champion, was the high spot in the north sectional tournament fighting last night. The German kid who represented the Jordan Packing club, fought Savior Canadeo from the C. Y. O. in an open division lightweight match.

Max Jr. ran into a buzz-saw. The C. Y. O. Italian clipped Schmeling with a terrific right a minute after the second round started. Down went Schmeling for the count of ten.

Young Schmeling still was a bit dazed when he left the ring, but he told a group of German admirers, "maybe Uncle Max is the only fighter in our family after all."

N. U. Boxer Wins.

George Slining, captain of the Northwestern university boxing team, was another winner in the open lightweight division. John Clark, a hard punching colored boy from the Skokie Valley CCC, knocked down the Purple captain in the first round. Slining, once back on his feet, swarmed all over his rival and won after a spectacular rally.

Ambrose Geoghegan, tall colored 160 pounder, who came close to winning a Golden Glove a couple of years ago, was beaten in an exciting battle by George Sluka, a wild swingig Bohemian boy. They went at it like a couple of wildcats for three rounds.

Scores His Third Knockout.

The most sensational novice on the north side in the early fighting has been Norman Litwin, 147 pounder, residing at 1521 North Maplewood avenue. He scored his third straight knockout when he put Eddie Pacak of the Chevrons A. C., away in the first round with a right to the chin. His two other knockouts also were first round affairs. Results:

Standing Room Only Left for Santa Anita Handicap

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20.—"Standing room only" is the sign already hung out for the first running of the Santa Anita $100,000 handicap Saturday. Boxes, loges, reserved seats in clubhouse and grandstand, about 8,000 in all, ranging in price from $4.40 to $8.80, are exhausted.

In fact, all reservations have been gone for ten days but Los Angeles late comers are just finding it out, hence frenzied trips to scalpers where premiums of from $1 to $5 per ticket are asked. The track management, reluctantly of course, is returning checks on mail orders while a corps of attractive young women are explaining to insistent would-be purchasers "there aren't any more."

Infield to Be Opened.

The remainder of the expected crowd of 50,000 will find points of vantage, if any, on clubhouse and grandstand terraces where roaming privileges sell at $4.40 and $3.30 per copy, respectively. Even those positions, according to the track management, will be limited to prevent overcongestion, although past experience elsewhere indicates enough tickets will be sold so that a sardined crowd will storm the betting windows placing their wagers with difficulty. In addition to clubhouse and grandstand, the infield will be opened.

Spectators unable to secure other accommodations or unwilling to pay the tilted price will gather in the infield. Such admission will cost $1.10, the ten cents going to Uncle Sam. Betting booths are being erected in the infield with cables connecting the recording devices with the totalizator for the whole track.

Fair Weather Predicted.

Summery weather with thermometer in the 70's and 80's and a forecast of fair weather over the week-end, all stimulated the glamor of the big event.

So far as the principals of this gala occasion are concerned, their public work ended with Monday's feature race. Final workouts to convince owners and trainers their charges either are or are not worth the $1,000 starting fee investment on the chance of winning approximately $100,000 for first, $10,000 for second, $5,000 for third and $2,500 for fourth, were held this morning and will be concluded tomorrow. Friday there will be just enough exercise to keep the equine aristocrats in their top form, then Saturday and the race.

Equipoise is Favorite.

Equipoise, on his Monday's race which he won from Twenty Grand only to be disqualified, continues in the rôle of ante-post favorite at odds of 5 to 2. At least eighteen others at this writing appear possible starters. In this race Equipoise may have his last, certainly his best, opportunity to pass by a wide margin the all-time earnings record of Sun Beau.

Riskulus, the only California owned contender in the list of nineteen likely starters considered to have much chance at the $100,000, became a dubious starter tonight when Trainer E. L. [Woody] Fitzgerald announced that he had spread a hoof. A bar plate was put on the ailing heel, and it was announced Riskulus would take a gallop tomorrow, and might still start in the handicap if the workout went off with no trouble.

Sir Thomas Wins.

C. N. Marone, trainer for Ted Clark, wired to Florida today seeking services of Jocky Don Meade, who rode Riskulus in the Christmas Day stake at Santa Anita. Meade rode Head

Fitzgerald Will Be Race Steward Again

Peter B. Carey, chairman of the Illinois racing commission, came back to La Salle street yesterday from a sojourn at his winter home in Florida.

He beat the first robin from the southland by a good wide margin and from his office in the Board of Trade building had some interesting things to say about horse racing.

Predicts Big Season.

"The tracks in Chicago are in for a big season," he said.

"Every racing fan in the south can feel it. Winter track attendance and betting figures that appear very big right now won't begin to touch the marks that will be hung up in Chicago during the summer," he continued enthusiastically.

"Transfer of Washington Park into the hands of Chicagoans has already changed the complexion of things," he declared. "If Mr. Harding's group makes good the promise to offer prizes equal to those put up at other great racing centers Chicago will have the finest racing in the country."

Commission Meets Soon.

Mr. Carey said he will call a meeting of the racing commission within the next few days at which applications for racing dates will be considered. He didn't know whether or not there will be radical changes in the schedule of former years.

"We will ask Christopher J. Fitzgerald to return as steward representing the racing commission at all tracks," Carey said. "During very trying times last season Fitzgerald's work as chief of the stewards stood out."

"How about that no-pass rule," Carey was asked.

"Possibly we will amend it slightly," was his answer.

HURD, STACK WIN NORTH AMERICAN SKATING EVENTS

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Alex Hurd and Frank Stack, both of Kirkland Lake, Ont., tonight made a clean sweep of the first three events of the North American speed skating championship.

Competing against the pick of Dominion skaters, as well as a scattering of stars from the United States, Hurd won the 440 yard and two mile titles, while Stack was romping off with the one mile crown.

Joe Triner on Golden Gloves Radio Program

Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois boxing commission will be interviewed by Bob Elson on the Golden Gloves program over radio station W-G-N tonight at 8:15 o'clock. Others who will speak include Leo Rodak, a leading contender for the featherweight, junior lightweight and lightweight crowns, and Freddy Caserio, middleweight challenger. Both are products of Golden Gloves tournaments. Rodak won flyweight, bantamweight and featherweight Golden Gloves titles in successive years. Caserio, member of last year's intercity squad, earned the International middleweight title in 1933.

ZELL EATON WINS HOUSTON GOLF MEDAL WITH 141

Houston, Tex., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City, western amateur golf champion, won medal honors today in the Houston Country club's invitation tournament with a sub par 141 for 36 holes, a record for the 21 year old event.

Eaton shot a 71 today to add to his Tuesday total of 70 for the card, one stroke under regulation figures.

Gus Moreland of Dallas, former Walker cup team member, followed Eaton with 72—73—145.

Low scoring honors for the day were won by Fred Odom of New Orleans, a 37—32—69, three under par. His total card of 79—69—148 gave him third place in medal scoring.

Knocks Spar Mate Out of Ring in Drill.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20.—The biggest influx of eastern celebrities—newspaper reporters, race horse followers, politicians, sport hangers-on, and just fans—to travel to Los Angeles for a fight since the days of Stanley Ketchell, Ad Wolgast, Billy Papke, and Joe Rivers were assembled tonight to see Lee Ramage box Joe Louis in Wrigley field tomorrow night.

Knocks Mate Out of Ring.

The Detroit 198 pounder, wearing pillow-sized gloves, landed one short right so hard on the burly person of Bill Salvador, sparring partner, that he knocked the latter completely out of the ring. True, Salvador is only a slow trial horse, but that doesn't detract from the fact that he was hit so hard on the side of his helmeted head that he landed nearly 15 feet away.

While Louis put in ten strenuous rounds yesterday and tapered off today with only enough work to warm him into a slight steam, Ramage put in his final day of preparation with light work calculated to conserve his weight and keep his boxing eye at the keenest.

The San Diego youth, whose asset up to his last bout—the recent one against Louis—had been his exceptional boxing ability and the fact he never—till then—had been knocked out, looked in fine shape. Ramage confirmed that he feels in as good fettle as he looks and said that despite weighing the most of his entire career—195—he expects to be able to travel the full ten rounds at a fast enough clip to beat Louis.

Expects to Be More Than 190.

Ramage had been outboxing the ex-Golden Glove colored boy until the punch that finished him in the last bout. This time he says he has wholly conquered the sinus ailment that robbed him of stamina and sustained speed for that bout. Ramage will go into the ring in tomorrow night's open air bout at more than 190 pounds, he figures. He weighed only 178 for Louis in Chicago in December.

Ramage said the bout will be the last of his career if he is knocked out again. "If he shows me he is my superior, there will be no use of my going on," the San Diego school boy said.

May Enter Produce Business.

Ramage said he would enter the produce business in San Diego with his brother whom he has backed with his boxing earnings since leaving the home town high school for the ring three years ago. The fight will be refereed by Lieut. Commander Jesse L. [Duke] Kenworthy, U. S. Navy, one of the survivors of the dirigible Macon disaster last week, provided the naval court of inquiry hearings relax sufficiently for Kenworthy to get here from San Francisco tomorrow.

200 MILES AN HOUR

May be a little speedy for your automobile, bicycle or other favorite means of transportation, but the faster you travel to the ticket offices the better seats you'll obtain for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium.

The tournament starts next Monday night, when the champions from 11 states will be battling in three rings. It continues next Tuesday and Wednesday, with fighting in two rings.

Then there's the grand windup March 8 at the Stadium.

For next week's bouts the prices are 40 cents, 66 cents and $1.10. For the finals they're 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65 and $2.20.

All are on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, and at Tribune Tower. Or mail check or money order (for finals only) to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

BRING ON THOSE BIG CITY FELLOWS

REPORT BONURA SEEKS $10,000 FROM WHITE SOX

Luke Sewell Mails Signed Contract.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Zeke Bonura, the hottest White Sox holdout of recent seasons, has set a price of $10,000 on his services for the coming campaign. This is the figure fired back by him to Lou Comiskey, club president, it was learned yesterday.

The amount offered the youthful athlete is not definitly known, but presumably is $6,500, which represents a substantial boost over his pay for last season, his first in the majors. President Comiskey, having set a figure he thought a happy medium after weighing Bonura's good hitting and his somewhat weak fielding on batted balls, declares he will not conduct negotiations with the lad.

Luke Sewell in Fold.

The day also brought forth another White Sox athlete in the rôle of a satisfied employé. Luke Sewell, late of the Washington Senators, finally got around to the little job of annexing his name and forwarding his contract to headquarters. Sewell is looking forward to a busy summer, and in this particular he won't be fooled by the management. Luke is the only first class catcher owned by the Sox, so nothing short of an injury will get him a vacation. Pitcher Babe Phelps is the only other south side athlete still in hiding.

Contract affairs with the Cubs were almost cleared up completely yesterday with receipt of a signed contract from Larry French, southpaw pitcher acquired in the deal with Pittsburgh early this winter. French, who won only 12 games while losing 18 for the Pirates last season, mailed in his signed papers from his home at Brentwood Park, Cal.

Demaree Only Absentee.

The lone Cub absentee now is Frank Demaree, the minor league outfielder who was somewhat of a flop when up with the Cubs a couple of seasons back. Demaree's batting average last season against the Coast league rubber ball was .385 and this may be the cause of his present indifference to another big league opportunity.

Rich Stake at Santa Anita Is Sellout

Play in the latter's Kentucky Derby. He rode only one race at Santa Anita, that on Riskulus, before going to Florida.

A Kentucky Derby favorite of 1934 popped out of the fog that has shrouded him since the big day at Churchill Downs last May when Sir Thomas, one of the horses owned by Jack Robinson, moneyed Notre Dame football star, but registered to A. B. Gordon, won from an impressive field this afternoon in a lowly $800 sprint. Sir Thomas won by two lengths from Marition over the 7 furlongs in 1:24 2-5. Sonny Workman rode him. Sir Thomas is an entry eligible for Saturday's handicap. He paid $3.20 to win.

The day's big payoff was the 2 year old race at 3 furlongs, which Morclass won at :35, paying short odds, but in which J. W. Marchbank's Cantrip finished second, paid $34.80 place money and $11.20 to show.

Prospective starters with names of owners, probable jockies, weights, and present odds [in most cases far too tight for a future book] follow:

Horse—	Jockey.	Wt.	Odds.
Equipoise	Sonny Workman	120	5-2
Twenty Grand	S. Coucci	126	6-1

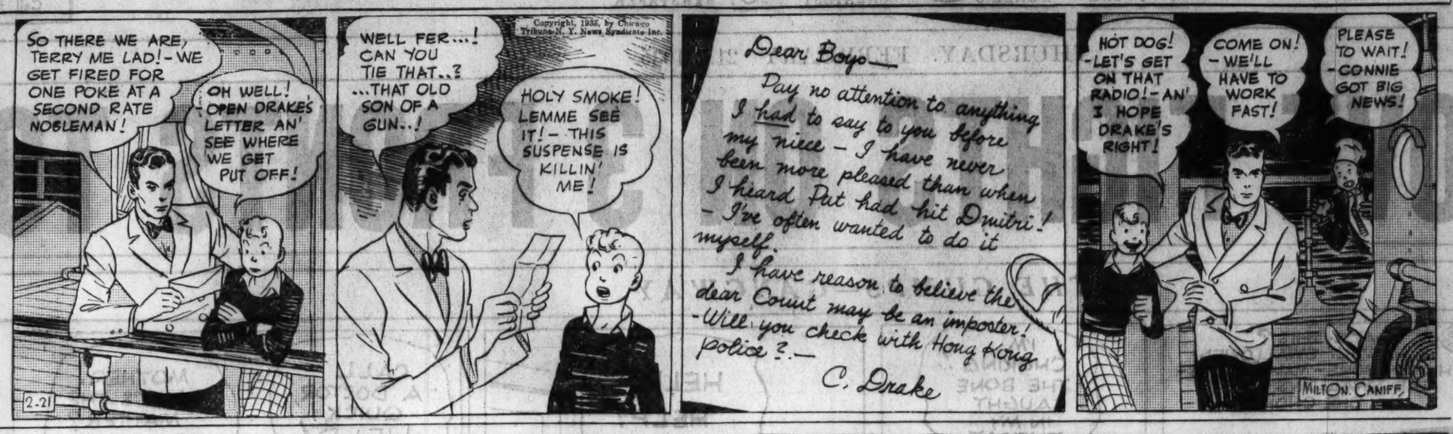
Chance Line, Precursor, Toro Nancy, Sweeping Light, Riskulus, and Thomasville possible starters.

Schneider and Householder Win Midget Auto Prizes

Jimmy Schneider and Ronny Householder divided honors in the major events of the north side's first midget auto race program at the Chicago Riding club last night. Schneider won three first places in the preliminaries, while Householder won the main event and took three seconds. James Rogers won two events and Harold Shaw captured one. Art Conroyd was injured in the evening's only serious spill.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—HO HO! WHAT HAVE WE HERE?



C.Y.O. Fives to Begin Title Play Tonight

Championship playoffs to determine the league titleholders for 1935 will open tonight in the Catholic Youth Organization Basketball league.

Forty-four intersectional games between lightweight and heavyweight winners and runnersup are scheduled to be played tonight in twelve gymnasiums. Moynihan, Green Bay Heavyweight, Is Real Puncher

Startling tales of another spectacular heavyweight who will compete in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions starting at the Chicago Stadium on Monday night reached Chicago yesterday. He's a good Irishman and John Moynihan is his name. John is the heavyweight champ of the Green Bay Press Gazette team. He comes from Philadelphia, but is a student at St. Norbert college, and that's the reason he competed in the Green Bay tournament. In his dash toward the title John knocked out Frank Weyenberg, 1933 Green Bay light heavyweight champion, and Ben Mrotek, the 1934 Green Bay heavyweight winner. The hard slashing Irishman is a star basketball and baseball player.

Murray Allen, the welterweight champion of the Quincy Herald-Whig team, is reported to be one of the stoutest punchers among the invading forces now ready to march toward the Tournament of Champions. Murray should have plenty of muscle, because he works in a quarry and it isn't a white collar job that he holds down.

Tommy Morris, the featherweight champion of the Grand Rapids Press team, is a full blooded Indian and prides himself as coming from the Mohawk tribe. He hails from Ann Arbor.

Folks in Danville call Oliver Phelps the light heavyweight champ of the Danville Commercial News team, "The Black Panther." Oliver does some of the heavy work in a Danville florist's shop, and a big bouquet probably will greet him when he enters the ring in the Tournament of Champions.

WEST SIDE REACHES FINALS

The preliminary round in the west section ended last night with 36 bouts. The card provided a capacity crowd with some of the most thrilling fighting on the west side thus far. Finals of the west side meet will be held at Community Recreation center tonight. Thirty-four contests will be fought, 15 in the open division and 20 in the novice. The show will begin at 8 o'clock.

One of the best battles among the novices last night brought together George Rasof, 18 year old brother of Barney Ross, world's lightweight champion, and Sam Sferas, Greek-American Athletic club bantamweight.

Harold Brown Wins.

An outstanding open division battle was between Harold Brown, Chicago Parks lightweight, and Walter Lewis of the Savoy Athletic club. Brown, 1934 Jewish Organized Youth and Central A. A. U. 135 pound champion, who was an alternate on last year's Golden Gloves, earned the three round verdict. Lewis kept on even terms for the first two rounds.

Backers of Sam Gershbein, Northwest gymnasium, left the arena confident he will be the novice welterweight colorbearer from the west side. He registered the quickest knockout of the evening by flooring Ben Fodor shortly after the first round opened.

A strong rival for bantamweight honors was uncovered when Joe De Pasquale of the Mastro Boxing club stopped Ralph Diaferio, unattached, in two rounds. He may be the one George Rasof will have to whip tonight.

VRBA MOTORS BREAK CLASSIC LEAGUE MARK

The Vrba Motors broke a season Classic league record last night when they bowled 3,347 at the Windy City alleys. This brought three victories over the La Salle-Windsors and put the Vrbas within one game of first place, now held jointly by the Monarch Beers and the Budweisers, due to the fact that the Monarchs defeated the Budweisers in all three games. Scores:

Campbell Irks Daytona Pride with Harrow

Daytona, Fla., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Mechanical forces came to the aid of nature today and with the wind rising and shifting to the northeast, tides boiling over the sands, it seemed likely tonight that Sir Malcolm Campbell would have within a week a suitable track on which to attack his present 272 mile an hour speed record for automobiles.

In answer to the Englishman's demands that human agencies take a hand, inasmuch as the natural forces of wind and water haven't improved the rough surface of the beach in the last week, two mule teams, dragging spiked harrows, went to work in the measured mile, middle mile of the 11½ mile stretch.

"Now if we can get some tractors out tomorrow and loosen the hard surface all along the way the tides should do the rest and smooth the beach out sufficiently for a record try by Sunday," Sir Malcolm said.

It took considerable argument between Campbell's representatives and those of the city government to get the harrows out. Daytona Beach prides itself on its great natural speed raceway and resents any effort to improve on nature.

MOON MULLINS—IT WOOD BE

SO, MULLINS, YOU HAVE COME TO TAKE LADY PLUSHBOTTOM HOME-EH?--- WHY, YOU SAP-WHO DO YOU THINK YOU'RE TALKING TO?
NOW-BOYS DON'T YOU FIGHT.
GO ON, STUPID TELL HER WHAT WE DECIDED IN THE ALLEY.
WHY-ER-WE THINK THAT YOUR PLACE IS AT HOME WITH YOUR HUSBAND, EMMA.
WELL, JASPER, I AM GLAD YOU FELT THAT MY ADVICE WAS GOOD AND DIDN'T START ANOTHER FIGHT ANYWAY.
OH-IT WASN'T YOUR ADVICE HE FELT, EMMY-IT WAS THAT STICK MOON HAS IN HIS POCKET WHICH HE TOLD JASPER WAS A GUN.

DICK TRACY—To the Back Steps

I'M OKAY, TRACY-GO AFTER THAT WOMAN-SHE'S IN THERE!
A WOMAN? WAS A WOMAN CAUSING THE TROUBLE?
YES, A WOMAN! DRESSED LIKE A MAN! I SAW HER LONG HAIR WHEN HER HAT FELL OFF. SHE PICKED OUR DOOR LOCK-I HEARD HER AND TACKLED HER JUST AS SHE WAS AIMING A GUN AT MOTHER WHO WAS ASLEEP!
MEANWHILE, EMERGING FROM THE SERVICE DOOR BENEATH THE ICE BOX OF THE HOTEL APARTMENT, ZORA ARSON CONTEMPLATES HER NEXT MOVE.
AH! I'M ON THE BACK PORCH! NOW TO BEAT IT DOWN THE BACK STEPS.
THIS KITCHEN HAS NO REAR DOOR. WHERE COULD SHE HAVE GONE?
THE DOOR TO THE REAR STAIR IS THROUGH THE HALL-YOU WATCH HERE, CHIEF-WHILE I GO AROUND!

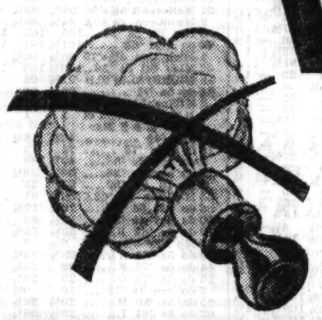
Why do men in the Tropics look old at forty?



Asks EDWIN C. HILL

Greek gods at twenty-five, old men at forty. That's the penalty of living down near the equator.

"Why is it that people who live in the tropics show the wrinkles and lines of old age in the very prime of life?" asked Edwin C. Hill with his insatiable curiosity.

Reason enough, said the experts. The burning tropical sun dries up the natural oils of the skin, leaving the face like parchment, which wrinkles easily.

Alkali-bearing soaps have much the same effect on the skin. Women all know this. That's why they use creams and gentle oils to keep their complexions youthful.

And that's why men who shave with Barbasol look so much younger than those who still cling to the old brush and lather method.

You see, Barbasol doesn't dry out the skin. It's so soothing that thousands use it to relieve windburn and chapping.

No brush, no lather, no rub-in. Just wet your face, spread on good old Barbasol and shave.

Tune in Edwin C. Hill every Wednesday evening over the Columbia Broadcasting System coast-to-coast (see your newspaper for local time) and Singin' Sam—the Barbasol Man—every Friday evening at 9:45 P.M., WOR New York; WLW Cincinnati; 8:45 P.M., WGN Chicago

DAY AND PACHO MEET TONIGHT IN COLISEUM ANNEX

Davey Day, 1931 Golden Gloves graduate, will engage in his fortieth professional bout in a ten round main event tonight at the Coliseum annex, 15th street and Wabash avenue. His opponent will be Bobby Pacho, Los Angeles, Cal., a leading junior welterweight. Another attraction on the six bout card, which is being presented under the auspices of the Capital Athletic club, will bring together Champion Jim Londos and Tom Marvin in a wrestling exhibition set for thirty minutes.

Day, stablemate of Barney Ross, lightweight and junior welterweight title holder, has been idle since his ten round conquest of Frank Sagilio at Chicago Stadium last Nov. 2. This victory was his thirty-fifth. In other pro starts Davey fought two draws and lost two. He hasn't been defeated, however, since he jumped into the limelight. His most important triumphs were scored over Stanislaus Loayza and Sagilio. In the event he whips Pacho these accomplishments will pale in comparison.

Pacho, born at Phoenix, Ariz., 24 years ago, is of Mexican descent. At the conclusion of 1934 Bobby had registered fifty-one wins and fought nine draws in seventy-three fights. He has been a knockout victim once. Included among those he has conquered last year are Lou Jallos, Mike [Kid] Frattini, Eddie Ran, and Tony Falco. He gave Champion Ross two hard title fights, the first at Los Angeles in March and the second at Cleveland in December. Prior to his second battle with Ross the Mexican boxer held Harry Dublinsky to a ten round draw at Philadelphia. Supporting matches: Everett Rightmire vs. Jackie Sharkey [10], junior lightweights; Gene Higgins vs. Sammy Chivas [6], junior welterweights; Jackie Lazar vs. George Engel [6], junior welterweights; Puggy Weinert vs. Jack Elverillo [5].

Roy Lazer, New York heavyweight, and Art Sykes, last night were matched to meet for eight rounds or less at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Two preliminary contests will pair Scotty McLean and Bob Tinsley, and Harry Garbell and Sammy Scoglio at four rounds. . . . Jack Kranz, Gary, Ind., member of the 1933 intercity Golden Gloves team, will clash with Leonard Dixon of New York in one of the three engagements at ten rounds each which will head the show at St. Paul March 1. . . . Johnny Stanton, Minneapolis junior welterweight, yesterday was signed for a ten round bout with Leonard Videtich, Denver, Colo., at Butte, Mont., March 4. . . .

Champion Barney Ross and Co-Manager Art Winch will head for Hot Springs, Ark., Sunday night where Ross will take treatments for a chest injury which forced postponement of a scheduled title bout with Henry Woods of Seattle, Wash., next Tuesday.

Lenny Cohen and Nick Scalba, Chicago bantamweights, who boxed a six round draw at the Stadium recently, will fight in the two six round supporting combats at Detroit Olympia Tuesday. . . . Cohen will meet Frank [Lefty] Gwynne, Windsor, Ont., and Scalba is matched with K. O. Morgan, Toledo, O. . . . The three encounters at ten rounds which feature the program bring together Tony Canzoneri and Chuck Woods, Bob Olin, light heavyweight crownholder, and Harold [Dutch] Weimer, Tucson, Ariz., and Wesley Ramwy, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Jimmy Vaughn, Cleveland. . . . Weimer moved to Detroit last night and Canzoneri is due there today.

Max Baer, heavyweight champion, yesterday assured Stadium officials of his appearance in a ten round nontitle contest at the west side arena next month. Although Max quite frequently had asserted he would fight at the Stadium again in March, he wasn't sure he could keep this promise because of legal entanglements in California. Requests have been made by scores of fans to give King Levinsky another chance at Baer, according to James C. Mullen, co-matchmaker with Nate Lewis. So, Mullen intimated, if the champion accepts the King's challenge the contest will be arranged. Levinsky was knocked out in two rounds by Baer a few weeks ago after he had won the first round. F. Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

[Copyright; 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FRED KOHLER, who promotes wrestling shows at the Marigold Gardens, put on a card there one night last week and two evenings later, at the Midway arena, he himself wrestled under the name of Freddie King. . . . Fatalities in soccer are rare, but three occurred recently on one day in England. . . . Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs thinks that Stanley Klores Jr., Northwestern freshman who will accompany the team to Catalina, has the makings of a great first baseman. . . . He is 18 years old, six feet tall and weighs 190 pounds. . . . Klores, who was regarded as a promising college football player, will not be eligible to play professional football for four years, because the National Professional league has a rule prohibiting clubs from signing college players until their class has been graduated. . . . Tommy Armour says the generally low temperatures in Florida this winter have helped golf. . . . When folks find it too chilly to swim, they play golf. . . . Tiny Thompson, Boston Bruins' goalie, didn't have a stop until after seven minutes of the first period against the Blackhawks Sunday night. . . . Bobby Pacho, who fights Davey Day at the Coliseum tonight, has two sons. . . .

Dr. Fred Merrifield of Hinsdale, professor emeritus of New Testament history at the University of Chicago, who died recently, was responsible more than any other individual for the introduction of baseball into Japan. . . . As a university professor in Tokio he also served as baseball coach. . . . Japanese boys used to follow him through the streets like American youngsters now tag Babe Ruth. . . . Promoting open golf tournaments is not all beer and skittles. . . . The Los Angeles open has lost about $40,000 in the last ten years. . . . Oral Hildebrand, Cleveland pitcher, keeps in shape by playing basketball during the winter. . . . He was one of Butler's best during his college days. . . . Frank Lamanske, one of 13 pitchers under contract to Brooklyn, led the country last year in strikeouts with 216. . . . He is a southpaw, 28 years old, and he won 24 and lost 7 with Davenport in 1934. . . . Clark Shaughnessy, football coach at Chicago, is visiting old friends in New Orleans. . . .

The correct way to pronounce Equipoise's name is EEquipoise, according to Trainer Jack Healey. . . . However, nearly every one calls him EKquipoise, so Healey now pronounces the name that way himself. . . . Charles Weston, former pocket billiard champion, has two cues valued at $100 each. . . . Willie Hoppe has used the same cue, a cheap one, too, for more than 25 years. . . . Bob Jones, who was Indiana's most valuable player in 1933, has enrolled in a graduate course at his alma mater for the second semester. . . . He played with Green Bay Packers last season. . . . The Cubs never have participated in a seven game world series. . . . Jack Rothrock and Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals like to wrestle in the clubhouse before games. . . . Cub officials want to try out a chair with cushioned seats for Wrigley field, but thus far no manufacturer will guarantee such an article against the ravages of weather. . . . The New York Rangers originally came from Victoria, B. C. . . . The Blackhawks came from Portland, Ore. . . . One of the reasons major league clubs do no flash hits and errors on the scoreboard is the fear gamblers might wager on the decisions of the official scorers. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Jim McMillen, former Illinois football star, announced he would enter the professional wrestling field. . . . Thirteen United States Olympic stars were entered in the annual Illinois relay carnival. . . . Ethel Lackie of Illinois Athletic club shattered the world 110 yard free style swimming record at Tampa, Fla. . . . Pete Sarmiento finished training for his ten round bout with Eddie Anderson.

GREATEST MONEY EARNER.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 20.—Either Equipoise or Mate, if first in the Santa Anita handicap Saturday, will become the greatest turf money earner of all time. Approximately $100,000 will go to the winner of that race.

Sun Beau, which was by Sun Briar out of Beautiful Lady, is now tops with winnings of $376,744 earned during five years of campaigning from 1927-1931, inclusive. He won 33 races in 74 starts, only 19 times out of the money.

Equipoise, 7 year old chestnut by Pennant out of Swinging, owned by C. V. Whitney, is second in all-time winnings with $338,610, of which $150 represents 1935 earnings when he was second to Sweeping Light last week. This sum was accumulated from 1930 to 1935, inclusive. Equipoise, also holder of the world's mile record, is ante-post favorite for the rich stake after winning a second test race this week and then suffering disqualification. Twenty Grand was moved up.

Weight apparently never has bothered this gallant thoroughbred. He carried 128 pounds as a 4 year old when he set the world record for a mile at 1:34 2-5 at Arlington Park, June 30, 1932. He carried heavy imposts during his great races of 1933 and 1934—135 pounds in the Arlington handicap of 1933, 1¼ miles, run in 2:02 2-5. He had 128 pounds aboard in his second by a length to Sweeping Light, carrying 109, when the latter set a new track record for the mile of 1:36 2-5.

The Wake first saw Equipoise in the National Stallion stakes of 1930 at Belmont Park, where we had gone because we of the west thought Gallant Fox, winner of the Kentucky Derby, would take Whichone in the Belmont stakes, regarded as practically a two horse race that year. Gallant Fox did so convincingly at the liberal odds of 8 to 5.

There was a notable field in that National Stallion stakes for 2 year olds as they lined up at the starting barrier on the far side of the track for a 5 furlong dash down the Widener course straightaway. They were off and a colt with light blue colors shot out in front, towroped his field, and won by six lengths, eased up in :59 3-5. It was Equipoise. Sonny Workman, who will pilot the now veteran Equipoise, was aboard.

Equipoise went wrong in his preparation for the 1931 Kentucky Derby and did not do much that year, but came back in fine form for the three following seasons. He now faces the greatest test of his honorable career, if age and opportunity be the gauge. For those who care for that sort of thing, here is Equipoise's record:

1930	16	8	5	1	†2	$156,835
1931	3	1	0	2	3	3,000
1932	14	10	2	1	2	107,375
1933	9	7	1	1	0	55,760
1934	8	3	1	1	*1	15,490
1935	2	0	1	0	*1	150
Totals	50	29	10	4	7	$338,610

Mate was the great rival of Twenty Grand for the 3 year old championship of 1931, generally accorded to the latter, although Mate was victor in three of five meetings in their 2 year old and 3 year old form, including the Arlington Classic. Mate has started 72 times with 20 brackets, 14 seconds, 19 thirds, and 19 times outside the money.

Others which might start, even with first money, could not eclipse Sun Beau's record if they won. Without 1935 additions to winnings, these include Twenty Grand, with $260,840; Faireno, with $181,465; Gusto, with $148,590; Cavalcade, with $126,965; Ladysman, with $122,560.

Paulette Goddard took Charlie Jr. and Sidney Chaplin, sons of the screen comedian, out for a ride. When Charlie Jr. asked where she got the car, an expensive make, she replied, "From Santa Claus." "Now I know who Santa Claus is," replied Charlie Jr.

Magnate Laemmle of Universal bought an elephant. The first thing studio executives knew about it was its arrival. A huddle was called to determine what elephants ate. Nobody knew, so they ordered two tons of peanuts.

A police radio call went to all cars to look out for a wild and woolly picture cowboy and k on Hollywood boulevard with two guns. They were told not to be afraid of the guns, as the cowboy did not know they were prop guns.

Mostly About Dogs

By Bob Becker

The Question Box

Will you be kind enough to send me information on the training of a hound, part fox hound and beagle?

DAVID R.

S. Washtenaw avenue, Chicago.

Answer: This department does not have any literature on training of hounds which can be sent to you. What you need is a good book on the subject. I am sending you a suggestion on two books which will help you.

Will you please give me your advice on the purchase of a dog? I want a dog that will be well mannered and an intelligent household pet. Secondly, it must be a dog that can be used for hunting trips. My hunting is confined to one or two days of pheasant hunting, and perhaps two or three days of rabbit shooting. Several friends have suggested either a cocker or a springer spaniel. Which of the two would you choose?

W. F. CARTER.

Answer: Both the cocker and the English springer spaniel can handle pheasants and rabbits all right if you get a dog from hunting strains. They are smart, have excellent dispositions, and make ideal companions in the home. When you look at the breeds you will note quite a difference in size. The cocker that has been bred in this country for quite a while usually is a smaller dog than the old English type of hunting cocker because American fanciers have been breeding them mainly for companions and pets in the home. Your hunting cocker wants to be up on the leg—plenty of daylight between his stomach and the ground and with ample strength. A short legged cocker will have plenty of trouble trying to lift a pheasant high enough to make a good retrieve.

As you probably know, the cocker, a merry little worker, originally was used in England in hunting woodcock. In this country I have seen the real hunting strain of cocker do good work on pheasants and rabbits, although many sportsmen prefer the heavier, huskier, springer for such hunting.

You will find that the average aggressive springer is a little harder to handle than the cocker because the former has so much zip and go in him. If you get a springer I would suggest a good sized one. I prefer a 45 pound dog. Make sure you get a pup from real hunting springers.

We have a fox terrier, 8 months old. I would like to know if I am feeding him right. He gets the following: breakfast, 1 cup of warm milk and shredded wheat biscuit. Supper, cod liver oil every day, one half can of canned dog food, one raw egg in milk once a week, two or three raw beef bones a week. Three dog biscuits every week. I also give him cooked beef with the canned dog food.

MRS. JOHN D.

Green street, Chicago.

Answer: The feeding plan you follow is fairly satisfactory. Canned dog food [if it is a quality food with clean meat in it] is good. Cooked beef also is good. Raw beef bones are excellent for a dog. Raw eggs [beaten] are nourishing and so is milk. You should add cooked mashed vegetables to the food occasionally. And you might add some raw, ground beef to the diet occasionally for variety. If your pup hasn't been wormed recently, I suggest you take him a veterinarian and have him examined.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 20.—The bond market ran into a period of profit taking today, following its brisk advance on Monday and Tuesday, and closed generally easier. The declines in the treasury list ranged from 1-32d to 7-32d point. Liberty 3½s dropped 21-32d. Only one issue advanced, the treasury 3¾s, which climbed 2-32ds to a new record high since issuance.

Trading in the listed market diminished considerably on the decline, total transactions amounting to $12,513,000, compared with $16,122,000 the day before. The slackening of trading in government bonds was especially pronounced, today's total amounting to $2,080,000, or less than half the Tuesday total.

Corporate List Lower.

Most of the domestic corporation bonds which were at all active, closed irregularly lower with the losses ranging from small fractions to 4 points. New York Rapid Transit issues were heavily traded, reflecting the further progress reported in unification plans.

A few high grade corporate issues broke through their former highs of the year or longer, despite the general decline.

Foreign List Weak.

Trading was light in the foreign group as leading issues worked irregularly lower. German loans developed the principal weakness, many losing a point or more on the day. As a rule, the Scandinavian issues showed about the best strength of the European group, several making new highs for the year. In the Latin American section of the list, Argentine loans appeared the strongest.

On the curb exchange Baldwin Locomotive 6s, due 1938, with warrants, unexpectedly broke 8¾ points and those ex-warrants, 6¾ points. Reorganization of the company is in prospect and speculative dealings in the bonds of late have been fairly heavy.

Briggs & Stratton.

Investors' Guide: Please advise about Briggs & Stratton corporation stock.—D. P. E.

Answer: Briggs & Stratton corporation has its main plant in Milwaukee, Wis. It is the largest manufacturer of automobile locks in the world, supplying about 65 per cent of the total used. A substantial source of income, although secondary to the lock business, is the manufacture of portable gasoline engines. These are used for washing machines, house lighting, garden equipment, etc.

Operations during the depression have been continually profitable. For the first nine months of 1934 net income was $542,000, or $1.81 a share, against $188,000, or 63 cents a share, for the first nine months of 1933.

In 1933 net income equaled 85 cents a share, against 10 cents a share in 1932, $1.20 a share in 1931, and $2.97 a share in 1930.

Current assets on March 31, 1934, including well over a million dollars cash assets, amounted to $2,131,000, and current liabilities were $224,000.

Capitalization is represented by 297,148 shares of no par stock. The stock currently pays 50 cents a quarter. In 1934 dividends totaled $1.70 a share.

Illinois Consolidated Telephone.

Investors' Guide: I have a $500 bond of Illinois Consolidated Telephone company. Can you furnish me with information regarding the present status of the company?—N. H. K.

Answer: Illinois Consolidated Telephone company is an independent operating company, furnishing telephone service to a population of about 100,000 in central Illinois, in the vicinity of Springfield. Long distance business is handled through Illinois Bell Telephone and American Telephone and Telegraph companies.

Gross revenues in the first nine months of 1934 of $170,000 equaled gross reported for the corresponding 1933 period. Fixed charges were earned 1.31 times, a slight drop from the coverage of 1.33 times for the first nine months of 1933.

Gross in 1933 was $227,000, against $248,000 for 1932 and $284,000 for 1931. Charges were earned 1.33 times in 1933, 1.21 times in 1932, and 1.64 times in 1931.

Current position on Sept. 30, 1934, was satisfactory.

The $482,000 of first 6½s, due 1944, issued under an open-end mortgage, are secured by a first mortgage on all assets, including rights and franchises. The bonds are somewhat speculative.

EDISON REVENUE RISES, BUT COSTS CHECK PROFITS

Public Service Co. Earnings Dip.

Sharp gains in gross income which were largely offset by increased taxes and operating expenses, were disclosed in the annual reports for 1934 of Commonwealth Edison company and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, issued yesterday.

Commonwealth Edison reported consolidated earnings of $5.21 a share compared with $5.10 in 1933, the difference being caused partly by a reduction of outstanding shares from 1,623,464 to 1,609,065. Net income rose from $8,278,165 to $8,391,889. Dividends of $4 a share were paid, amounting to $6,465,076. Public Service net declined from $3,101,614 or $3.26 a common share to $2,805,962 or $2.85 a share.

Helped by One Tax Ruling.

Both reports call attention to the differences made by the Illinois Supreme court decision that the 2 per cent retailers' occupational tax does not apply to furnishing gas, water, and electric service by utilities. Their 1933 figures have been adjusted upward from those given previously which included reserve for this tax.

Public Service benefited by $258,213 for 1933, boosting its earnings from $2.65 to $3.26 a share. The saving for 1934, when the tax would have covered the entire year, was $518,994. Edison's saving was $526,798, changing its earning figure from $4.56 to $5.10. The 1934 improvement was $1,240,502.

Despite this favorable development, Edison was forced to make the largest provision for taxes in any year of the company's history—$11,514,126—an increase of $2,119,521 over 1933. The largest rise was the federal 3 per cent levy on electricity.

NRA Boosts Expenses.

Operating expenses rose $1,255,490 as a result of increased use of power and pay roll expenditures in compliance with NRA. Provision for depreciation was $8,079,527 against 8 millions in 1933. Total operating expenses and taxes were $60,208,329, an increase of $3,255,996 or 5.7 per cent.

The increase in gross earnings of $3,356,407—from $72,583,812 to $75,940,219—thus was practically offset. Electricity furnished increased 7.3 per cent and revenues from this source amounted to $75,438,504, or a 4.7 per cent gain.

For the first time since 1929 each of the four major classes of customers used more electricity than the previous year. Residential use was up 6.4 per cent and was 18.6 per cent above 1929, although the total use was 7½ per cent less than the 1929 record. Stimulation of electric appliance sales was credited for this showing.

Gain 22,700 Customers.

Customers totaled 925,166 at the end of the year, a gain of 22,700, compared with a high of 951,605 January, 1930. Cost of current to residential users again declined. Employés increased from 400 to 8,800. Of the 63,600 stockholders, 73 per cent live in Chicago and 87 per cent in Illinois.

The property account is carried on the balance sheet at $294,246,042. This reflects a decrease of $6,197,915 as a result of retirement of $10,175,017 in fixed property. Additions and extensions amounted to $3,977,102. Cash totaled $19,895,391 and total current assets were $43,551, 10, against current liabilities of $28,509,389.

Edison and subsidiaries during the year bought $3,350,000 of 5 per cent debentures of Electric Generating corporation, in which it holds 40 per cent of the common stock. Funded debt was reduced $524,000. The consolidated investment account was cut $4,100,871 to reflect estimated loss in investments in Western United corporation common stock.

Public Service Gross Rises.

Public Service showed consolidated gross earnings of $35,070,890, compared with $34,125,335 in 1933. This gain of 2.8 per cent was due mainly to increased revenues from industrial gas and electric services and gas space heating service. Sales of gas and electric merchandise gained 16.3 per cent.

Gains in gross were more than offset, however, by mounting expenses and taxes. These amounted to $24,982,250, compared with $23,555,933 the previous year, and reduced net from operations from $10,569,402 to $10,088,641. Principal cost increases arose from heavier gas purchases, expense in connection with the heating campaign, costs brought by the NRA, and the federal 3 per cent tax on electricity.

The company's gas business showed a 53.7 per cent rise in amount furnished, industrial use skyrocketing 228.5 per cent from 1933. Electric service rose 5.1 per cent, commercial leading with 8.5 per cent increase.

Funded debt was reduced $2,269,500, the greater part being accounted for by retirement of $1,578,500 in 6½ per cent refunding mortgage bonds due in 1937. In addition the company held in its treasury $632,500 bonds in anticipation of 1935 sinking fund requirements. Consolidated funded debt was $126,393,500. Current assets were $18,949,424, including $8,668,615 cash, compared with total current liabilities of $8,157,300.

I. T. & T. Reports Gain in Telephones on Lines

International Telephone and Telegraph company announced today that improvement in business conditions in various parts of the world during 1934 was reflected in a net gain of 50,673 telephones by International's associated companies. Figures for January show the increase is continuing, the statement added.

Cabell, Armour Head, Made Mosser Leather Director

R. H. Cabell, president of Armour & Co., was yesterday elected a director of the J. K. Mosser Leather company, a subsidiary, at the annual stockholders' meeting. He fills the vacancy caused by the death of T. G. Lee. All other directors were reëlected.

Am. Telephone Maintains $9 Dividend Rate

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph company today authorized the distribution of the usual quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on the capital, thus maintaining the $9 annual rate which has been in effect throughout the depression years. The dividend means a distribution of $42,000,000 to the company's stockholders.

The $9 annual rate has been in force since 1921, and during the last few years the company has had to dip into surplus to maintain the payments. Today's action had been generally expected in the financial community.

Estimate Profits Higher.

Walter S. Gifford, president, in a recent letter to stockholders, estimated that 1934 earnings would be approximately $5.85 a share as compared with $5.36 in 1933.

The annual report of the Bell Telephone company of Canada for the year ended Dec. 31, 1934, issued today, showed increased earnings and improved financial position. Gross telephone operating revenue of $36,005,265 rose more than $1,000,000 over 1933.

The amount available for fixed charges was $8,862,564, or more than twice the necessary $4,060,211. The balance applicable to capital stock was $4,802,353, equal to $6.20 a share on 774,151 shares outstanding at the end of the year. This compares with net of $4,329,442 in 1933, or $5.62 a share on 770,820 shares.

Dividends paid last year amounted to $6 a share, leaving a surplus of $166,824 to be carried forward, as compared with a deficit of $292,277 in 1933.

Omits Preferred Dividend.

The United Stores corporation announced the omission of dividends on the preferred stock, explaining in a letter to the stockholders that practically all the current income previously used to pay dividends had been derived from interest on the company's holdings of Tobacco Products corporation 6½ per cent debentures, which were redeemed on Jan. 31 last.

The preferred stock is entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of $6 a year, but it has never received the full payment in any year. In recent quarters the rate has been 81¼ cents a share, or an annual rate of $3.25 a share.

Chicago Flexible Shaft company declared an extra dividend of 10 cents a share in addition to a quarterly payment of 30 cents a share, both payable March 30. During 1934 the company paid quarterly dividends of 25 cents a share.

Oneida Community, Ltd., declared an accumulation dividend of $1 a share on the $25 par value 7 per cent preferred, payable March 15. Arrears will total $2.25 a share after this payment.

U. S. STEEL PLANS TO MOVE OFFICES TO PITTSBURGH

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—New York City will soon lose one of its outstanding corporate residents, as plans are being laid to transfer the headquarters of the United States Steel corporation to Pittsburgh.

The move is part of a program to simplify steel's involved structure by consolidating its numerous component companies into three major organizations. This is an intermediate step toward an eventual objective of merging the whole works into a single corporate unit. Offices will be maintained in New York for the use of the chairman and a few other officials, but these will be small.

The consolidation is expected to result in sweeping economies of administrative personnel and greater efficiency of management through centralization. A similar plan was conceived in E. H. Gary's time, but was never put through.

There is another motive besides economy and efficiency. With Washington looking askance at involved corporate relationships, it is regarded as desirable to get a jump ahead of the game by abolishing intricacies. That would make it harder for the government to carve the big one into little ones.

Many financial observers expect forced split-ups and regard the pending holding company bills as the beginning of a campaign to that end.

CONSUMERS CO. PLAN IS OPPOSED BY BONDHOLDERS

Renewed opposition to the plan to reorganize the Consumers company, proposed by the management, was voiced yesterday by the committee headed by Homer F. Carey which is representing a group of first mortgage bondholders.

In a letter sent to bondholders the committee declares that the reorganization program provides no assurance that full interest will be paid on the bonds if earnings justifies such action. The waiving of sinking fund requirements proposed by the management is detrimental to bondholders and favors other creditors, the committee said.

The committee further alleges that the distribution of new stock called for by the plan would perpetuate control of the company in the hands of the present officers. The absence of a check on posible dividends on the new stock pending full interest payment to bondholders is also criticized.

Markets and Banks Will Be Closed Tomorrow

The principal commodity and security markets in the United States will be closed tomorrow, Feb. 22, the anniversary of Washington's birthday. Banks also will be closed. Foreign markets will operate as usual. An exception to the general closing is the Chicago Livestock Exchange which will carry on normal business. Regular trading will be resumed in all markets Saturday morning.

Try to Prove Middle West Is Insolvent

Examination of witnesses in an effort to show Middle West Utilities company is hopelessly insolvent was conducted yesterday by Lewis F. Jacobsen, attorney for petitioning creditors, in the second day's hearing before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to determine the fairness of a reorganization plan under section 77-B of the amended banpruptcy act.

Witnesses testified regarding the value of assets of the company of which there are 632 items. The book value of assets as of Dec. 31, 1934, was given as $59,975,000, while the liabilities on July 23, 1934, the date on which a trustee was appointed, were given as $71,443,000. Attorney Jacobsen contends a fair valuation is now $15,000,000, while according to the schedule of the company's auditor liabilities are worth $84,164,000.

Change Voids Comparisons.

C. C. Herrmann, with the treasury department of Middle West, was asked if he could make an estimate of the present prospects of the concern, taking as a basis for this the paper earnings of the big former Insull enterprise in the peak years of 1929 and 1930.

He said that he could not do this because many of the practices common under the Insull régime had been discontinued.

It was brought out that net income for 1934 is estimated at $788,695, and profits for 1935 are placed at $140,456. The 1935 estimate was made on the theory that the proposed reorganization plan is put into effect. It does not take in account interest charges since under the reorganization there would be no funded debt. Further, the sharp decline in net earnings as estimated for 1935 in comparison with 1934 is due to the fact that the company in 1935 will receive no supervisory fees. In 1934 it obtained around $500,000 from this source.

Lends Support to Plan.

Orville J. Taylor, representing common stock holders, informed Judge Wilkerson that he now is going along with other interests in supporting the plan because he realizes the futility of trying to raise money to buy off claims of the banks and note holders.

Taylor, who has endeavored to show that the company is solvent, said he discovered that the Reconstruction Finance corporation law prevents loans to utilities and he doubted, in view of the administration's stand, whether this situation would be changed. It was this discovery, he said, that finally caused him to stop trying to raise money. Taylor said he was relying greatly on the court for a determination of the company's solvency.

Judge Wilkerson informed the group of lawyers that he would represent security holders not represented in the hearing.

Joseph E. Baker, a member of Stone, Webster & Blodget, Inc., eastern investment house, testified that he had been sent to Chicago last summer by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company, to study the Middle West situation and that he had advised Mr. Young to accept the reorganization plan. The hearing is to be continued today.

Report Butter, Egg Trade Added to Control Bill

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The house agriculture committee was reported by a member today to have included butter and egg trading in the Jones bill for regulation of commodity exchanges. Prices on these commodities are established in New York and Chicago. Representative Boileau of Wisconsin sponsored the addition to the bill, which already embraced wheat, cotton, rice, corn, oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, sorghums, and milk feeds. The committee has not approved the measure as a whole.

Canadian Liquor Exports to U. S. Show Sharp Drop

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Exports of alcoholic liquor to the United States from Canada in January were valued at only $548,000 compared with $4,072,000 in January last year. The decline represented the largest individual drop in Canada's exports for the month.

Bethlehem Steel Pays $800,000 in Pensions

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Bethlehem Steel corporation paid more than $800,000 last year in pensions to retired employés, the annual review of the employés pension plan reported today. This brings the total for the 12 years that the plan has been in effect to $6,754,721.

FRENCH BANK SELLS LIRE; HINT GOLD BLOC TIES ARE BREAKING

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 20.—The Bank of France sold a substantial amount of lire on the exchange market today at the record low price of 1.2765 francs. This sale, as much as anything that has happened lately, symbolizes the extent to which the gold bloc is pursuing its steady disintegration, because until fairly recently the Bank of France supported the lira by purchasing daily as much as the Bank of Italy offered against later gold shipments.

While it is true the sale in question may have been for one of the bank's clients—either a private or central bank—it is also true that the Bank of France could have satisfied the demand without openly selling the lira at a time when it has never been weaker or under heavier strain. The Italian unit closed officially at 1.28 frans, against par of 1.34.

As Paris observers do not believe Italy will quit the gold standard or devalue alone, speculation turns on the possibilities of the collapse of other members of the gold bloc. On that score the best opinion is that the situation in all countries except France has weakened considerably, and that individual members, notably Holland and Switzerland, take the stand that the tie which bound the gold bloc no longer exists as far as questions of mutual benefit are concerned. Each member is now believed to be out looking for its own interests.

AAA CUTS SUGAR BEET ACREAGE 10% FROM PEAK TOTAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Sugar beet planting in 1935 was fixed today by the AAA at 975,500 acres, representing a 10 per cent decrease from 1933, the year of highest acreage for the nation.

This figure will vary slightly, officials explained, through later minor adjustments in some districts. It applies to continental United States.

Total production on the basis of average growing conditions would be 1,550,000 short tons, the quota allowed under the Jones-Costigan control act.

Allotments were made to companies which operate within a factory district. These will be divided equally among farmers within the district according to their production during 1933.

REVOKE CHARTER OF COLLINS & CO., SECURITY FIRM

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The charter of N. H. Collins & Co., Chicago securities firm, was revoked today by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes. The company failed to respond to a citation to appear before the securities department yesterday and the revoke today resulted.

The company was charged with making misstatements regarding certain officers, with submitting assets of doubtful value on its balance sheet and of circulating alleged fraudulent statements regarding value of whisky warehouse receipts.

Firm Short $950,000 in London Pepper Crash

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A sequel of the recent crash in the London pepper pool is the announcement tonight that J. D. Rolls and H. L. Gabain, trading as Rolls & Son, Mincing Lane produce brokers, filed a deed of assignment showing an estimated deficiency of more than £190,000 (about $950,000). It was a result of the failure of James & Shakespeare, dealers, to take up large stocks of pepper under contract.

Estimates First Quarter Profits 6½% Above 1934

Estimates by the Standard Statistics company, based on operations to date and projections for the next six weeks, indicate that first quarter earnings of representative corporations will be about 6½ per cent above those of the corresponding period in 1934. This, says the company, would be the best showing for any quarter since 1931.

Power Output Boosts Gain Over Year Ago

Electric power output in the United States last week showed a less than seasonal decline of 0.2 per cent from the preceding week and increased the margin of gain over a year ago, rising 7.3 per cent compared with 6.8 per cent in the preceding week, according to figures released yesterday by the Edison Electric institute.

The national total was 1,760,562,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,763,696,000 in the preceding week.

In the Chicago district also production was only slightly below the preceding week, dipping 0.3 per cent, but rose sharply over a year ago, gaining 9.4 per cent compared with an increase of 4.8 per cent in the preceding week of this year.

Unusually dark weather during the week caused production to compare favorably with the preceding week, according to the Commonwealth Edison company, which published the figures. The percentage gain over a year ago was particularly high because of a large seasonal drop in the corresponding week of last year.

Following are the output in kilowatt hours and percentage comparisons with last year for the Chicago area [last three ciphers omitted]:

Week Ended	1935.	1934.	Per Cent Increase.
Feb. 16	109,161	99,758	9.4
Feb. 9	100,464	104,416	4.8
Feb. 2	109,281	104,900	4.2
Jan. 26	112,542	99,292	13.4

Other sectional gains over 1934 were: New England, 2.6 per cent; middle Atlantic, 3.2; central industrial, 9; west central, 7.4; southern states, 7.1, and Pacific coast, 4.9.

OPERATORS DENY BITUMINOUS WAGE BOOST DEMAND

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The bituminous coal wage conference moved back to the starting line tonight—no nearer a new scale than before it started—after Appalachian operators rejected all United Mine Workers' demands for higher pay and shorter hours. The mine workers made the first move yesterday, asking that new contracts to succeed those expiring April 1 provide a 30 hour week and a 50 cent increase in present basic pay rates.

Tonight the operators replied that the industry could not afford to cut hours or raise pay—mainly because the competition from fuel oil and natural gas threatened to wipe out the industry. Tomorrow the operators will make their counter proposal, after which the conference likely will adjourn for some days to permit each side to collect data.

The operators said miners in the Appalachian region made $125,000,000 more last year than they did before NRA days. Their hours had been reduced from 48 to 35 at the same time and they had "established their union at practically all mines," the operators continued. The operators maintained that the new proposals would add 45 cents to the cost of each ton of coal mined.

1934 AUTOMOTIVE PRODUCT EXPORT TOTAL RISES 108%

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The department of commerce reported today that exports of automotive products from the United States during 1934 increased $102,346,120 to $196,314,485, a gain of 108 per cent.

These sales were higher than in any year since 1930 the report said, and reflected "the generally improved economic conditions throughout the world."

SEC PROBE AIRS STOCK DEALINGS OF CURB CHIEFS

Charge Concessions Given Officers.

Affairs of the Chicago Curb exchange were put under the magnifying glass of the securities and exchange commission yesterday when John L. Flynn, an attorney for the commission, cross-examined Moritz J. Loeb, secretary of the exchange, concerning purchases of stock made by Loeb at prices below those paid by the public and at times coincident with the listing of the shares on the exchange.

MORITZ J. LOEB.

The government's action came as a surprise, for it had been announced that the commission's agents would study market operations in the stock of the Paducah Cooperage company to determine whether there had been manipulation to influence the price of the shares.

Tell of Loeb's Deals.

William R. Stuart, an investment dealer, testified that Loeb purchased 300 shares of the K. G. Schmidt Brewing Co., Inc., June 15, 1933, at 2¾, at about the time the stock was listed on the exchange, and a few days later sold it at 5⅝. He also testified that Deenen A. Watson, an employé of the Illinois securities commission, had purchased 300 shares June 30, 1933, on telephone order from Springfield, and five days later sold it at 5⅝.

Stuart also testified that Allan S. Noyes, former president of the curb, had purchased 300 shares below the public offering price and a few days later sold it at a profit.

Stuart also testified that former Senator Watson of Indiana had purchased the stock at 4. Public offering was at 4¼. He said that John R. Howell, assistant secretary of the exchange, bought stock at 3¾.

Asks Reason for Concession.

"Can you tell why Loeb and Watson were able to buy stock at prices below that which John Public had to pay?" Flynn demanded.

"I know that there was no thought on my part that we were trying to influence Loeb," Stuart said, "as the stock was already listed."

Loeb, called to the stand, testified that he bought 200 shares of the Muessel Brewing company, July 6, 1933, at $7 a share and that he had acted as agent for Noyes in the purchase of 200 shares. On July 7 Loeb said he sold his stock at 8⅝, giving him a profit of 1⅝ for the day. The stock was listed on July 5, 1933. It is currently selling at around 1¼.

Charles F. McKiel, treasurer of Thompson, Ross & Co., testified that Loeb's deals in the Muessel stock were cash transactions, although he said he didn't know whether payment had been made by check.

Payment in Cash.

"Why were the shares paid for in cash and why did the president of the curb have you purchase 200 shares for him in your name?" Flynn asked. "Was Noyes afraid to have his name appear."

"Ask him," Loeb retorted.

Robert J. Koeppe of R. J. Koeppe & Co., testified regarding his purchase of 30,000 shares of Paducah Cooperage and the sale through dealers. He said that brokers told him that they had letters in their files from Loeb in which the latter warned them not to have any dealings with Koeppe.

Testifying regarding the curb's order for an investigation into the Paducah Cooperage deals, he said:

"Loeb's purpose was to draw a 'red herring' across the case to divert attention from his own transactions."

The hearing is being conducted before Francis Currie, an examiner before the SEC. He and Flynn are reported to have been responsible for closing of the Boston Curb exchange.

Washington Ordered Probe.

Flynn explained the hearing was ordered from Washington to gather information for presentation to the SEC regarding the curb's application for exemption from registration under the securities and exchange act.

Loeb after the hearing issued a statement in which he denied that there was anything irregular in his purchase of stock. "I felt that there was a possibility of appreciation in the value of the stocks, and therefore purchased them," he said. "No inference can be drawn that these purchases on my part had any effect on the listing of the securities."

The hearing will be resumed at 11 o'clock this morning in the federal building.

In the Matter of Reorganization of Pressed Steel Car Company of New Jersey, a corporation. } In Bankruptcy No. 18779

Notice to creditors of Pressed Steel Car Company and all other interested parties:

Notice is hereby given to creditors of Pressed Steel Car Company and all other interested parties that on February 14, 1935, a rule was granted by the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania in the above proceedings to any and all persons interested to show cause why the prayer of the petition verified February 13, 1935, and filed by the Trustees of Pressed Steel Car Company for authority to issue Trustees' certificates aggregating but not in excess of the principal amount of $1,000,000 should not be granted, such rule being returnable the 1st day of March, 1935, at 10:00 o'clock A. M. Eastern Standard Time, at the New Federal Building, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and that said 1st day of March, 1935, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., Eastern Standard Time, has been set as the time for a hearing in the above matter, at which place and time, or as soon thereafter as may suit the convenience of said Court, any and all persons interested may be heard.

The Trustees have sufficient moneys on hand to pay all outstanding Receivers' certificates in the amount of $950,000, which will be paid at maturity on March 15, 1935. The Trustees have received additional business and the proceeds of the certificates prayed for in the above petition will be used to provide working capital to carry on and complete said business, as well as additional business anticipated.

Dated February 14th, 1935.

Rock Island Defeats RFC on Attorney

Trustees of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad company were authorized to employ former Senator Otis F. Glenn as special counsel in reorganization proceedings under section 77 of the new bankruptcy act in an opinion rendered yesterday by Presiding Judge Evan A. Evans of the United States District Court of Appeals, acting as a District judge. The opinion was a defeat for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which had opposed Glenn's appointment.

The RFC contended the appointment was a violation of the contract agreement whereby the company and trustees must first seek the approval of the RFC before making appointments which carry a salary of more than $4,800 a year. Both sides agreed that Glenn's salary will be more than that figure.

Road Owes RFC $13,600,000.

Judge Evans in developing his opinion cited the fact that the road now has twenty-two attorneys, whose salaries range from $2,400 a year to $25,000, but mostly under $10,000. He said it was the duty of the trustees to get the best possible legal advice and that, while he felt the road's attorneys were competent, the trustees could be justified in going elsewhere to get counsel to represent them in the reorganization.

The judge expressed the advisability of working out a reorganization plan as speedily as possible, saying:

"It must be remembered that no property can be as effectively handled in receivership as it can be out of receivership, provided, of course, that those in charge render the same able, conscientious service. Proceedings under section 77 of the bankruptcy act must not be used as a substitute for receivership.

Suggests Speed in Plan.

"Creditors of this railroad, and stockholders to a lesser degree, are entitled to the early submission of a fair plan of reorganization. There already has been considerable delay.

"I cannot overemphasize the importance of work upon the plan of reorganization and its early submission. We must not place ourselves in a position where we cannot see the woods because of the trees. The inclusion of railroads under section 77 was for the primary purpose of securing their reorganization. It is not like a nursing receivership, where marking time and holding off creditors are the time honored and familiar practice—a practice which, by the way, has little appeal save to those who may have profited through it."

DOLLAR STEADY AGAINST LEADING GOLD CURRENCIES

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Foreign exchange today with the dollar holding steady against leading European currencies. Quarters that yesterday reported considerable buying of dollars abroad said that a moderate demand continued today.

French francs closed slightly higher, rising ⅛ point to 6.62 cents, with the dollar worth $1.0020 against francs, compared with $1.0022 yesterday. The gold value of the dollar against francs was 59.18 cents, compared with 59.19 yesterday and par of 59.06 cents. Other units showed little change.

Bar gold in the London market declined a halfpenny to 142 shillings 9½ pence. The United States equivalent was $34.89 a fine ounce.

The engagement abroad of $3,000,000 additional gold for shipment here was reported to the federal reserve bank. The gold which was purchased in the last few days is coming from England and India. It brings to $406,000,000 the total engaged since Nov. 5, 1934.

The bank reported the receipt of $8,997,800 gold from England. In view of the restraint which commercial banks have shown in importing gold, it was thought likely that some or all of the metal imported yesterday might have been for the account of the treasury's stabilization fund.

TREASURY WILL OFFER NEW LOAN OF 3 BILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Floating its first bonds since the Supreme court handed down the momentous decision on the gold clause obligations, the government within the next fortnight will seek to borrow at least 3 billion dollars from the banks and investors of the country.

This was learned today as the treasury department completed tentative plans for the operation, one of the largest since war times. Before the year is ended treasury borrowing may run as high as 15 billions.

The treasury hopes that its new flotation, one of the biggest security issues in its history, will be aided materially by the high value which investors have placed on government bonds since the Supreme court ruling.

Retires Block of Libertys.

Approximately 2 billion dollars of the 3 billions will go to retire a large block of Liberty bonds. These bonds carry the gold payment promise which the Supreme court ruled could not be annulled by congress.

The rest of the huge borrowing will go to retire a 528 million dollar series of treasury notes which mature March 15, and to provide ready cash with which to meet new bills. The 3 billion odd dollars involved in the transaction will be allocated as follows: retirement of Fourth Liberty loan bonds, 1 billion 875 million dollars; retirement of treasury notes, 528 millions; new cash, estimated from 500 million to 1 billion dollars additional.

By replacing Liberty bonds with new treasury securities which do not have the gold clause, the treasury will erase questions left open by the Supreme court's decision. Of the 14 billion 700 million dollars of treasury gold securities in existence, 6 billion 500 million dollars are callable for refinancing some time this year.

Cuts Potential Claims.

If the treasury should choose to refund all of this 6 billion 500 million dollars in gold bonds this year, it would halve the potential claim which the owners have against the government as a result of the Supreme court ruling. There is as yet no apparent legal way, however, for the bond owners to enforce their potential claims against the government.

The treasury could attempt to retire this year all outstanding government bonds with the gold clause, but responsible treasury officials indicated this would not be done. Despite the fact that only 6 billion 500 million dollars of the 14 billion 700 million dollars in gold bonds are callable this year, the treasury could offer to refund the remaining 8 billion 200 million dollars by an exchange for new bonds.

NATIONAL TEA REPORTS DROP IN 1934 EARNINGS

National Tea company and subsidiaries yesterday reported a decline in earnings during 1934. Consolidated net income for the year ended Dec. 31, was $462,752 after all expenses. This amounts after preferred dividends to 60 cents a share on 630,000 shares of common stock outstanding and compares with net of $1,180,390 or $1.70 a share on 644,953 shares in 1933.

Sales for the year, including those made direct from the warehouse on contract, amounted to $62,789,250, compared with $65,457,655 in the preceding year, including sales taxes of $484,080, or a decrease of approximately 4 per cent. Earned surplus at the end of the year totaled $6,892,761, against $6,896,283 on Dec. 31, 1933.

Current assets at the end of 1934 amounted to $9,964,063, including cash and government bonds of $1,889,155, against current liabilities of $3,636,124. This compares with current assets of $9,798,988 cash and government bonds of $2,706,563 and current liabilities of $2,666,849 on Dec. 31, 1933.

THE CELOTEX COMPANY (In Receivership)

NOTICE TO CREDITORS AND STOCKHOLDERS FOR FILING CLAIMS

Wm. Tracy Alden and Colin C. Bell were appointed Receivers of The Celotex Company, a Delaware corporation, by a decree entered June 16, 1932, as modified by an order entered February 5, 1935, in the cause entitled MacManus, Incorporated vs. The Celotex Company, now pending in the United States District Court for the District of Delaware, as No. 981 in Equity; Wm. Tracy Alden and George E. Williams were appointed Ancillary Receivers of said corporation by an order entered June 17, 1932, as modified by an order entered February 6, 1935, in the cause entitled MacManus, Incorporated vs. The Celotex Company, now pending in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana, New Orleans Division, as No. 36 in Equity; and Wm. Tracy Alden was appointed Ancillary Receiver of said corporation by an order entered February 6, 1935, in the cause entitled MacManus, Incorporated, vs. The Celotex Company, now pending in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, as No. 11964 in Equity.

By orders entered in said causes, all persons having general claims, preferred claims or lien claims against The Celotex Company, or claims of title to or interest in any of its property, or claims in respect of The Celotex Company's First Mortgage Sinking Fund Convertible Gold Bonds, Series A, or its Ten-Year 6% Convertible Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, are required to file with said Receivers, Wm. Tracy Alden and Colin C. Bell, in care of Richards, Layton & Finger, 4072 duPont Building, Wilmington, Delaware, sworn statements of their respective claims, verified in each case before an officer authorized to administer oaths under the laws of the state where the statement is made, setting forth (a) a description of the claim and the amount thereof, (b) a description of the security (if any) for the claim and the amount thereof, and (c) any asserted preference or priority of the claim over other claims.

By the orders above mentioned The Celotex Company is required to file with the Receivers proof of interest on behalf of all stockholders of The Celotex Company by filing with the Receivers a list of the names and last known postoffice addresses of all such stockholders and the number of shares of each class of stock held by them, respectively, as of March 15, 1935. Said orders provide that in the event of controversy arising with respect to the number of shares of any class of stock of The Celotex Company outstanding, or as to the validity of a claim of ownership of any such shares, individual proofs of interest by all holders of such shares or of such as the Court may direct may be required; and that any holder of shares of any class of stock of The Celotex Company may, if he so desires, file an individual proof of interest with respect to such shares not later than March 15, 1935. Such individual proof of claim should be forwarded to the Receivers at the address stated herein.

Said orders further provide that all persons having claims against The Celotex Company who shall fail to file their sworn statements in respect thereof as aforesaid on or before March 15, 1935, shall be forever barred and foreclosed from asserting such claims against The Celotex Company or its Receivers, and from participating in the property of The Celotex Company or the proceeds thereof, except upon the further order of the United States District Court for the District of Delaware, or upon the further order of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, or upon the further order of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana, New Orleans Division.

A copy of this notice, with forms for Proof of Claims, is being mailed to every creditor and stockholder of The Celotex Company known to the Receivers. All persons who do not receive such forms and wish to file claims or proof of interest should immediately send a request therefor to the Receivers at the address noted below.

WM. TRACY ALDEN

STOCKS FOLLOW UTILITY LIST TO LOWER LEVELS

Reaction Late in Day Routs Early Steadiness.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—The stock market gave evidence today that not only the final trace of intoxication over the gold decision had disappeared, but it also acted as though its reaction to the little spree was a touch of despondency.

The list struggled futilely in early dealings to maintain previous closing levels but acute weakness in the public utility division spread quickly to other sections and the closing gong found final quotations lower by major fractions to more than two points with only here and there a sign of strength among the specialties. Volume amounted to 966,850 shares.

Utilities Under Pressure.

With utilities in steady supply and scraping the lowest prices for the movement under nervous liquidation, ascribed not only to the fear of adverse legislation but to unfavorable annual statements, the market's picture was hardly inviting to fresh bullish confidence. Favorable items of news such as the regular dividend on American Telephone and other reports of increased payment were disregarded. It was apparent the financial community was not pleased by developments of a political nature.

American Telephone, selling at 104⅜ at the time the regular dividend was announced, moved up a point or a point and then receded a point or so. Action of the stock reflected mental discomfort among investors over the general outlook for utilities and the "private monopolies" referred to by President Roosevelt in his message to prolong the life of the NRA. Losses in other issues in the group ranged from major fractions in Consolidated Gas, North American, and Commonwealth and Southern, to a point in Public Service of New Jersey.

Railroad Issues Weaken.

Railroad shares continued to back up from the scene of their brief jubilation over the gold clause bond decision. Union Pacific was the biggest loser, receding over two points.

One of the successful buckers of the selling trend was Chesapeake corporation which advanced 2 points largely as a result of the dividend increase announced yesterday.

Further shrinking of operations in the industry was reflected by heaviness in the steel shares. The close found United States Steel off more than a point, with Bethlehem doing little better. Farm implement shares ran up early gains amounting to more than a point but turned reactionary with the rest of the list. Motor shares were weak. Westinghouse was strong, but American Can and General Electric were off fractionally.

FEBRUARY EGGS DIP ¾ CENT; BUTTER PRICES MOVE DOWN

February eggs continued to fluctuate in an erratic manner on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. An early upturn of ¾ cent per dozen was followed by a recession which carried prices off over 1 cent from the high, with the finish at the bottom at a net loss of ⅝ cent.

Early buying of eggs was based on continued light receipts, the local market receiving 5,235 cases, or about half of the total of a year ago. The trade was inclined to look for a heavier movement in the immediate future. Deferred deliveries closed unchanged.

Scattered selling caused a decline of ⅛ to ⅜ cent per pound in butter, although stock in Chicago cold storage dropped to below 2,000,000 pounds, and Land o' Lakes reported production last week as 20 per cent less than last year, although 1 per cent in excess of the previous week. Sales aggregated 122 cars of eggs and 32 cars of butter. Prices follow:

STEEL OUTPUT LOWER; PRICE OF SCRAP DECLINES

Sentiment Is Improving Despite Reverses.

Improved sentiment is noted in iron and steel markets despite further reductions in both production and scrap prices last week, says Iron Age. Steel output fell 3 points to 50½ per cent and the magazine's composite price for scrap receded from $12.17 to $11.92 a ton.

While the recession in scrap prices has been general, the review asserts, there is a distinct improvement, particularly in the Pittsburgh district where the change in tone was partly due to an order for 10,000 tons of heavy melting steel from a U. S. Steel subsidiary, the first purchase from dealers by that interest since April, 1934.

Confidence Returning.

"Among steel makers likewise there are signs of returning confidence," the journal says. "Whether the recent setback in business was due to uncertainty over the gold clause case, too rapid expansion of raw and semi-finished steel output, overbuying of consumers, code limitations on contract buying, or to all these factors, remains a moot question. The steel trade sees no evidence of an actual decline in consumption and in certain directions looks for an expansion of demand above current levels.

"There are as yet no signs of a relaxation of activity in the automobile industry. While motor car makers may have ordered more freely than usual as long as they were in doubt as to deliveries available from the mills, it is problematical whether they have yet reached the peak of their steel requirements.

Expect Construction Upturn.

Milder weather and completion of new government financing programs are relied upon to stimulate construction and railroad expenditures in the second quarter, the journal adds. New structural projects of 60,000 tons last week were the largest since the last week of August, 1933. Fabricated steel awards of 13,250 tons compare with 9,655 tons in the preceding week. Rail mills are becoming more active.

The placing of 32 twin articulated electric streamlined passenger units by the French railways and of 15 single unit Diesel electric cars by the Northern railways of Italy for construction abroad under licenses from a Philadelphia builder has been followed by the purchase of stainless steel from an American mill, according to the journal.

Operations last week fell 2 points to 39 per cent at Pittsburgh, 11 points to 54 per cent at Chicago and 5 points to 85 per cent in the Wheeling district. In other centers the rate was substantially unchanged.

UNNAMED PERSON GIVES UP $56,000 OF GOLD NOTES

An unidentified individual yesterday surrendered $56,000 in gold certificates at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, it was learned last night. The reserve bank gave the holder legal currency equivalent to the face amount of his certificates which will be turned over to the federal treasury.

The surrender was the largest of many that have been made at the reserve bank here since last Monday when the United States Supreme court upheld the power of the federal government to force the surrender of all gold certificates privately held.

Officials of the Chicago reserve bank, however, declined to reveal the total that has been turned in this week. The certificates had been coming in for several months prior to Monday's decision and have increased materially since then. The reserve bank is merely acting as an agent of the treasury.

U. S. NOT PROSECUTING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—The treasury is accepting all surrenders of gold certificates and is not pressing action against individuals who give up their holdings, officials stated today. Treasury officials explained that the policy is being followed because the threat of prosecution would probably stop surrenders.

Holders are getting the equivalent in legal tender. Treasury officials said they had no figures on the amount of certificates turned in since the gold decision was handed down, but that they have been trickling in steadily since the anti-hoarding order was originally issued.

Injunction Asked to Force Licensing of Insurance Firm

Ernest Palmer, state director of insurance, yesterday filed a suit for injunction in the Superior court to restrain the American Travelers Health association from engaging in the insurance business in Illinois until it has secured a state license. The bill states the association carried on an insurance business without securing authorization from the state.

DECLINE IN LARD FUTURES DESPITE RISING HOG PRICES

Continued advances in hog prices are having relatively little effect on the cured product. Scattered commission house buying lifted lard prices 7½ to 10 cents at the opening yesterday, but the late weakness in corn combined with profit taking and hedging pressure from cash interests brought the close unchanged to 2½ cents lower. Bellies were dull, but gained 5 to 7½ cents.

Reports that Canadian pork was being imported in the east had a depressing effect. Cash and leaf lard closed at $13.50; leaf at $13.30, and bellies at $16.67. Prices per 100 pounds follow:

Lard.

	High.	Low.	Close. Feb.20, 1935.	Close. Feb.19, 1935.	Close. Feb.21, 1934.

May	16.57	16.57	16.57	16.50	8.05

Note—Above prices include processing tax at 2.47c per lb on lard and 2.62c per lb on bellies taxed on produce made since March, 1934. This tax is rebated on produce exported, but varies according to the amount due to the fact that the tax was gradually advanced.

PULLMAN BUILDS NEWER, LARGER BULLET TRAINS

U. P. to Get Delivery of 2 Units in Spring.

BY HARRY A. LAIRD.

[Trafic Manager, Chicago Tribune.]

While the Budd company of Philadelphia has been holding the spotlight because of its recent delivery of the "Flying Yankee" to its eastern owners—the Boston and Maine and Maine Central railroads—the Pullman company has been busily engaged in further development here of more pretentious streamlined trains than it is building for the Union Pacific.

Pullman first entered the field with its duralumin, articulated, three car Union Pacific train No. M-10000. This little train, like the Zephyr of the Burlington road, finally found its way into routine service and is now making daily round trips and handling capacity loads of passengers between Kansas City and Salina, Kas.

Patronage Near Capacity.

Its popularity is demonstrated by the fact that its average patronage has been over one hundred passengers per trip while its capacity is only one hundred and twelve.

The next Union Pacific experiment was the six car M-10001 which made a record experimental dash from Los Angeles to Chicago in thirty-nine hours and continued on to New York.

Its outstanding defect was the lack of a diner. Buffet service is adequate on day runs, but not for a train planned for sleeper service. Immediately on its return to Chicago, the train was sent back to the shops to cut in a seventh car—a full diner, which is expected to be ready for service about May.

U. P. Gets Two More Trains.

It is doubtful if delivery will be effected much before the Pullman company completes the Union Pacific's two duralumin, articulated, streamlined, nine car trains, probably the M-10002 and M-10003. The cars of these trains will be more nearly equal in size to standard Pullmans, and there will be diners and lounge accommodations to offer all the comforts of the heavy standard trains now being operated.

These light weight trains have been undergoing evolution as is the case with any new industry—from a three car, light weight, Diesel propelled unit to a light weight, nine car train of nearly standard dimensions.

FEBRUARY TRADE REACTS FROM JANUARY GAINS

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Further improvement in business conditions was shown during January, but during the first half of February the upward trend was interrupted and a slight recession resulted, according to the monthly business survey of the National Industrial Conference board, released today.

The most significant single development, the board reports, was the continued expansion of motor production during January. The automobile industry registered the highest record of motor production of any January except in 1926 and 1929.

Output of the industry, the survey shows, was 87 per cent larger than in January, 1934, 65 per cent above the preceding month and 74 per cent higher than the five year average for the month from 1930 to 1934. Retail car sales were 125 per cent above a year ago, according to the board's report.

Department store volume was 1.4 per cent above January, 1934, the report says, but the dollar value of sales showed a more than seasonal drop from December.

Total building contracts were 7.6 per cent above December, but were approximately half of those reported for January, 1934. Residential awards were 54 per cent above the preceding month and 48.3 per cent above 1933.

BOOST ESTIMATE OF CANADA'S 1935 WHEAT OUTPUT

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The Northwest Grain Dealers' association today announced its estimate of western Canada's total wheat crop for 1934 as 259,500,000 bushels. This figure represents an increase of 9,035,000 over the association's December estimate of 250,465,000 bushels.

The estimate was based on an acreage of 19,533,300 for spring and 908,500 for durum wheat. The average yield for spring wheat was 12.5 bushels an acre and 12.7 for durum. Last year's oat crop was given as 152,540,000 bushels, an average yield of 20.9 bushels an acre; of barley, 48,928,000 bushels, or 16.7 bushels an acre.

The association's figures for wheat compared with those released by the dominion bureau of statistics on Jan. 24, which gave western Canada a crop of 263,800,600 bushels and the total Canadian crop as 275,849,000 bushels.

NEW YORK BOOSTS TAX RATE, BUT CUTS VALUATION

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Controler Frank J. Taylor tonight announced that New York City's basic tax rate for 1935 will be 2.71 for each $100 of assessed valuation of real property, compared with 2.56 for 1934.

He explained that except in Manhattan and the Bronx this will probably mean a smaller tax bill for the same property because of a scaling down of assessments.

Total assessed valuation on real property for 1935 is $16,649,771,199, compared with $17,149,226,557 in 1934, a reduction of approximately 3.6 per cent. The 1935 total valuation figure includes $128,239,330 on properties not heretofore taxed.

Canada Doubles Exports of Gold During January

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Gold bullion exported in January was valued at $10,835,000, all of which went to the United States, the dominion bureau of statistics reports. In the corresponding month last year the value was $5,627,384. Exports in the 10 months ended with January amounted to $80,643,431, against $49,320,692 for the corresponding period of the previous year. Raw gold exported in the 10 months ended January were valued at $3,227,639, in comparison with $1,904,864 last year.

HOG PRICES FOUR TIMES THOSE OF DEPRESSION LOW

The first real action in fresh pork markets in several weeks, coupled with abnormally low receipts, sent hog prices into new high brackets yesterday. Top sales soared to $11.35, processing tax included, and the average reached $11.15.

Hogs of good quality weighing over 200 pounds cost packers $11.15 or more, while a range of $10.25 to $11.10 took the majority of the lights over 140 pounds.

Packers now are paying almost four times as much for hogs as they were at the low time a little more than two years ago, when tops were down to $3 and the daily average was $2.80. Since the middle of last December the market has risen from $3.10 to $3.75. This tremendous increase in prices has resulted in consumer resistance in the meat trade, but supplies of fresh pork are far below current small requirements.

Some of the principal Chicago packers did not kill or cut hogs yesterday because of the shortage of receipts.

Light receipts offset bearish influences in the cattle trade and forced prices higher in face of the discouraging reports from the wholesale trade for beef. Cattle prices ruled steady to 25 cents higher, most classes sharing in the improvement. Action was much better than on the preceding two sessions, and fresh receipts as well as holdover stock was cleared.

Lamb prices rallied after a weak to lower opening, the bulk bringing prices steady to 10 cents higher prices during midsession. Shippers and city butchers paid up to $8.85.

NOBLITT-SPARKS ELECTS CLINE AS NEW DIRECTOR

Yandell C. Cline yesterday was elected a director and assistant treasurer of Noblitt-Sparks Industries, Inc., manufacturers of standard parts for automobiles.

The company reported that in 1934 materials and supplies required 54.43 per cent of the company's sales, pay rolls took 26.6 per cent and advertising 6.12 per cent. Miscellaneous overhead expenses amounted to 7.1 per cent of sales. Net profit after all charges, previously reported at $2.01 a share on 150,000 shares, against $3.21 a share on 75,000 shares in 1933, amounted to 5.64 per cent of sales.

The directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share on the common stock, payable April 1 to stock of record March 20.

CHARGES MONOPOLY DOUBLES TIN PRICE; U. S. BIGGEST BUYER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—A charge that the international tin committee, on which seven governments are represented, has obtained an absolute monopoly on the world's supply and arbitrarily more than doubled the price, was made today in a report by Chairman McReynolds of the house foreign affairs committee.

McReynolds's preliminary report on the tin investigation, ordered by the house, was made public today, it was understood, because of the refusal of British spokesmen in the house of commons yesterday to permit an investigation of the tin markets.

The British stand was assailed by Representative Caldwell of Florida, a member of the foreign affairs committee, who said:

"It is amazing that Sir Philip Cunliff Lister, Neville Chamberlain, chancelor of the exchequer, and other members of the British government could deny in the house of commons that a tin monopoly exists. Our facts show definitly that there is one. So far as the consuming nations which are not producers of tin are concerned, this means that there exists an absolute monopoly on tin production."

McReynolds indicated that he believed the British were the moving force in the monopoly. His report emphasized that the United States, which produces virtually no tin but consumes a half of the world's production, was not represented on the international committee.

Barrington, Ill., Bank to Pay 5% to Depositors

State Auditor Barrett yesterday announced that he had authorized payment of 5 per cent, amounting to $14,300, to the depositors of the First State Bank of Barrington, Barrington, Ill. This is the first dividend since the bank closed. The checks will be given out this week.

SELLING WAVE CARRIES GRAIN PRICES LOWER

Losses of Cent or More Shown at Close.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Grain prices were knocked down a cent and a half a bushel under a moderate selling wave which swept over the market yesterday. Only a meager recovery was made from the lowest prices of the day and final quotations on wheat and corn were a cent or more below Tuesday's closing level.

Decline in principal foreign markets which gave rise to fears of heavier importations kept speculative and commercial buying at a minimum and the break in values was effected by only moderate volume of liquidation. Closing prices on the May grain futures were:

TAX AIDED RIVALS TIE UP BUSINESS, MAGILL ASSERTS

Rout Fear, He Urges, and Recovery Will Follow.

Business must be freed from the threat of encroachment by tax-supported industries upon its domain if private industry is ever to revive, Dr. Hugh S. Magill declared yesterday in the Palmer house denouncing the New Deal's socialistic trends before 400 members of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Dr. Magill is president of the American Federation of Utility Investors.

"The most damaging effect of government competition in private industry today," he said, "is its destructive influence on individual initiative, and the consequent retardation of recovery. What our country most needs is assurance that private industry, with just regulation, may go forward free from the continued threat of government competition and interference.

Solution of Whole Problem.

"If such assurance were given, private industry would soon revive, and in a short time a large proportion of the unemployed would find employment in their former positions. Our government would then not need to be asking for billions for the dole, or to supply 'made-work' jobs, for very soon those who wanted to work would find employment in the response that would come from unfettering private industry."

Dr. Magill pounded home the irony of a situation in which business men are compelled to pay the increased taxes that give government officials the means of destroying them. This, he declared, is the "most illogical, unreasonable situation" business has ever faced.

"Thus, while increasing the burden of taxation and accumulating mountainous debts," he said, "the government reduces the ability of the taxpayers to meet these increased taxes by depriving them of their normal income."

Government and Waste.

The waste in government operated industries, aside from graft, is of an amount sufficient to satisfy the profit wants of private business, he said. Moreover, no one will ever be able to estimate the actual loss to the economic system from the results of socialistic government experiments.

The New Deal's assault upon utility holding companies is an effort not to "cure the patient but to kill him outright," thus paving the way for socialistic operation of the entire industry, Dr. Magill asserted. When he pointed out that this would be the result of administration policies Dr. Magill said that Washington officials told him: "That's what we're going to do, whether you like it or not!"

"If the government succeeds in wiping out the utility holding companies," he said, "we may well ponder whether it is but the beginning of an attack on all holding companies to bring all industries under government ownership."

PRODUCE MARKETS

Fresh eggs were in better demand yesterday with prices unchanged to ¾c per dozen higher, less than carlots of extra firsts and fresh firsts showing the most strength. Receipts were 5,235 cases. Butter prices were steady with receipts of 4,998 tubs. Potatoes were firmer. Receipts were 38 cars with 230 cars on team track. Live hens advanced ½c per pound and other poultry was unchanged. Receipts were 22 trucks.

MEN

Here is the most amazing money-making opportunity ever offered to the readers of this or any other newspaper It is a remarkable kind of business that can pay a steady net cash comm. profit and bonus of from $50 to $200 a week to any ambitious, level-headed man that wants to succeed. It is a business that offers unlimited opportunity—a business that is destined to make many men independently wealthy. It is an electrical one and to the best of our knowledge it is the biggest money-making opportunity in America. There isn't any investment and absolutely no experience is required to quickly become successful in this new business. We finance you, maintain office for your success and thoroughly train and supervise you with the necessary information and knowledge that is required to develop this new "gold mine."

If you are a go-getter, honest, clean-cut and willing to work, apply

Thursday, 1 P. M. ONLY. NO OTHER TIME.

Hotel Sherman

WEST SIDE AND WEST SUBURBAN MEN, who have a knowledge of business requirements and who wish to get into something that will keep them busy until well beyond 1945, will be interested in these facts: We want only men who have money-making intentions, conscious men between 26 and middle-age—alert, who still have the punch to succeed, and who aren't afraid of work. We don't want and will not accept any man who is after the swivel-chair ease or who thinks he is going to have money poured into his lap for nothing. This is not an easy-money organization, and it never asked any man for money or took any of his money. We would not stand where we do in the electrical field or pay such fat commission checks regularly as we pay to many men if we were less than we intimate in this invitation to you.

We shall see you at the address most convenient to you, Thursday, Feb. 21—at 10 a.m.—in the Parish State Bank Bldg., Madison and Austin—or at 3 p. m. in Rooms 1 and 2—2d floor at 5937 Roosevelt-rd., Cicero. Be prepared to put in time enough to go into details thoroughly.

IF YOU NEED WORK

We have made places in our organization for 15 men, and we are particularly anxious to talk to those who have had some connection with the building or allied trades and who can readily grasp the operation of an electrical unit. The immediate opportunity is in the sales and promotion department with a percentage and bonus that will make a very livable income for the right men. Apply ready to give references and go to work today. See Mr. Pope in Room 618, 203 N. WABASH-AV.

BUY

ANY ONE OF THE CARS LISTED BELOW BY STUDEBAKER SALES CO. AND YOU KNOW YOU ARE GETTING A REAL VALUE PLUS FIVE DAYS OF DRIVING TRIAL.

PLYMOUTH—Custom Sedan. Late 1933 car with many extras. The finish, tires, motor, and upholstery are A1. Special today at $450.

OLDSMOBILE—Sedan, 1933. You will look far and wide to find an auto anywhere in town to equal this one. The last word for smart appearance. Motor is 100%. Now $595.

CHRYSLER—Sedan. A de luxe 1933. Free wheeling, etc. It has the appearance and performance of an auto fresh from the factory. Our special price today only $585.

GRAHAM—Sport coupe, 1933 de luxe model with rumble seat and every conceivable extra. Examine this Graham from bumper to bumper and you'll agree that it still possesses all the original newness. Driven only slightly more than 12 months. Now $595.

ROCKNE—Coach, 1932. You can't beat this bargain. Free wheeling. Cushioned power. safety glass, etc. If it's a sporty car you like with magnificent performance—you'll go for this Rockne. A super bargain at $345.

NASH—8 Sedan, 1932. It was in storage for almost 2 years. We checked it over carefully in our shop. Now we recommend it as an outstanding Nash auto. It's topnotch thruout. Easily worth more than our price, $475.

ESSEX—Coach, 1932. A very clean car that is in dandy running order. Many nice extras. It's a very snappy car and the first man in with $295 drives away in this car.

STUDEBAKER—Sport coupe. Late '33 with free wheeling and big rumble seat. This wonderful coupe saw so little service that we defy any one to tell it from a brand new car. It's a real winner at only $595.
